Selma-To-Montgomery March OK'd By Judge

Montgomery, Ala. (AP) — Civil rights leaders won the right Wednesday to conduct a highway pilgrimage from Selma to Alabama's capital, and the news turned a street demonstration into a victory rally.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. announced to more than 700 white and Negro demonstrators at the county courthouse that a federal court had ruled in their favor.

Cheers and yells greeted his words. Then the demonstration ended as the jubilant demonstrators marched back to a Negro church.

Orders Protection

U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. issued an order barring state or county authorities from interfering with the 50-mile trek from Selma. He even ordered them to provide protection.

The judge said the five-day march could begin Friday.

However, King told newsmen it would be reasonable to presume the march would not begin Friday. He said preparations have to be made and the start might be delayed until Sunday. King said a decision would be announced Thursday.

The judge ruled on a petition of civil rights leaders after their Selma-Montgomery march was routed by state troopers using clubs and tear gas March 7.

Gov. George C. Wallace immediately prepared for an appearance Thursday night before the Alabama legislature to discuss the order. Aides made arrangements for the governor's speech to be carried on statewide television.

Talk With Sheriff

The news of the decision came minutes after King ended a conference of more than two hours with Sheriff Mac Sim Butler while the marchers waited outside. The massed throng was estimated at 3,000 to 5,000 at the start.

"We are making some progress," King said.

King said the discussion included "both sides of the problem."

Then he led the marchers away.

36 Arrested In Selma

In Selma about 700 demonstrators marched to the county courthouse, and afterwards 36 white clergymen were arrested for trying to picket the mayor's house.

The chants of "Freedom!" could be heard by newsmen five blocks away.

A city parade permit was granted for the march. Policemen blocked traffic along the route. The march was without incident.

U.S., U.N. Flags

Some of the marchers carried a bright, new American flag. A United Nations flag also was in the line.

"We are going to change this (voting registration) situation," the Rev. Andrew Young of Atlanta, a member of King's staff, told the crowd.

"It is easy to register to vote now in Montgomery County," he said. A thunder clap punctuated his statement.

"There is no excuse for anyone not voting."

Cab Top Belongs To Spot

Edgar — To ride through life any higher, old Spot would have to be an airplane pilot.

He's practically on top of the world as it is, way up there on Earl Hart's pickup. At home the cab roof is his napping spot, downtown it's his waiting post, even at 50 miles an hour it's the only highway perch he knows.

"He jumped up there as a pup seven years ago and it's been his place ever since," explained his ex-merchant master, now a semi-retired raiser of livestock.

"He rides it in the worst weather and nothing bothers him unless I forget and turn too fast."

Hart admits he himself is bothered, however, by the yapping that usually pursues his uppity pet through the streets.

The English setter also gets his share of stares—both human and canine—on frequent visits to Ong, Clay Center and Fairfield.

"Spot's a pretty normal dog otherwise, not a bad hunter and a great ball-player and sled-puller with the grandkids," continued the dog's chauffeur.

"Even in the yard, though, he'll lay on that cab for hours at a time."

U.S. EXAMINERS COULD STEP IN

. . . If Discrimination Persisted

With it, the President asked Capitol Hill to enact this broad declaration:

"No voting qualification or procedure shall be imposed or applied to deny or abridge the right to vote on account of race or color."

To enforce that provision, the measure would erase state literacy tests and similar requirements in low-registration and low-turnout states, counties and cities

Federal Registrars

If discrimination persisted, the government would assign voting examiners to register people for federal, state and local elections.

The bill would focus its guarantees on six Southern states: Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Virginia and South Carolina.

There, administration officials say, voter turnout fell below 50% of the voting age population in November's presidential election. These officials blamed racial discrimination.

Cold In Alaska

Alaska fell into that category, and would also be covered. But the administration says cold November weather was the main reason for the low turnout there.

The bill does not name the states, but the lower-than-50% voting or registration level would trigger its machinery in states or other voting units which impose "any test or device as a qualification for voting."

In states or other units covered by those provisions, no "test or device" could be required for prospective voters.

That means, in the bill's language, that a prospective voter could not be required to "demonstrate the ability to read, write, understand or interpret any matter . . ."

No Showing Needed

Nor could a voter be required to show "any educational achievement or his knowledge of any particular subject . . ."

The bill also would rule out requirements of "good moral character," or of statements from other voters—or anybody else—to prove an applicant's qualifications.

Dwindling Southern opposition in the Senate indicated the bill might make its way through that chamber without a full-scale filibuster, but only time would tell.

The House Judiciary Committee called Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach—key author of the 2,700-word measure — to speak out for the bill at a hearing Thursday.

'Exacerbation'

"The restless mood of the country brooks no delay," said Chairman Emmanuel Celler, D-N.Y. "all tempers are being exacerbated by the brutality and utter disregard of human lives by officials of the state of Alabama."

The bill's title declares that it will enforce the 15th Amendment to the Constitution.

Step No. 2

The federal voting registration provision could be used as a second step, once the initial suspension of literacy tests and other requirements had been put into effect.

Complaints of discrimination from 20 people in a state or any other voting unit could send federal officials to register voters.

The attorney general could set the registration machinery in motion if he found the complaints had merit, or decided that federal registration was "otherwise necessary to enforce the guarantees of the 15th Anendment . . ."

NU Revenue Bond Plan In 'Substantial' Doubt

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The attorney general's office has informed Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln that there is "substantial question" about the constitutionality of the University of Nebraska's proposal to issue revenue bonds for a $24.5 million construction program on the downtown campus.

Mrs. Orme declined to release the text of the opinion until it has received further study, but NU officials confirmed its general contents.

At issue is LB826, which would authorize the University to issue long-term revenue bonds backed by student tuition fee income.

Some $2.5 million in student fees would be applied to service the debt on the bonds each biennium, and NU would seek to replace that amount in the institution's operating budget through state appropriations.

The opinion followed in the pattern of an earlier attorney general's opinion presented to Gov. Frank Morrison on the constitutionality of issuing revenue bonds to finance a proposed new state office building

The state constitution includes a prohibition against public debt of more than $100,000.

University officials have contended that their revenue bond proposal is constitutional so long as they do not use any tax money to retire the bonds.

NU's legislative budget hearings entered their third day Wednesday with written statements from Chancellor Clifford Hardin and Board of Regents Vice President C. E. Swanson of Lincoln in reply to criticism voiced a day earlier by Wray Scott of Omaha, president of the Association of Nebraska Taxpayers.

Scott suggested that NU's budget request was unrealistic and should be rejected. He said that tuition rates should be raised substantially.

Hardin said the budget is "an honest attempt to place the University in a position to fulfill its obligations to the state for the next two years."

NU student tuition charges cover 30% of the operating instructional budget, the chancellor said.

"The State of Nebraska has never asked students to pay the entire cost of their education and we hope they never will do so," Hardin declared.

Swanson said Scott's remarks were "based on the contention that the only beneficiary of education is the individual student who receives it," a contention which is "contrary to the thinking that prompted the establishment of American public education."

The entire state benefits from the operation of the University and other institutions of public higher education, Swanson declared.

Lowest in The Nation

Dr. Cecil Wittson, dean of the College of Medicine, told the Budget Committee that Nebraska "probably has the lowest budget of any of the 84 medical colleges in the nation."

Even if the college's full budget request is granted, he said, it will continue to have the smallest budget of any medical school in the Big Eight.

The college itself seeks a $1,137,148 biennial increase, including $749,080 for additional staff and supporting costs. Eighteen new physician instructors would be added to the staff.

The University Hospital's budget calls for an $863,099 increase, including $479,116 for additional staff and supporting costs. Seventeen equivalent full-time professional personnel would be added.

New Hospital

Included in the college's proposed $7.8 million capital construction program is a new 200-bed hospital on the Omaha campus.

Discussion of the College of Agriculture's budget request began with supporting testimony from a number of organizations and individuals requesting added funds for vegetable research, a new experiment station, irrigation staff specialists, sugar bee disease research, castor bean research, weed and insecticide control and research on material to encase irrigation wells.

ST. PAT'S STORM HITS SOUTH, PLAINS WITH TWISTERS, SNOW

By United Press International

A brawny St. Patrick's Day storm Wednesday belted the South with house-busting tornadoes and lashed the Middle West with crippling, near-blizzard snows.

A tornado ripped a four-city metropolitan area in northwest Alabama, injuring at least 22 persons and destroying more than 40 homes. Another twister lifted the roof off an elementary school in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., but 700 children escaped injury.

In the Midwest, 8 to 16-inch snows and towering drifts blocked or snarled travel. A blizzard raged in the Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota, and hundreds of schools closed in Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan.

Almost Isolated

A 16-inch snowfall piled atop 23 inches already on the ground at St. Cloud, Minn., and the central Minnesota city was almost isolated in drifts up to 8 feet deep.

Snow plows had to give up in many sections of central and southwestern Minnesota. The North Dakota Highway Department turned back motorists who tried to travel out of Fargo.

Twisters cut swaths of destruction through Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee. They left 100 homeless in Alabama.

One tornado struck Tuscumbia, Ala., then knifed into Sheffield and Muscle Shoals. In addition to at least 40 homes destroyed, dozens of other homes and buildings were damaged.

Sixteen persons were taken to Colbert County Hospital in Sheffield. Several persons were injured in rural areas of Mississippi.

Twister Cuts Power

The twister knocked out power in Tuscumbia, Sheffield, Muscle Shoals and Florence, Ala. The Sheffield Hospital was put on emergency power to keep its operating room going. The high winds triggered at least three fires.

A weather observer reported a small tornado damaged farmsteads, trees and lines near Lebanon, Tenn. High winds unroofed a house, overturned several trucks and damaged the Effingham County Fairgrounds at Altamont, Ill.

Thousands of Chicago suburban homes and several thousand in Rockford, Ill., were left without power for hours by line and substation failures blamed on the storm.

No Green Line

There was so much slush in Chicago's Loop that workmen couldn't paint the traditional green line down the center of State Street but the St. Patrick's Day parade was held as planned.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, was isolated. Snow plows and police patrol cars were pulled off the street.

At least four school buses were stranded in rural areas around Fort Dodge and the pupils and drivers were forced to seek shelter Wednesday night in farm houses

Farm House Destroyed By Raging Blaze

A raging, wind-fanned fire which destroyed a farm house and several farm buildings was still burning though apparently under control, about two miles west of Lincoln on A St., early Thursday morning

It was believed the house was unoccupied though rural firemen who were fighting the blaze did not know early Thursday who owned the farm buildings.

Flames from the fire reached an estimated seventy-five feet into the sky. Burning fragments of wood, weeds, and trees were being blown several hundred feet from the fire and firemen feared they might start other fires.

Cause of the fire was unknown

Patricia Neal Is Released After Stroke Recovery

Los Angeles (AP)—Academy Award winning actress Patricia Neal, the victim of two strokes Feb. 17, was discharged from the UCLA Medical Center Wednesday night.

Only a day earlier Miss Neal was removed from the hospital's intensive care unit for the first time since the onset of her illness.

A hospital spokesman said the actress was conscious and able to speak.

There was no immediate word on where she was taken after she left the hospital, but it was presumed she went to her home.

Miss Neal, 39, underwent brain surgery after being hospitalized. She was stricken after her first day of work on a new film, which she had come here from England to undertake. She has since been replaced.

Farm House Destroyed By Raging Blaze

A raging, wind-fanned fire which destroyed a farm house and several farm buildings was still burning though apparently under control, about two miles west of Lincoln on A St., early Thursday morning.

It was believed the house was unoccupied though rural firemen who were fighting the blaze did not know early Thursday who owned the farm buildings.

Flames from the fire reached an estimated seventy-five feet into the sky. Burning fragments of wood, weeds, and trees were being blown several hundred feet from the fire and firemen feared they might start other fires.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

Patricia Neal Is Released After Stroke Recovery

Los Angeles (AP)—Academy Award winning actress Patricia Neal, the victim of two strokes Feb. 17, was discharged from the UCLA Medical Center Wednesday night.

Only a day earlier Miss Neal was removed from the hospital's intensive care unit for the first time since the onset of her illness.

A hospital spokesman said the actress was conscious and able to speak.

There was no immediate word on where she was taken after she left the hospital, but it was presumed she went to her home.

Miss Neal, 39, underwent brain surgery after being hospitalized. She was stricken after her first day of work on a new film, which she had come here from England to undertake. She has since been replaced.

Widow Burns Herself

. . . AS PROTEST

Detroit (UPI) — An elderly widow turned herself into a human torch on a busy street corner, leaving a lengthy note saying she had "chosen the flaming death of the Buddhists" as a protest to American policies in Viet Nam.

Mrs. Alice Herz, who fled Nazi Germany in 1933, was in critical condition in a receiving hospital with burns over the upper part of her body.

Police said she doused herself with an inflammable liquid and struck a match as horrified shoppers looked on.

In her purse was a carbon copy of a note addressed to U Thant, secretary general of the United Nations. In the note, Mrs. Herz castigated President Johnson and former Presidents Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy and Harry Truman for "deceiving and misguiding" the American public.

She said Johnson had the power "to wipe out, if necessary, whole countries of his own choosing." She told U Thant it was his responsibility to determine "that this will be a good world for all of us to live in."

In the note, Mrs. Herz said the "flaming death" was the best method she knew of to "make myself heard."

At the hospital, Mrs. Herz was unable to speak, but did communicate with officials by nodding her head in answer to questions. She indicated she set fire to herself in hopes she would die.

Fire Lt. William Budow said Mrs. Herz told him she "did it to protest arms races all over the world. I wanted to do it like the Buddhist monks in Viet Nam." Her daughter, Helga, said her mother had given no intention of her desire to commit suicide.

Lost Boy Gives Police Bad Time

Dallas (UPI)—He had at least five aliases when the police brought him in, and he raised such an almighty rumpus at headquarters that it took four officers to handle him.

Under questioning, he would not crack. Taken to the spot where he was picked up, he refused to identify the home he had broken out of. Or maybe he couldn't.

He was just 2 years old, red-haired, sleepy and obviously ready for bed in his gaily colored pajamas.

He said yes to the names the police tried on him.

Patrolmen C. W. Franklin and D. C. Smith turned him over to Policewomen Jane Chabot and Mildred Reeves.

He raised the roof for a while, but finally calmed down. He happily took a carton of chocolate milk.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Abrams, awoke to find him missing. His mother had last checked him in bed at 2:30 a.m. Apparently he woke up, got that old itchy-footed feeling and lit out. He made five blocks before he settled down on the sidewalk for a nap.

Turned out his name was Paul.

His explanation for the whole thing: "My car ran into a ditch."

St. Patrick Fete Dulled In Ireland

Dublin (AP)—The Irish showed off everything from sausages to pretty girls in their St. Patrick's Day parade Wednesday but it was the Americans that got the cheers.

The only shouts from the spectators along O'Connell St. was for a 137-strong marching unit from Jersey City, N.J., headed by Mayor James T. Whelan.

Fourteen bands blared and thousands watched from the sidelines as the Irish feted their patron saint with the most elaborate St. Patrick's Day parade ever staged here.

Curiously Subdued

But the Emerald Isle seemed curiously subdued. Dozens of elaborate floats depicting the nation's products including sausages, fish and milk, passed in almost total silence. Even smartly dressed colleens sporting shamrocks — the emblem of the country — raised no great enthusiasm.

Perhaps the livelier ones had made their exit earlier for the 20-mile Dublin-Bray walk which for the past three years has been a St. Patrick's Day feature. The marathon's 10,000 entrants was the biggest yet and the rules were the same—the first 50 to reach Bray got a free lunch.

National Campaign

When the celebrating ends, Ireland gets down to a national campaign for the April 7 balloting that some regard as the most crucial since the free state was formed 33 years ago.

Prime Minister Sean Lemass, who is seeking a third term, expressed hope in a message to Irishmen everywhere that national unity was approaching and that the old enmities were dying. He called attention to talks that have opened between the Roman Catholic southern republic and the six counties of the Protestant north, which are still tied to Britain.

Boy, Cousin Found Alive In Wreck

Bakersfield, Calif. (AP) — "We flew into clouds and got upside down . . .

"I knew we were going to crash so I buckled my seat belt real tight and hung on.

"There was a tremendous pressure sucking us down . . . just pushing me into my seat . . .

"We hit a tree, we hit a hill—and then we hit a rock."

Boy's Description

Thus an 11-year-old boy described a plane crash Sunday that killed the pilot and left him and a companion stranded for 48 hours in a snowy mountain canyon.

The three and David's father, Paul, 37, flew from Fresno to Phoenix, Ariz., so the father could attend an insurance seminar. David was just along for the ride.

A ground party brought them to a hospital. David was treated for two broken legs, cuts, bruises and possible internal injuries.

The four-place airplane crashed on 7,155-foot Tecuya Mountain, 35 miles to the south. Harvey Branch, 50, a Fresno, Calif., insurance executive, died instantly, crushed in the pilot's seat.

Kept Boy Warm

David crawled into the baggage compartment, about 18 inches by 4 feet, to take shelter. During two sub-freezing nights Richard lay atop him to keep the boy warm—his feet sticking outside. That's how he suffered frost bite.

Richard went out once to try to find water but was so weak he had trouble getting back in. The boy told him repeatedly, "Come on. You can do it. You can do it." Richard finally made it.

The two chewed snow for moisture.

On the return trip, Branch radioed that he was lost in a storm over the Tehachapi Mountains, having engine trouble and running out of gas. The plane came down in a snow-choked canyon at the 6,800-foot elevation. One wing, ripped off, lay near the wreck.

Rescuers found Richard Fansler, Fresno hatchery owner, lying on rocks, partly under the severed wing. He had staggered out to try to signal search planes, and collapsed.

"Thank God you're here," he said.

Class President

The boy's mother, Patricia, a former Miss California, told him that his sixth grade class on Monday, while the search was underway, elected him its president.

Students at St. Anthony's School in Fresno, which David attends, will have a holiday Friday as a reward, said Msgr. Patrick V. Flood, "for praying so hard" for David's safety.

"And the prayers were answered," Msgr. Flood added.

Find Remains Of Unknown Civilization

Mexico City (UPI) — An American anthropologist says he has discovered evidence of a previously unknown civilization that developed in southern Mexico 1,500 years ago.

John Paddock, chairman of the anthropology department of the University of the Americas in Mexico City, said the civilization flourished in southern Puebla and northern Oaxaca states between 500 and 1000 A.D.

He identified it as a separate civilization by difference in pottery styles and stonework.

He named the civilization the Nuine, which means "hot land" in the Mixteca Indian tongue. Excavations in the area would be important, he said, but there are none being carried out now.

Library Plan Uses $1,023,296 In Year

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Ten projects in the Nebraska plan to strengthen and expand public libraries for regional service will have expended $1,023,296 during the 1964-65 fiscal year ending July 30.

Louise A. Nixon, executive secretary of the Nebraska Public Library Commission, said federal funds total $253,132 with state funds of $71,000.

Local expenditures of libraries, involved in the project, are $696,264. This represents their regular budgets.

Miss Nixon said the state qualifies for the federal allocation (based on population) by using current expenditures of the state commission and local libraries.

She said the Nebraska plan "continues 'on-going' demonstrations and establishes new ones in areas to provide new services aimed at assisting public libraries to strengthen and expand their services."

16 of 20 Cooperate

Sixteen of 20 regions under the state plan are now cooperating in activities leading to regional library service.

Miss Nixon said expenditures in the 10 projects involve salaries, $528,597; books, $202,254; new equipment, including book mobiles), $84,340, and other operating expenses, $198,107.

There are five bookmobiles operating in the state with one planned for the Valentine area and a replacement for the Sidney unit this year.

Four counties and five cities are cooperating in an experimental "rapid communications project," she said.

Teleprinter Tie

Using a TWX teleprinter tie between the cooperating points, a book can be located and dispatched to the requesting library on overnight delivery service.

Involved are the counties of Adams, Hall, Lancaster and Phelps and the cities of Beatrice, Columbus, Norfolk, North Platte and Scottsbluff.

The regional library demonstration projects and service area include:

—Sidney Public Library to Cheyenne and Kimabll Counties.

—Scottsbluff Public Library to Sioux and Scotts Bluff Counties; Broken Bow library to Custer County; Pender library to Thurston County.

Snow Work Has Cost City $98,000 So Far

This winter's three heavy snowstorms have cost the city $98,140 in snow removal work so far, according to Acting Director of Public Works Robert Obering.

In a report to the mayor, Obering said that snow was removed or cleared from 110 miles of arterials and 390 miles of residential streets three times during the month of February.

Snow was completely removed in the downtown area and all commercial or suburban business areas, he said, adding that most of the snow was hauled and dumped on vacant city land near Oak Lake Park.

First Cost $59,214

Obering reported that the first, record-breaking snow cost $59,214, including salaries, paving supplies and maintenance, rental costs and road department equipment up-keep.

The second and third snows cost $38,925.

He said that equipment was rented from 17 different contractors and truckers. Equipment was also used from five city divisions and the road department hired additional snow shovelers and relief truck drivers.

Obering recommended that the road department continue its usual routine operation and if later in the fiscal year the budget gets into the red, a request can be made to the City Council to transfer funds from the general fund to continue operation until Sept. 1.

Sound Condition

He said the road department budget seems to be in sound condition at this time, with the unencumbered balance at the halfway point in the fiscal year at $197,194.60.

Case Against Sheriff's Son Goes To Jury

O'Neill (AP)—A breaking and entering case against the Holt County sheriff's teenage son went to a jury of six men and six women Wednesday afternoon.

Terry Tomjack, who will be 19 Sunday, was accused of taking $5 from the county clerk's office the night of Dec. 4 and the other sums from the office and the office of the register of deeds at other times.

The youth testified he took the money to make trouble for his parents, Sheriff and Mrs. Leo Tomjack, and for his inlaws.

Referring to the sheriff, young Tomjack said he wanted "to beat him out of his job."

The youth's attorney, Vincent Kirby of Battle Creek, said Terry had grown up in the courthouse where his family had quarters on the top floor and that he had a key to the county offices. In view of that, the attorney argued he was not guilty of breaking and entering.

Sonic Booms To Shake Canada Line Residents

Montreal (AP)—The Defense Department's Quebec command has warned residents along the U.S. border from Lake Ontario to the Canadian maritime provinces that they may be awakened early Friday by "disturbing but harmless high altitude sonic booms."

The noise will be from a joint exercise by planes of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) and the U.S. Strategic Air Command (SAC).

Legalize Contracts

Des Moines (AP) — A controversial bill to legalize union shop contracts and set up a state conciliation and mediation service to help settle labor disputes was voted out of committees in both houses of the Iowa legislature.

Fire, Area Limitations Eyed By Building Code Committee

The Lincoln Building Code Study Committee has decided to bring the city's code "up to standard" in the area of area limitations and the fire resistance limits of building materials

The committee met Wednesday afternoon, and after a hard look at other model codes, decided that Lincoln's code had basically good elements except that it sets a square foot floor area limitation which cannot be exceeded unless certain standards of fire resistance are met.

City Superintendent of Inspections Charles Seale said that the study committee agreed that it could recommend a code that would allow floor areas to exceed square footage limits if acceptable fire resistance standards are complied with.

New techniques and a higher quality of building materials will allow this with no detriment to public safety, Seale said

He emphasized that the committee would study the matter further and possibly include all types of buildings in the city under the new code revision before making recommendations for City Council action.

The study committee's work in this area was prompted in part by the failure of the new Lincoln General Hospital's plans to meet present code regulations.

Seale said that the committee felt that a code revision should not be drawn up to fit just one class of buildings, or one specific need.

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Ten projects in the Nebraska plan to strengthen and expand public libraries for regional service will have expended $1,023,296 during the 1964-65 fiscal year ending July 30.

Louise A. Nixon, executive secretary of the Nebraska Public Library Commission, said federal funds total $253,132 with state funds of $71,900.

Local expenditures of libraries, involved in the project, are $698,264. This represents their regular budgets.

Miss Nixon said the state qualifies for the federal allocation (based on population) by using current expenditures of the state commission and local libraries.

She said the Nebraska plan "continues 'on-going' demonstrations and establishes new ones in areas to provide new services aimed at assisting public libraries to strengthen and expand their services."

16 of 20 Cooperate

Sixteen of 20 regions under the state plan are now cooperating in activities leading to regional library service.

Miss Nixon said expenditures in the 10 projects involve salaries, $528,597; books, $202,254; new equipment, including book mobiles), $84,340, and other operating expenses, $198,107.

There are five bookmobiles operating in the state with one planned for the Valentine area and a replacement for the Sidney unit this year.

Four counties and five cities are cooperating in an experimental "rapid communications project," she said.

Teleprinter Tie

Using a TWX teleprinter tie between the cooperating points, a book can be located and dispatched to the requesting library on overnight delivery service.

Involved are the counties of Adams, Hall, Lancaster and Phelps and the cities of Beatrice, Columbus, Norfolk, North Platte and Scottsbluff.

—Lower Sandhills Regional Library for Thomas, Blaine and southwestern Cherry counties.

—Sidney Public Library to Cheyenne and Kimabll Counties.

Snow Work Has Cost City $98,000 So Far

This winter's three heavy snowstorms have cost the city $98,140 in snow removal work so far, according to Acting Director of Public Works Robert Obering.

In a report to the mayor, Obering said that snow was removed or cleared from 110 miles of arterials and 390 miles of residential streets three times during the month of February.

Snow was completely removed in the downtown area and all commercial or suburban business areas, he said, adding that most of the snow was hauled and dumped on vacant city land near Oak Lake Park.

First Cost $59,214

Obering reported that the first, record-breaking snow cost $59,214, including salaries, paving supplies and maintenance, rental costs and road department equipment up-keep.

The second and third snows cost $38,925.

He said that equipment was rented from 17 different contractors and truckers. Equipment was also used from five city divisions and the road department hired additional snow shovelers and relief truck drivers.

Obering recommended that the road department continue its usual routine operation and if later in the fiscal year the budget gets into the red, a request can be made to the City Council to transfer funds from the general fund to continue operation until Sept. 1.

Sound Condition

He said the road department budget seems to be in sound condition at this time, with the unencumbered balance at the halfway point in the fiscal year at $197,194.60.

Case Against Sheriff's Son Goes To Jury

O'Neill (AP)—A breaking and entering case against the Holt County sheriff's teenage son went to a jury of six men and six women Wednesday afternoon.

Terry Tomjack, who will be 19 Sunday, was accused of taking $5 from the county clerk's office the night of Dec. 4 and the other sums from the office and the office of the register of deeds at other times.

The youth testified he took the money to make trouble for his parents, Sheriff and Mrs. Leo Tomjack, and for his inlaws.

Referring to the sheriff, young Tomjack said he wanted "to beat him out of his job."

The youth's attorney, Vincent Kirby of Battle Creek, said Terry had grown up in the courthouse where his family had quarters on the top floor and that he had a key to the county offices. In view of that, the attorney argued he was not guilty of breaking and entering.

City Coming And Going

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It has been a somewhat hectic week so far at the City Hall. Getting things off to a bad start was the renewed application for transfer of an off-sale liquor license to 13th and South from a present downtown location. The heat was generated in this case when counsel for the liquor licensee gave the city the impression that he felt there was some hanky-panky going on in connection with the affair.

He intimated that permission for one licensee to move to South Street and denial of a second such request indicated the some kind of "deal" had been made somewhere along the way.

Accusation Of 'Deal'

If there is one thing Mayor Dean Petersen is quick to fire at, it is any insinuation of dishonesty. His short temper on this subject is very understandable and the suspicions of some people along these lines never cease to amaze us. At a luncheon meeting recently, one member of the group questioned the honesty of the planning department in regard to zoning matters.

Zoning and related things such as the location of beer and liquor licenses have always been a favorite target of the mud-slingers. There are some things with which we disagree that the city does but to imply that our way does not prevail because of dishonesty on the part of public officials would be stooping to a new low.

The liquor licensee counsel who inferred something crooked in connection with his case owes the city an apology but he probably will not give one. The fact is that Lincoln has had as clean local government as it is possible to have. There is not even a single case of minor favoritism that has ever been proved against the city, much less a case of payoffs.

People who talk of dishonesty in city government just don't know what they are talking about. The worst thing that has ever happened here was a little parking ticket fixing many years ago and even that has been thoroughly eliminated for a long time now. The mayor, himself, couldn't get out of a parking ticket if he got one. Furthermore, he wouldn't try because he is a man of great integrity. He and the City Council may or may not be right in regard to the location of a liquor license at 13th and South but their position is based on conviction, not some loose shady deal under the table. It is such kind of dirty talk as that which gives politics and government the bad image they have with some people.

The city is not perfect but show us a business or industry in the private sector of the economy that is. There are some lazy people working for the city and there are some who do a poor job. Some are poor in their public relations and there are some, perhaps, who are not the most honest people in the world. But the vast majority of city employes are as capable and loyal and hard working as you will find anywhere. And when it comes to efficiency, it would take a far better than average private business to beat the city government. For every tax dollar that is wasted, it is a safe bet that there are five thrown away in private business and industry.

The same thing applies to the ridiculous talk that is heard from time to time in regard to geographic favoritism. The order of performance for city services and facilities hasn't a thing to do with geography. Where the snow plows work, the radar is set up, the streets are fixed, the swimming pools are built, the parks provided—all these things are done according to the best thinking of which public officials are capable.

Where is the greatest demand, where is the greatest need—these are the questions which settle matters of city spending. Not a single city project, even down to sweeping the streets, gets any points for being north or south of O Street, east or west of 27th.

When President Johnson spoke the other night about federal voting registrars being sent into southern cities, he said that there is one simple way to avoid this. The way, he said, was for the cities to fairly register all voters themselves. For those who want to take issue with the statements found here, there is one simple and sure-fire way of doing so—prove it. Otherwise, that kind of talk ought to stop because it tears away at the foundations of the city and stops the community's progress. It takes pride, confidence and unity for 125,000 people to accomplish things together.

The Unified Approach

When these people are split into many parts and are motivated by jealousy, suspicion and narrow parochialism, nothing constructive can be accomplished. And it is a real misfortune when this kind of division and attitude are so unfounded as they are here in Lincoln.

"We Don't Want Any Outside Agitators"

Changing The Charter

It was sound advice delivered to the City Charter Revision Committee by University of Nebraska Vice Chancellor Adam Breckenridge. Dr. Breckenridge has a formidable history in political science and did considerable work with the city's last charter revision committee.

He cautioned the committee in two directions—against too much control over city government and against the splintering of local government. Both of these are admonitions that will be well worth committee consideration as it attempts to work out a modern document for Lincoln.

It is beyond reason to expect a government to perform as its citizens demand when it is tied down with a host of limitations. A government cannot be expected to act in one minute while denied the power to act in another.

Yet, this kind of dilemma is often presented when those who frame a charter get carried away with thoughts for protection of the people. Protection of the people is to be provided in certain fundamental areas and principles and in the right to vote, including the initiative and referendum. But to tie a government's hands to excess is not to protect the public, but to deny them the political tool they must have

Splitting of government is another general evil to be avoided. Keeping all municipal operations under a single administration permits maximum efficiency and maximum exposure. When authority and responsibility are divided, the public becomes confused and efforts often find themselves at odds rather than in harmony. The job of the committee is not an easy one but its task will be made easier if it sets and lives by appropriate guidelines.

Iowa Action Helps

The Iowa Senate has done the people of Nebraska a favor in its passage of Interstate billboard control legislation. The control law now moves into the House where approval is expected.

Nebraska now has such a law but it has been under heavy attack from various interests. One argument used against the Nebraska measure was the lack of control on the part of surrounding states. The Iowa action definitely weakens this argument and gives the people of Nebraska a little better chance of keeping their law.

The attack against the Nebraska law has been foxed up so that the state would make about as much money with its own control law as it would through extra highway funds from Uncle Sam as a result of a federal control law. This, however, has to do with only a secondary consideration.

The fact that the federal government pays a bonus for having a federal control law is just a little extra frosting. The thing that counts is that the billboard business along the Interstate is adequately controlled.

It would be adequately controlled if we keep the law we have, patterned on federal standards. If we shift to purely state control, we will immediately weaken the situation and open the door to future relaxations that will ultimately mean no control at all. It is hoped the Nebraska Legislature sticks to its guns and keeps the control bill we now have on the books.

All Eyes On Vermont

There is nothing going on right now out here in the middle of the country that could be classed as an interesting natural event.

It is bargain sale time for weather. Winter is dumping its last remnants, its odds and ends, a 20 minute blizzard, a high wind that is going nowhere, a little snow, a little mud. Now and then a warm spring day edges in to issue a premature declaration of independence. It all adds up to nothing weather

In Vermont it is different There is excitement in that cold, snowbound region. The sugar maples are beginning to run sap and the annual harvest of maple syrup and maple sugar is on full tilt. In every clearing there is a shack giving off clouds of steam. And Americans fortunate to get a quart or so of the real thing can look forward to another year of fine pancake eating.

There is still snow on the ground where the maple trees grow because Vermont has professional winters. But a warming trend has reminded the trees there is work to do and they have begun to do it.

Gathering maple sap and boiling it down into syrup did not originate in the United States, but the practice has been with us since the beginning. Long gone French missionaries introduced sap gathering and boiling. They taught the early settlers which trees to tap and how to do it. It was probably our first commercial industry.

The sugar sap is the first from the roots and flows only a relatively short time—four weeks they estimate this year because of a dry season. After the trees have leafed out the sugar in the sap disappears.

It takes 35 gallons of sap to produce one gallon of grade A amber syrup. Maple sugar is the boil down of what is left. Kings, tycoons and people with Vermont connections get the very best. The rest of us survive on poorer fare.

Banks Control 74 Corporations

WASHINGTON—The House Antimonopoly Subcommittee is sitting on a keg of economic dynamite which Wall Street isn't going to like a bit.

It's a staff report showing how directors appointed by banks and insurance companies sit on the board of big American corporations in such a way that they control 74 of the nation's largest corporations.

The Morgan Guaranty Company and Lehman Brothers rate among the highest in putting key men on the boards of powerful corporations, though even more powerful is American Telephone and Telegraph.

The committee report, so far unpublished, says of American Tel and Tel:

"The giant among American corporations in terms of both assets and profits, AT&T, was extensively interlocked with other corporations that were not subsidiary to it or to members of the Bell System

"The 18 directors of AT&T participated in the managements of 18 banks and financial institutions, 16 insurance companies, and 58 industrial-commercial corporations. All told, there were 104 corporate interlocks between the directors and officers of AT&T and other corporations."

The Clayton Act in 1914 prohibited interlocking directors. However, the antimonopoly subcommittee report show that of 13 complaints before the Federal Trade Commission, all but one were dismissed without disciplinary action. The committee staff proposes a fine of $1,000,000 against any corporation which permits an officer or director to serve with more than one corporation.

Women Catch More Colds; Frustration Is The Cause

NEW YORK—As every red-blooded, red-nosed American woman possibly has suspected, females suffer through twice as many colds each year as men.

It seems to be our legacy, girls. Drip-dry clothes. Drip-wet nose.

The reason for this natural affront against the lady sex would seem, on the surface, to be obvious: The kids catch cold at school, bring them home carefully, and implant them on mother's cheek — from whence they traverse through the nostrils.

But a psychiatrist today says—please don't blame the children!

It is your frustrations, dear lady, and your inhibitions which make you common, cold-wise. "Women are so much inhibited and frustrated than men in our society," says Dr. Katharine Hain. "They hold their emotions in check much more than do men—it is not ladylike to blow off steam, especially in front of the children or the neighbors. Colds, psychosomatic ones, quickly follow."

Dr. Hain also points out that women's clothing habits contribute to their excessive vulnerability. Most women dress stupidly in cold weather, says she. They may wear fur coats, bundle up their heads—and yet remain virtually naked, leg and foot. "This subjects their vascular systems to a workout that men are spared."

The lady doctor, who happens to be Director of Medical Services for Coricidin, says there's not much you can do for a cold.

"There's no prevention and no cure. All you can do is plenty of fluids—liquor, by the way, does nothing for a cold except to keep the spirits up—and take whatever remedy will make you feel better." Dr. Hain recommends antihistamines, of course, but she could be prejudiced.

The best way to avoid catching cold is to be an overweight man. "If your weight is normal or under, your chances of catching cold are greater than if you're overweight." (But, of course if you're overweight you're susceptible to far greater physical dangers than the cold. And people will think you look awful in your new suit!)

Dr. Hain says that, if you can't be a man and you can't be overweight, the next best way to avoid colds is to live in the South—where your chances of a runny nose are four times less than those who live in the Northeast, for example.

And stay happy.

"Happiness, if you can achieve it, is the greatest preventive of all against the more than 100 different types of viruses that can cause a cold . . ."

A virus simply wouldn't think of living with one who's tickled pink!

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: What is gastritis? What causes it and what effect does it have on the system? Is it curable? What made me vomit blood? —A.B.

Molner

Gastritis is a rather loose word describing inflammation of the upper digestive tract. Strictly speaking, it means inflammation of the stomach lining. However, sometimes it is applied to most any old discomfort of the mid-section—gall bladder disease, constipation, gas and others.

An ulcer, not yet diagnosed but causing pain, burps, or nausea, might be called gastritis, and with fairly good reason, since the surrounding tissues will be inflamed.

Causes of gastritis? Tainted food, for one. Or sometimes poisons which may not be deadly but will inflame the stomach. Or some infection, including the ones we call intestinal flu.

Excessive use of alcohol is a notorious cause of gastritis. Too much highly-spiced foods can cause it, too.

With a temporary case, the stomach calms down and heals itself when given half a chance. The treatment, in general, is much like that for an ulcer: Bland food, no seasonings or spices, avoidance of alcohol, many times a vitamin supplement and sometimes a medication to neutralize stomach acid.

Probably the hardest cases to treat are those which have developed gradually over a period of many years of over eating, overdrinking, or excessive use of spicy condiments.

A healthy stomach may take the abuse for years or even decades before it begins to rebel. Then the patient is inclined to refuse to follow the treatment, outlined above, with such arguments as, "I've been drinking whisky for 30 years and I never had any trouble—that can't be the reason." So he takes his pills and vitamins and does everything EXCEPT stop doing what really caused his gastritis.

The sudden and acute cases of gastritis, from tainted food or toxic materials, are usually quickly cleared up. Those that took years to develop require some time to correct.

If the inflamed surfaces of the stomach become sore and raw enough, naturally they can bleed.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is a painter who works in a tuberculosis sanitarium. He is afraid he will catch TB there and give it to our baby. Is there any danger?—E.L.C.

There's virtually no danger. First, close and relatively prolonged contact is necessary to transmit the disese in most cases. Second, in the sanitariums with which I am familiar, and this includes a number of them, employes actually are safer than the average citizen, because it is the practice to see that everyone has regular chest X-rays and patients have been instructed to muffle their coughs.

I've known skilled craftsmen (including painters) who have worked in such sanitariums for 20 and 30 years in perfect safety so far as TB goes.

Note to Mrs. E. T.: Naturally second-hand clothes should be cleaned or washed before use. However, the possibility of transmitting contagious virus diseases through clothing, or through books, is very remote, because viruses are destroyed quickly by exposure to sunlight, or to dryness for a short time.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will severe scarlet fever in childhood cause insanity? —J.C.

No, that's another old wives' tale.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a lesion on the side of my nose about two inches from my eye. It won't heal and I've had it for two years. I have not consulted a doctor because it never caused any pain, but it bleeds when I unconsciously scratch it at night. If it is cancer, is it too late to have it treated? What kind of a doctor should I consult?—M.V.

It probably is NOT too late to have it treated, even if it is cancer, but when a lesion doesn't heal in two weeks (not two years) it's time to have it checked. That's the insidious thing about early cancer; it ISN'T painful.

A dermatologist is the logical specialist.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes syringomyelia? Is there a cure? —R.R.M.

The cause is not known, but it is thought to be a congenital defect of cells in the spinal cord. (Cavities occur in the spinal tissues.) There is no specific treatment, but the disorder may go on for 10 to 30 years with varying intervals during which it remains static. In severe cases, infections usually complicate the condition, so treatment to subdue them is naturally important.

Dr Molner is delighted to receive letters from his readers but regrets that because of the great number received daily he cannot answer them individually. Whenever possible, Dr Molner uses readers' questions in his column.

Crete Problem

Hallam, Neb.

We read in the February 18 issue of The Crete News that a prominent businessman said that four-letter words are all that those farmers can understand. Since no correction or apology has been published, we feel his insulting remarks were very patois to the farmers who do their banking transactions and trading in Crete. Too bad he didn't realize that the farmers he dubbed stupid were once students attending and graduating from Crete and parents now sending their children there to be educated.

It's strange Crete suddenly opened their doors to high school students when they found themselves hemmed in by the Wilber and Dorchester reorganization plans. Three cheers for Wilber and Dorchester and more power to them!

As far as we're concerned, Crete could have kept its closed-door policy in force forever. The modified plan was stale and poor bait as it didn't hook any suckers. They should first pay their debts instead of paying for lawsuits of Lancaster County residents.

When Crete closed its doors four years ago, the stupid farmers became angry at their neighbors, relatives and county superintendent instead of the Crete school board that wanted their property for taxation with no concern for education, at all.

If there are such brilliant people in Crete, why is there such a huge debt?

Each farmer here in the two disputed Lancaster County districts had his chance to join the Crete district in May, 1963, but none did. Not even the church-goers who advocated that Crete's high school was the best and only high school they knew of. They chose rather to take their neighbors to court, disregarding their Bible that says to love thy neighbor as thyself.

It's far better to send our children elsewhere to high schools that are not overcrowded and just as good and not have to panic and live in constant fear of their being kicked out of school. We don't trust Crete, any more, after all they did to us. One can never know what scheme they will come up with next.

BEING SUED

Crete, Neb.

On March 10, "Four-Letter Farmer" presented one side of Crete's reorganization problems. It was an unfortunate affair from the start, but so have been reorganization efforts of many other towns. Reorganization of schools has made more enemies among prople than can be imagined by those not concerned!

Wilber and Dorchester schools welcomed any and all pupils, which was to their advantage and did help the roused farm people. Today Wilber is reorganizing, too. They are taking in a huge area and if successful should have a good school. This school will first have to be built and then, to get these children in, will have to provide many buses for transportation. If costs are one of the objections to Crete, they will be there for any school having to enlarge.

In a neighborhood where the majority of school patrons are for one school, life can be made so miserable for the minority that they will be afraid to say what they prefer. This, in a free country!

The Wilber district as planned will come to Crete's door. Years from now, when the children and grandchildren of the close-by residents have forgotten what all the fuss was about, they will wonder why they are going to school that far away when there is one so close. Surely hate and resentment will not be fed to children for several generations. Without hate and with common sense, many of these problems should cease to exist. All of us who are so concerned today will be leaving the job of running the schools and everything else to future generations They will have plenty to solve without leaving to them more school problems. We should take a good hard look at what we really want the end result to be

Where's George?

Lincoln, Neb.

A study of the returns of the past presidential election clearly shows the drift of today's world and the trend of human interest in events as they arise. It is not enough to want to maintain the status quo. That is the course of a complacent people and can lead only to frustration and disappointment. It assumes a "let George do it" complex and in the end, George never shows up.

Why not wake up to the fact that everybody must pitch in and do the necessary enlightening that needs to be done? No matter how little, if it throws any light on true efforts for positive results, it is not useless. Too much effort is wasted on trivial matters, and they in the end lead to distrust and misunderstanding.

City Coming And Going

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It has been a somewhat hectic week so far at the City Hall. Getting things off to a bad start was the renewed application for transfer of an off-sale liquor license to 13th and South from a present downtown location. The heat was generated in this case when counsel for the liquor licensee gave the city the impression that he felt there was some hanky-panky going on in connection with the affair.

He intimated that permission for one licensee to move to South Street and denial of a second such request indicated the some kind of "deal" had been made somewhere along the way.

Accusation Of 'Deal'

If there is one thing Mayor Dean Petersen is quick to fire at, it is any insinuation of dishonesty. His short temper on this subject is very understandable and the suspicions of some people along these lines never cease to amaze us. At a luncheon meeting recently, one member of the group questioned the honesty of the planning department in regard to zoning matters.

Zoning and related things such as the location of beer and liquor licenses have always been a favorite target of the mud-slingers. There are some things with which we disagree that the city does but to imply that our way does not prevail because of dishonesty on the part of public officials would be stooping to a new low.

The liquor licensee counsel who inferred something crooked in connection with his case owes the city an apology but he probably will not give one. The fact is that Lincoln has had as clean local government as it is possible to have. There is not even a single case of minor favoritism that has ever been proved against the city, much less a case of payoffs.

People who talk of dishonesty in city government just don't know what they are talking about. The worst thing that has ever happened here was a little parking ticket fixing many years ago and even that has been thoroughly eliminated for a long time now. The mayor, himself, couldn't get out of a parking ticket if he got one. Furthermore, he wouldn't try because he is a man of great integrity. He and the City Council may or may not be right in regard to the location of a liquor license at 13th and South but their position is based on conviction, not some loose shady deal under the table. It is such kind of dirty talk as that which gives politics and government the bad image they have with some people.

The city is not perfect but show us a business or industry in the private sector of the economy that is. There are some lazy people working for the city and there are some who do a poor job. Some are poor in their public relations and there are some, perhaps, who are not the most honest people in the world. But the vast majority of city employes are as capable and loyal and hard working as you will find anywhere. And when it comes to efficiency, it would take a far better than average private business to beat the city government. For every tax dollar that is wasted, it is a safe bet that there are five thrown away in private business and industry.

The same thing applies to the ridiculous talk that is heard from time to time in regard to geographic favoritism. The order of performance for city services and facilities hasn't a thing to do with geography. Where the snow plows work, the radar is set up, the streets are fixed, the swimming pools are built, the parks provided—all these things are done according to the best thinking of which public officials are capable.

Where is the greatest demand, where is the greatest need—these are the questions which settle matters of city spending. Not a single city project, even down to sweeping the streets, gets any points for being north or south of O Street, east or west of 27th.

When President Johnson spoke the other night about federal voting registrars being sent into southern cities, he said that there is one simple way to avoid this. The way, he said, was for the cities to fairly register all voters themselves. For those who want to take issue with the statements found here, there is one simple and sure-fire way of doing so—prove it. Otherwise, that kind of talk ought to stop because it tears away at the foundations of the city and stops the community's progress. It takes pride, confidence and unity for 125,000 people to accomplish things together.

The Unified Approach

When these people are split into many parts and are motivated by jealousy, suspicion and narrow parochialism, nothing constructive can be accomplished. And it is a real misfortune when this kind of division and attitude are so unfounded as they are here in Lincoln.

Banks Control 74 Corporations

WASHINGTON—The House Antimonopoly Subcommittee is sitting on a keg of economic dynamite which Wall Street isn't going to like a bit.

It's a staff report showing how directors appointed by banks and insurance companies sit on the board of big American corporations in such a way that they control 74 of the nation's largest corporations.

The Morgan Guaranty Company and Lehman Brothers rate among the highest in putting key men on the boards of powerful corporations, though even more powerful is American Telephone and Telegraph.

The committee report, so far unpublished, says of American Tel and Tel:

"The giant among American corporations in terms of both assets and profits, AT&T, was extensively interlocked with other corporations that were not subsidiary to it or to members of the Bell System.

"The 18 directors of AT&T participated in the managements of 18 banks and financial institutions, 16 insurance companies, and 58 industrial - commercial corporations. All told, there were 104 corporate interlocks between the directors and officers of AT&T and other corporations."

The Clayton Act in 1914 prohibited interlocking directors. However, the antimonopoly subcommittee report show that of 13 complaints before the Federal Trade Commission, all but one were dismissed without disciplinary action. The committee staff proposes a fine of $1,000,000 against any corporation which permits an officer or director to serve with more than one corporation.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: What is gastritis? What causes it and what effect does it have on the system? Is it curable? What made me vomit blood? —A.B.

Molner

Gastritis is a rather loose word describing inflammation of the upper digestive tract. Strictly speaking, it means inflammation of the stomach lining. However, sometimes it is applied to most any old discomfort of the mid-section—gall bladder disease, constipation, gas and others.

An ulcer, not yet diagnosed but causing pain, burps, or nausea, might be called gastritis, and with fairly good reason, since the surrounding tissues will be inflamed.

Causes of gastritis? Tainted food, for one. Or sometimes poisons which may not be deadly but will inflame the stomach. Or some infection, including the ones we call intestinal flu.

Excessive use of alcohol is a notorious cause of gastritis. Too much highly-spiced foods can cause it, too.

With a temporary case, the stomach calms down and heals itself when given half a chance. The treatment, in general, is much like that for an ulcer: Bland food, no seasonings or spices, avoidance of alcohol, many times a vitamin supplement and sometimes a medication to neutralize stomach acid.

Probably the hardest cases to treat are those which have developed gradually over a period of many years of over eating, overdrinking, or excessive use of spicy condiments.

A healthy stomach may take the abuse for years or even decades before it begins to rebel. Then the patient is inclined to refuse to follow the treatment, outlined above, with such arguments as, "I've been drinking whisky for 30 years and I never had any trouble—that can't be the reason." ARTHUR IMIG

Changing The Charter

It was sound advice delivered to the City Charter Revision Committee by University of Nebraska Vice Chancellor Adam Breckenridge. Dr. Breckenridge has a formidable history in political science and did considerable work with the city's last charter revision committee.

He cautioned the committee in two directions—against too much control over city government and against the splintering of local government. Both of these are admonitions that will be well worth committee consideration as it attempts to work out a modern document for Lincoln.

It is beyond reason to expect a government to perform as its citizens demand when it is tied down with a host of limitations. A government cannot be expected to act in one minute while denied the power to act in another.

Yet, this kind of dilemma is often presented when those who frame a charter get carried away with thoughts for protection of the people. Protection of the people is to be provided in certain fundamental areas and principles and in the right to vote, including the initiative and referendum. But to tie a government's hands to excess is not to protect the public, but to deny them the political tool they must have.

Splitting of government is another general evil to be avoided. Keeping all municipal operations under a single administration permits maximum efficiency and maximum exposure. When authority and responsibility are divided, the public becomes confused and efforts often find themselves at odds rather than in harmony. The job of the committee is not an easy one but its task will be made easier if it sets and lives by appropriate guidelines.

Iowa Action Helps

The Iowa Senate has done the people of Nebraska a favor in its passage of Interstate billboard control legislation. The control law now moves into the House where approval is expected.

Nebraska now has such a law but it has been under heavy attack from various interests. One argument used against the Nebraska measure was the lack of control on the part of surrounding states. The Iowa action definitely weakens this argument and gives the people of Nebraska a little better chance of keeping their law.

The attack against the Nebraska law has been foxed up so that the state would make about as much money with its own control law as it would through extra highway funds from Uncle Sam as a result of a federal control law. This, however, has to do with only a secondary consideration.

The fact that the federal government pays a bonus for having a federal control law is just a little extra frosting. The thing that counts is that the billboard business along the Interstate is adequately controlled.

It would be adequately controlled if we keep the law we have, patterned on federal standards. If we shift to purely state control, we will immediately weaken the situation and open the door to future relaxations that will ultimately mean no control at all. It is hoped the Nebraska Legislature sticks to its guns and keeps the control bill we now have on the books.

All Eyes On Vermont

There is nothing going on right now out here in the middle of the country that could be classed as an interesting natural event.

It is bargain sale time for weather. Winter is dumping its last remnants, its odds and ends, a 20 minute blizzard, a high wind that is going nowhere, a little snow, a little mud. Now and then a warm spring day edges in to issue a premature declaration of independence. It all adds up to nothing weather.

In Vermont it is different. There is excitement in that cold, snowbound region. The sugar maples are beginning to run sap and the annual harvest of maple syrup and maple sugar is on full tilt. In every clearing there is a shack giving off clouds of steam. And Americans fortunate to get a quart or so of the real thing can look forward to another year of fine pancake eating.

There is still snow on the ground where the maple trees grow because Vermont has professional winters. But a warming trend has reminded the trees there is work to do and they have begun to do it.

Gathering maple sap and boiling it down into syrup did not originate in the United States, but the practice has been with us since the beginning. Long gone French missionaries introduced sap gathering and boiling. They taught the early settlers which trees to tap and how to do it. It was probably our first commercial industry.

The sugar sap is the first from the roots and flows only a relatively short time—four weeks they estimate this year because of a dry season. After the trees have leafed out the sugar in the sap disappears.

It takes 35 gallons of sap to produce one gallon of grade A amber syrup. Maple sugar is the boil down of what is left. Kings, tycoons and people with Vermont connections get the very best. The rest of us survive on poorer fare.

Women Catch More Colds; Frustration Is The Cause

NEW YORK—As every red-blooded, red-nosed American woman possibly has suspected, females suffer through twice as many colds each year as men.

It seems to be our legacy, girls. Drip-dry clothes. Drip-wet nose.

The reason for this natural affront against the lady sex would seem, on the surface, to be obvious: The kids catch cold at school, bring them home carefully, and implant them on mother's cheek — from whence they traverse through the nostrils.

But a psychiatrist today says—please don't blame the children!

It is your frustrations, dear lady, and your inhibitions which make you common, cold-wise. "Women are so much inhibited and frustrated than men in our society," says Dr. Katharine Hain. "They hold their emotions in check much more than do men—it is not ladylike to blow off steam, especially in front of the children or the neighbors. Colds, psychosomatic ones, quickly follow."

Dr. Hain also points out that women's clothing habits contribute to their excessive vulnerability. Most women dress stupidly in cold weather, says she. They may wear fur coats, bundle up their heads—and yet remain virtually naked, leg and foot. "This subjects their vascular systems to a workout that men are spared."

The lady doctor, who happens to be Director of Medical Services for Coricidin, says there's not much you can do for a cold.

"There's no prevention and no cure. All you can do is plenty of fluids—liquor, by the way, does nothing for a cold except to keep the spirits up—and take whatever remedy will make you feel better." Dr. Hain recommends antihistamines, of course, but she could be prejudiced.

The best way to avoid catching cold is to be an overweight man. "If your weight is normal or under, your chances of catching cold are greater than if you're overweight." (But, of course if you're overweight you're susceptible to far greater physical dangers than the cold. And people will think you look awful in your new suit!)

Dr. Hain says that, if you can't be a man and you can't be overweight, the next best way to avoid colds is to live in the South—where your chances of a runny nose are four times less than those who live in the Northeast, for example.

And stay happy.

"Happiness, if you can achieve it, is the greatest preventive of all against the more than 100 different types of viruses that can cause a cold . . ."

A virus simply wouldn't think of living with one who's tickled pink!

Life Begins At 40:

Playing Autoharp Is Fun

By ROBERT PETERSON

Some time ago this column suggested that middle-agers learn to play a musical instrument—as a means of enlivening the years ahead and making the individual more popular and interesting person.

Quite a few folks have written saying they've tried but feel unable to master the intricacies of fingering and chord structure required in playing such instruments as the piano, violin and guitar.

Here's a letter from Mrs. Laura Huffer who says, "Folks who think they can never learn to play an instrument should get acquainted with the autoharp. It resembles a small harp or zither and you play it on your lap. What makes it so easy to play is that it has chord bars.

"Instead of having to remember chords and proper fingering, you just press the appropriate chord bar with one hand, while strumming or plucking the strings with the other. Chord symbols are printed on most sheet music and these tell you which bar to press.

"The autoharp makes simply beautiful music and anyone can play it—even folks with very crippled hands. It's especially fine for folk music and for accompanying yourself when humming or singing."

Never having seen an autoharp, I stopped at a music store yesterday to have a look and came away impressed. I'm not very adept at music-making and play the piano with bumbling success despite years of practice. But with this ingenious instrument you just press the chord bar and strum—and sit back incredulous at having produced such lovely, melodious sounds.

Professional musicians probably look with acute disdain on the autoharp, for it demands little skill on the part of the user. But it offers a source of musical satisfaction for those destined never to rise to the challenges presented by conventional musical instruments.

Where can you get autoharps and how much do they cost? They can be ordered at most music stores, and the most popular size is the 15-chord model at $39.

British theatrical producer Joan Littlewood was quoted recently as saying, "Leisure as it now stands is a terrible thing. Many people don't know what to do when they're not working.

"What cities need are great public leisure centers—sort of Disneylands with a Ph.D. — which would offer games and amusements as well as discussion groups, classes in arts and crafts, a chance to engage in sports and the opportunity of new contacts."

What Miss Littlewood is proposing is already being done in day centers for older people. While I've never heard them described as "Disneylands with a Ph.D." these centers in hundreds of cities offer, "games and amusements, as well as discussion groups, classes in arts and crafts, a chance to engage in sports and the opportunity of new contacts."

The essence of the late Dale Carnegie's book on winning friends was to show an interest in people. Apparently actress Katharine Hepburn, 55, read the book for she told an interviewer recently, "People make a great mistake in wanting to be madly fascinating all the time. The person who is really fascinating is the one who walks up and says, 'Tell me all about yourself.' That's the person you remember."

If you would like a booklet "65 Ways of Finding More Fun in Retirement" write to Robert Peterson, "Life Begins at Forty," c-o The Lincoln Star enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents to cover handling costs.

Legislative Apportionment Rules Change Proposal OK'd By 17 States

Seventeen states have approved resolutions seeking to amend the U.S. Constitution to remove area restrictions in state legislative apportionment, according to the Council of State Governments.

A Council scorecard shows that resolutions have been introduced in 39 states, approved by both houses in 17 states, and passed by one house in six additional states.

One other state approved a resolution of similar nature, according to the report.

A resolution, LR14, is pending before the Nebraska Legislature which would ask Congress to summon a constitutional convention to consider an amendment which would give states a free hand in apportioning their legislatures.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Cecil Craft of North Platte, cleared the Government and Military Affairs Committee on a 5-2 vote last week.

Two-thirds of the states—34 of them—must ask Congress to call a convention. Three-fourths would be needed to ratify any such amendment.

(A national newspaper poll last week stated that 22 states have already called for a convention to propose an amendment, but its list includes Nebraska—which has not yet acted.)

California has approved a similar resolution, according to the report.

One house has adopted the proposal in Alaska, Colorado, Georgia, Minnesota, North Dakota and Oregon.

The board of managers of the Council endorsed such an amendment on Dec. 1, 1964, and the 17th biennial general assembly of state legislators and officials adopted a resolution on the subject on Dec. 5.

Among states which have approved the resolution, Arkansas displays apportionment which strays most from the equal-population mandate of the U.S. Supreme Court. In Arkansas, 14% of the voters can elect a majority of the members of the upper chamber, and 33% can elect a majority in the lower chamber.

Tax Bills Withdrawal OK'd

The Legislature okayed Wednesday the withdrawal by Omaha Sen. Sam Klaver of four tax bills, including a controversial measure to enact a ton-mile tax on trucks.

"There are too many tax bills now before the Legislature," Sen. Klaver said in explaining his withdrawal request.

"I don't want to aid and abet the tax spenders.

"This Legislature seems to be running hog wild on tax bills. I hope you change your course because Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer will get you if you don't watch out."

The ton-mile tax bill was LB392.

Other bills withdrawn:

LB390—Increasing from two to three mills the tax per bushel on all grains other than wheat, corn, soybeans, dry edible beans and flax.

LB391—Repealing present grain tax laws and providing for the taxation of grain as other tangible property is taxed.

LB553—Submitting to voters a constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to substitute a basis other than valuation for taxing commercially raised vegetables.

CARMICHAEL

Road Changes Consultation Bill Revival Rejected

The Legislature refused Wednesday, on an 18-21 vote, to revive a Terry Carpenter bill killed in committee.

The Scottsbluff senator made the revival motion on LB377, which would have required consultation between the State Department of Roads and municipal officials before changes are made in any highway within a municipality. In the event of an impasse, the disagreement would be put to the State Highway Advisory Commission for a decision.

The Public Works Committee had axed the bill on a 5-1 vote on grounds present procedures are adequate.

Tax Bills Withdrawal OK'd

The Legislature okayed Wednesday the withdrawal by Omaha Sen. Sam Klaver of four tax bills, including a controversial measure to enact a ton-mile tax on trucks.

"There are too many tax bills now before the Legislature," Sen. Klaver said in explaining his withdrawal request.

"I don't want to aid and abet the tax spenders.

"This Legislature seems to be running hog wild on tax bills. I hope you change your course because Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer will get you if you don't watch out."

The ton-mile tax bill was LB302.

Other bills withdrawn:

LB300—Increasing from two to three mills the tax per bushel on all grains other than wheat, corn, soybeans, dry edible beans and flax.

LB301—Repealing present grain tax laws and providing for the taxation of grain as other taxable property is taxed.

LB302—Submitting to voters a constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to substitute a basis other than valuation for taxing commercially raised vegetables.

Road Changes Consultation Bill Revival Rejected

The Legislature refused Wednesday, on an 18-21 vote, to revive a Terry Carpenter bill killed in committee.

The Scottsbluff senator made the revival motion on LB377, which would have required consultation between the State Department of Roads and municipal officials before changes are made in any highway within a municipality. In the event of an impasse, the disagreement would be put to the State Highway Advisory Commission for a decision.

The Public Works Committee had axed the bill on a 5-1 vote on grounds present procedures are adequate.

Recreation Areas Measure Advanced

By WILLIAM B. KETTER
United Press International

The Legislature Wednesday gave preliminary approval to a multi-million dollar, pay-as-you-go effort to provide accessible outdoor recreation for every man, woman and child in Nebraska.

The legislation would set up a "land and water conservation" act in which the state and local governments could participate.

The first-round vote was 36-1, with only Sen. William Wylie of Elgin balloting against the proposal.

Key provisions of the bill, LB485, are designed to create recreation areas near cities, whose increase in population have far exceeded their growth in outdoor facilities.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha, chief sponsor of the bill, said it would make Nebraska eligible for some $2 million yearly in federal matching funds.

It has been proposed that Nebraska raise the state portion of the money by increasing the state cigarette tax.

Under the bill, funds could be used for acquisition of new land for recreation purposes and for development.

The State Game Commission would administer the act.

Sixty-two Nebraska communities in 43 counties have already applied for funds under the program. The money is made available on a 50-50 matching basis.

Other bills given preliminary approval Wednesday:

LB444—Providing for the reporting to the county attorney of willful injuries to children. (32-0)

LB406 — Deleting debt limitation on local public works boards, and increasing board members pay. (34-0)

LB265—Providing that fire and casualty insurance companies shall supply a copy of all fire reports to the fire departments of all first class cities and Lincoln and Omaha. (36-0)

LB92—Providing that abandoned buildings which have become dilapidated and detrimental to a community shall be deemed nuisances and providing penalties. (36-0)

LB236—Providing that inheritance tax money may be used for construction of homes for the aged and infirm. (36-0)

LB652 — Providing that feeble-minded persons may be committed to the Beatrice State Home on petition of a parent or guardian. (32-0)

LB299—Increasing fees for a license to practice medicine and surgery in the state. (29-0)

New Battle Threatens In Earmarking War

The battle over earmarking of new tax revenues threatened to flare anew in the Nebraska Legislature Wednesday with the introduction of a resolution and a proposed rules change.

The resolution proposes the Legislative Council appoint a study committee to determine the effects of earmarking on modern methods of fiscal control.

It aska the committee's recommendations be presented to the next Legislature.

The resolution, No. 88, was introduced by Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln, Ramey C. Whitney of Chappell and Stanley A. Matzke of Milford. Mrs. Orme and Matzke are members of the Budget Committee.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff proposed the rules change. He asked that senators determine once and for all if revenue bills should be sent to the Budget Committee for consideration before they are considered on the floor of the Legislature.

The resolution was referred to the Legislative Council Executive Board. Discussion of the rules change was deferred for one day.

Carpenter proposed the rules change so "this body can determine which way it wants to turn on this earmarking controversy." He said he will probably vote against the proposal.

The Legislature has been locked in heated controversy over earmarking of some $6 million in new revenue from a two-cent cigarette tax increase for educational television and recreational development.

Feed Grain Measure Offered

A legislative resolution urging the federal government not to call in stored feed grain was introduced in the Legislature Wednesday.

Action on the proposal was deferred for one day.

The resolution was submitted by Sens. Maurice A. Kremer of Aurora, Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth, William H. Hasebroock of West Point and Herb Nore of Genoa.

If passed, copies would be forwarded to U.S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman and to each member of Congress.

The resolution states that calling in stored feed grains will have an adverse effect on Nebraska's economy; that if drought conditions continue in some parts of the state, livestock feeding will become a problem; and that the geographic location and climate of Nebraska is conducive to the storage of feed grains.

Ban On Race Unit's Horses Passed

A bill prohibiting State Racing Commission members from racing their own horses in Nebraska race meets was passed 44-0 on final reading in the State Legislature Wednesday.

The same measure, LB39, introduced by Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter, requires audits at the conclusion of each race meet.

Other bills passed Wednesday (E-emergency clause):

LB200—Re-enacting warehouse laws inadvertently repealed when a uniform commercial code was adopted in 1963. (Judiciary Committee) (E) (44-0).

City Asks Review Of Woman's Club Tax Exemption

The city of Lincoln Wednesday asked the State Supreme Court to reconsider its decision upholding the judgment of the Lancaster County District Court that property of the Lincoln Woman's Club is largely tax exempt.

The club, a corporation, brought the action against the city to enjoin the collection of 1962 taxes. The district court held the club's headquarters building is properly tax exempt except for a caretaker's apartment in the basement.

The Supreme Court held that facts of the case "establish the aims and purposes of the Lincoln Woman's Club as religious, educational and charitable," and thus qualifies the club for tax exemption.

In asking for a rehearing, the city argues in a brief that the high court failed to consider and apply the reasoning of the Supreme Court in prior cases and also wronged in finding that the use of the club's premises which produced funds from members was an incidental use.

Presidential Disability Amendment Voted To House Floor

Washington (AP)—A constitutional amendment designed to make sure there will always be a functioning chief executive in the office of the presidency was approved Wednesday by the House Judiciary Committee.

The proposed amendment, similar to one already passed by the Senate, would provide a means for replacing a disabled president, either with or without his approval, and letting him resume office.

It would also provide for keeping the office of vice president filled and give constitutional authority to the long-established practice of a vice president becoming president when the office becomes vacant.

Bipartisan Support

In that event the Constitution at present says only that the powers and duties of the presidency shall devolve on the vice president.

Strong bipartisan support for the measure in the committee, and the 72-0 vote for it last month in the Senate, seemed to assure that Congress is about to settle what has been called the largest unresolved constitutional problem of the day.

House action is not expected for two or three weeks, however.

The assassination of John F. Kennedy gave impetus to the drive for the amendment, arousing concern over what might have happened if he had lingered on for weeks or months unable to carry out his duties.

Wilson Paralyzed

This happened in 1881 when President Garfield was shot and hovered between life and death for 80 days before dying.

And for the last 18 months of Woodrow Wilson's second term, he was incapacitated by a stroke that partially paralyzed him. Other government officials had almost no contact with him and little public business was transacted.

Since President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered a heart attack during his first term, informal agreements between the president and vice president have provided for some form of take-over in case of disability, but there has been increasing clamor for clarifying the whole issue with a constitutional amendment.

The amendment approved by the judiciary committee has the following provisions:

—Whenever a vacancy exists in the vice presidency, the president shall nominate a vice president, who takes office when confirmed by majority vote of both the House and Senate.

Congress Can Act

—When a president notifies Congress he is unable to carry out his duties, they will be carried out by the vice president, as acting president, until the president declares himself recovered.

—If the president does not declare himself unable to carry on—when he is in fact unable to do so—the vice president and a majority of the cabinet can make such a written declaration to Congress, whereupon the vice president immediately assumes the powers of acting president.

—If, after that, the president declares himself fit to resume office and the vice president and a majority of the cabinet disagree, Congress shall have 10 days to decide the issue. If Congress failed to act within 10 days, the president would take over immediately.

The major difference between the House committee and Senate versions of the amendment is the inclusion of the 10-day limit for congressional action on a challenge to the president's resumption of office.

It will take a two-thirds vote in the House to pass the amendment and three-fourths of the states would then have to ratify it before it would become part of the constitution.

Need Mail Ballot Tally To Determine Winners

Alliance (AP)—Voters turned out in record numbers to reduce the field of seven City Council candidates to six and when the counting was completed the candidate to be dropped was still unknown.

Two men, Donald J. Harris and Dean L. Simpson, were tied for the low vote with 416 each. It is expected that the outcome will be determined next Monday when the City Council will canvass the vote and open absentee and disabled ballots.

A total of 1,364 voters cast ballots. This was more than in either of the two previous primaries in the 1960s. In 1961 the total was 923 and in 1963 it was 1,300.

Simpson is a present member of the council. High man in the voting was Neil Colerick with 799. In second place was Mayor Dale Novotny with 589. Another present councilman, Harold E. Wingstad, finished fifth with 482. In third place was Anthony Yeager with 589. Edward Stafford was fourth with 548.

Three vacancies are to be filled in the April 6 election.

Diversion Rate On Castor Beans Hiked Up To 50%

By the Associated Press

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has increased from 30 to 50% the farm average diversion rate where castor beans are grown on diverted feed grain-wheat acreage, Rep. Clair Callan, D-Neb., reported in Washington.

The change applies to the 1965 crop year.

The payment rate last year had been 50% but the USDA had reduced this for 1965 in the belief adequate production still could be obtained, Callan explained.

"Because of a number of circumstances developing since the original announcement," the congressman said, "it has become apparent that during the current program signup, particularly in the major producing states of Nebraska and Texas, farmers would not produce enough castor beans on their diverted acres at the reduced rate. Consequently, in order to maintain U.S. production of this crop, the 50% partial payment rate for diversion again will be used."

Castor bean oil is used as a lubricant, as a fluid in manufactured items including hydraulic brakes and lifting machinery, and for chemical processes.

Broadened Federal Ag Programs OKd By NFU

. . . Apportionment Amendment Follows Battle

Chicago (UPI) — The National Farmers Union (NFU) Wednesday unanimously endorsed increased government planning for agriculture. It staged a bitter floor fight before approving a proposed constitutional amendment nullifying the Supreme Court "one man, one vote" decision.

Delegates voted 112,000 to 90,000 in favor of inserting into the 1965 NFU policy statement an amendment asking passage of a federal constitutional amendment providing for apportionment of state legislatures in the manner of the United States Congress. Such an amendment has been introduced in Congress with bi-partisan backing.

The amendment was adopted over the objections of the Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota delegations. However, the powerful Minnesota delegation, in a surprise move, supported the amendment.

NFU President James Patton said he voted against the amendment because lower Houses "are an aggregation of petty, vested interests.

"I've spent my whole life promoting co-operatives and the number one principle of a bonified co-operative is the one-man, one-vote principle." He said lower houses of state legislatures "have become appendages and institutions that do things to people and not for people."

Virgil Lang, a delegate from Russell, Minn., said his state supported the measure because of Minnesota's rural makeup.

Nicholas L. Hubbard, an Illinois delegate and a former state senator from Mount Pulaski, said "it all boils down to the fact that the liberal, urban politician has proved to represent the farmer better than the rural, conservative politician."

Before it was amended, the NFU policy statement's only reference to the issue of reapportioning state legislatures was a sentence of the preamble which said:

"The checks and balances and the division of government powers must be strengthened to preserve a responsive representative government."

Stepped-Up Planning Asked

The NFU urged a step-up in government planning for agriculture, including setting of an annual national suppiy goal for commodities; use of nationwide marketing quotas; extension of federal marketing order programs to such things as timber, vegetables and grain; and drafting of an annual calculation of the national soil fertility as a basis for an increased conservation program.

The policy statement said that production payments should have a greater role in new farm legislation to improve farm income, but should be supplemented by such things as marketing premiums, export payments, purchase agreements and market surplus diversion purchases.

Purchases and loans should be used to eliminate "unreasonable seasonal fluctuations" in market prices and to prevent speculation and profiteering, the statement said.

5-Year Extension Of Indian Claims Group Requested

Washington (AP) — A five-year extension of the life of the Indian Claims Commission to April, 1972, likely would be sufficient to enable it to dispose of pending cases, Chief Commissioner Arthur V. Watkins said.

Watkins testified before a Senate Interior Subcommittee.

Edward Williams, a Justice Department attorney, said in reply to questions that the life of the commission undoubtedly would have to be extended if it is to complete its work.

Falls City Sewer, Waste Treatment Study Scheduled

Falls City (UPI) — A study of Falls City's sanitary sewer system and waste treatment needs will start this spring, according to Mayor Ralph Steinbrink.

He said the city recently signed a contract with Kirkham, Michael and Associates of Omaha.

The engineering firm will develop plans for a modernized and expanded sanitary sewer system, including a new waste disposal plant.

Specific studies will be made of domestic and industrial wastes presently being discharged without treatment. The report is expected to be completed by late summer.

Quartet Honored For 10 Years As Voc Ag Teachers

Four persons were recognized for 10 years of service as vocational agriculture instructors.

Admitted to the 10-year club at the annual convention of the Nebraska Vocational Agricultural Association were Marvin Dean of Allen, Donald Frerichs of Kimball, Harry Kenyon of Minatare and Haydn Owens of Howells.

Gov. Frank Morrison delivered an address of greeting as the three day convention opened at the Nebraska Center.

Narrow Row Spacing Calls For Management

. . . Flowerday Warns South Platte Farmers

Curtis—Farmers considering the adoption of narrow row spacing for corn, sorghum or soybeans must meet the high management requirements for this practice if any increased yields realized are to result in additional profits per acre.

This warning came from Dr. A. Dale Flowerday, University of Nebraska Extension agronomist, who spoke to farmers attending an agricultural clinic here Wednesday. The clinic, sponsored by the South Platte United Chambers of Commerce, will be followed by a similar meeting at Minden Thursday.

Increased yields achieved through narrow row spacing must be sufficient not only to absorb the higher costs inherent in the practice but also to assure the additional profits, Dr. Flowerday reiterated. "This principle is true whether the practice involves use of a new variety, tillage system or increased fertilizer use," he added.

If a high level of management is not carried out in connection with narrow spacing, there may be no yield increase. And it is doubtful that narrow row widths have any advantage at low or even average yield levels, the NU specialist cautioned.

Road Department Denies Access Policy Hurt Small Town

The State Department of Roads denied Wednesday that its policies on controlling highway access have caused an economic hardship on smaller Nebraska communities.

"A careful study of the population trends of Nebraska communities fails to show any correlation between access control and a community's growth," a department report said.

The report came in response to a legislative resolution calling for a policy review with the "view of establishing controlled access policies that will result in a greater economic growth and development of communities."

Contributed To Downfall

"It is quite probable that better highways have contributed to the downfall of some of our smaller communities, as these roads have made it easier to reach the larger centers of population where a greater variety of services are available," the report said. "There is little indication, however, that control of access has been an important factor."

The department said the most immediate and lasting effect of controlling highway access is safety.

"Driveways to business places create even more hazardous conditions because traffic entering and leaving the main road is increased considerably," the department contended.

The report pointed out that business catering to highway traffic causes a snowballing effect when the operators of the businesses build homes nearby and other unrelated businesses build along highways.

Not Flexible Enough

The report indicated, however, that the policy may not be flexible enough "to suit conditions arising from a growing and thriving community."

For best results, the report said, the locations for driveways should be pre-determined in the planning stage so that accesses may be established before construction starts.

MORRISON MAY VETO PAY INCREASE

Governor Morrison said Wednesday he might veto a bill hiking the salary of the governor if it is approved by the Legislature.

"I'm seriously considering it," he said.

The measure, already approved by the Salaries and Claims Committee, would raise the governor's pay from $18,000 to $21,00 a year.

Morrison noted that the governor's salary was raised two years ago, and that the chief of state gets a free home with utilities paid plus a car and driver.

"Besides, we shouldn't be raising salaries every two years," he said. "People shouldn't seek the governorship on the basis of the salary it pays."

The proposed salary increase would take effect with the election of the next governor in November, 1966.

Bill Letting Norfolk Hike Flood Control Bond Debt Clears Committee

Legislation designed to permit the City of Norfolk to solve its own Elkhorn River flood problems earned the approval Wednesday of the Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee.

Sent to the floor were LB461 and LB462, which together have the effect of raising from $100,000 to $750,000 the amount of flood control indebtedness which a first class city may incur; reducing the approving vote needed in a bond election from 60 to 55%, and extending the bond payoff period from 10 years to 25 years.

Robert Shively, general manager of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, told the committee that Norfolk has a long history of flooding dating back to 1880, with a major flood about every 10 years and minor flooding between Norfolk and Pierce about every two years.

Three Plans

After the last major flood March 27, 1962, the city asked the Army Corps of Engineers for help, and engineers came up with three plans. Unless the city can raise more money than the $100,000 now allowed, it cannot implement the plans, he said.

"If this bill does not pass, we cannot solve our own flood problems in Norfolk," Shively said.

Support was voiced also by Randall Sims, representing the League of Nebraska Municipalities, and Duane A. Burns, assistant city attorney of Grand Island.

There was no opposition.

Shively said a large delegation from Norfolk had planned to attend the hearing but was held at home by the weather. Shively said he happened to be in Lincoln and was therefore called upon to present the city's case.

LB461 and LB462 were chiefly sponsored by Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper, with Sens. S. H. Brauer Sr. of Norfolk and Peter H. Claussen of Leigh as co-sponsors.

Simple Majority

As drawn, LB461 would have required a simple majority vote for approval of a flood control bond issue. The committee amended this to require a 55% favorable vote.

Heard but held was LB496, chiefly sponsored by Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa, which revises certain provisions of law relative to curbing and guttering districts in first class cities.

Sen. Nore said businessmen on 13th St., a main Columbus thoroughfare, desire to install new curbing and guttering but present law is insufficient to take care of the proposition. He said LB496 was drawn to make the law workable in the Columbus case.

Objection came from Assistant City Atty. Burns of Grand Island, who said the city council opposes the bill as drawn on several grounds. Sen Nore said he would arrange to get the Columbus and Grand Island representatives together to iron out conflicts.

CPPD Sidney-NP Line Application OKd

The Nebraska Power Review Board Wednesday approved Consumers Public Power District's application to construct a new high-voltage electric transmission line from Sidney to North Platte.

Denied was Loup River Public Power District's bid to construct the same facility.

Also dismissed was an alternative application filed by the Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative.

Consumers was given authority to construct 118 miles of 230-kilovolt line from Sidney to North Platte, and 26 miles of 115-KV line from North Platte to Paxton. Total cost, according to CPPD's application, is $4,445,800.

The 230-KV line will connect with 75 miles of 230-KV line being constructed by Tri-State Generation and Transmission Association between Sidney and Stegall, near the western Nebraska border.

Will Interconnect

Together, the two segments will interconnect U.S. Bureau of Reclamation facilities and other western sources of power with the Nebraska Public Power System transmission grid.

CPPD will complete construction by the summer of 1966, thus providing needed additional sources of power and energy for electric users in the eastern two-thirds of Nebraska.

The west-end tie will also provide connections with Basin Electric Cooperative, the Glen Canyon project on the Colorado River and Pacific Power and Light Co.

In Columbus, Loup General Manager John Preston said he was "surprised" to learn of the decision.

"NPPS (of which Loup is a partner) has had the high-voltage transmission authority in the state," Preston said. "The entry of another agency into this field will only confuse the picture."

Undecided On Appeal

Preston said he did not yet know whether Loup would appeal the ruling.

NPPS Executive Manager Howard Ericksen of Columbus said he was "disappointed" with the decision.

Consumers, the board's order noted, serves a number of towns west of North Platte "and has crews and equipment ready to maintain this line." Loup, it stated, has no crews stationed west of North Platte.

Further, the order noted, NPPS "will not allow their customers to use this facility to carry power from other power suppliers under presently existing contractual arrangements" if Loup were to build the line.

Construction by Consumers "will result in a more fair, equitable and non-discriminatory distribution of benefits among the actual electric users in the state," the board stated.

CPPD customers will consume "more than half of the total usage of this 230-KV line," it was noted.

Contracts between Consumers and NPPS would permit interconnection of the new line with the NPPS grid at North Platte, the board stated.

Reaction Mixed To Power Unit 'Clarifications'

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A bill proposing "clairifications" of the Nebraska Power Review Board's jurisdictions and power drew mixed reactions from power districts and municipalities Wednesday before the Legislature's Public Works Committee.

The measure, LB289, was held for study by the committee after a two-hour public hearing.

"There's no fundamental change from the 1963 act," said Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth, its chief introducer. "It merely clarifies jurisdictions and procedures for the board."

William Norton, power board chairman, said the bill spells out the board's jurisdiction over wholesale suppliers, would permit the board to set rates in controversy and limits board members to two consecutive terms.

Trend Seen

But, attorney George Svoboda of Sidney, representing the Nebraska League of Municipalities' power committee, charged the bill is "a trend toward making the review board a directorate over public power rather than an umpire for disputes."

He challenged the "rate-making provisions" and proposed staff and also contended wholesale jurisdiction be limited to approving generation and transmission construction proposals.

Omaha Public Power District and Consumers Public Power District appeared "generally in favor" of the bill, but proposed several changes.

Consumers proposed any rate-setting power of the board be limited so no lower rate could be set than those classes approved by a district's governing body.

Amendments

It also proposed amendments so a power district could continue to serve its existing customers in another service district.

Omaha objected to seeking board approval for enlargement of distribution lines or capacity within its service district.

Loup River Power District objected to wholesale jurisdiction of the board except as now provided and urged "make this a clear service area bill."

The Nebraska Rural Electric Association and Nebraska Generation and Transmission supported several amendments, including ones to restrict wholesale jurisdiction and rate-making authority of the board.

No one testified in direct opposition to the bill, and Ruhnke quipped to the committee:

"With so many powerful proponents for the bill—but all with amendments—who needs opponents?'

First Of 18

Sen. Cecil Craft of North Platte, committee chairman, noted LB289 is the first of 18 public power bills that will be heard during the coming weeks.

In other action, the committee advanced LB574 that would not restrict automobiles towing camp trailers of 23 feet or less to the 50 mile-per-hour speed limit for trailers.

The committee was told many camping tourists are by-passing Nebraska highways because of the "unrealistic" speed limit on the smaller trailers.

Held for study was LB635 that would permit county treasurers to make distribution of motor vehicle registration fees on the basis of the federal population census rather than a motor vehicle registration count.

Surplus Revenue Measure Advanced, 5-2

The Legislature's Public Works Committee Wednesday advanced 5-2 a bill to permit a first-class city to use surplus revenues from its utilities for general government purposes.

Second-class cities now have this power which LB460 would grant to the larger cities. Some first-class cities are now so using excess utility funds, but an attorney general's opinion has put a "legal cloud" over their actions.

The committee killed 8-0 Sen. Henry F. Pedersen's LB456 proposing that a physician's examination be required before a driver's license is issued or renewed at four-year intervals.

Other committee action on a string of bills previously heard:

—killed 6-2 LB547 proposing all gaseous-fueled power units be included under the state's tractor testing provisions.

—agreed 5-0 to support a committee bill to establish procedures in connection with LB288, requiring joint monthly meetings of the Platte River and Loup River Public Power Districts.

Corrects Error

—amended and advanced LB526 that would repeal the "white skunk stripes" on state-owned vehicles and substitute other identifying lettering for the vehicle.

125 People Held

Dar es Salaam, Tanzania (AP) —Home Minister Job Lusinde reported to parliament 125 people, including 30 foreigners, are held under the preventive detention act with no intention of bringing them to trial. He declined to identify them.

Need Funds To Protect Citizens On Iowa Border

Attorney General Clarence Meyer has requested a $125,000 emergency appropriation from the Legislature to protect Nebraska citizens against expropriation of private property transferred from Nebraska to Iowa under a 1943 boundary compact.

In a letter to Budget Committee Chairman Richard D. Marvel of Hastings, Meyer said $15,000 will be needed as a deficiency appropriation before May 1.

The 1963 Legislature allocated Meyer's office $30,000 But Meyer said this is nearly gone.

Nebraska has filed an original lawsuit in the U.S. Supreme Court to call a halt to legal action taken by Iowa to gain title to land along the Missouri River.

The Supreme Court last January agreed to accept the case, and appointed a special master to gather evidence.

Briggs' Return Ultimatum Relaxed

Troy, N.Y. (AP)—Dist. Atty. M. Andrew Dwyer has relaxed his ultimatum for the return of Norman H. Briggs to Troy from Newcastle, Wyo.

Briggs, presumed drowned near here in 1960, is working on a ranch near Newcastle under the name Clayton Hollister, his family says.

Dwyer threatened Monday to seek court action if Briggs had not returned by Wednesday to talk about his disappearance.

But Dwyer said Tuesday he was convinced the Briggs family "was doing everything possible" to get Briggs to return, and he would not take action so long as a voluntary return was possible.

Dwyer said he would continue investigating the disappearance and the $120,000 life insurance paid to Briggs' former wife, now Mrs. Erl Koening of nearby Wynantskill.

Mrs. Koenig divorced Briggs last September. She has promised to return the money.

How did Briggs get a job at a missile site in Nebraska under the name of Clayton Hollister and apparently gain possession of keys to its control panel?

These were questions raised by the district attorney.

A spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Albany said the FBI was checking Dwyer's information.

Dwyer told reporters he was concerned about what "may be a serious breach of national security."

Dwyer said Briggs brother, Rold, had described a visit to Briggs last fall during which Briggs took him on a tour of the missile site near Kimball and "showed his brother the launch and control panels." The brother said Briggs was a construction foreman at the site, Dwyer said.

Brilliant Economic Future Forecast

Speaking at the Peru Kiwanis Club's annual farmer banquet, the governor said that total domestic and foreign markets would increase by 100 per cent by 1975 in light of current population trends.

He said that in the next 10 years substantial increases would be realized in the consumption of beef, pork, milk, poultry and eggs.

Morrison said the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture is playing and will continue to play a vital role in developing agriculture.

The Kaaba is a cube-shape, basalt structure that stands in the open courtyard of Mecca's Great Mosque. According to tradition, the shrine was built by Abraham at the command of God.

Reaction Mixed To Power Unit 'Clarifications'

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A bill proposing "clarifications" of the Nebraska Power Review Board's jurisdictions and power drew mixed reactions from power districts and municipalities Wednesday before the Legislature's Public Works Committee.

The measure, LB289, was held for study by the committee after a two-hour public hearing.

"There's no fundamental change from the 1963 act," said Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth, its chief introducer. "It merely clarifies jurisdictions and procedures for the board."

William Norton, power board chairman, said the bill spells out the board's jurisdiction over wholesale suppliers, would permit the board to set rates in controversy and limits board members to two consecutive terms.

Trend Seen

But, attorney George Svoboda of Sidney, representing the Nebraska League of Municipalities' power committee, charged the bill is "a trend toward making the review board a directorate over public power rather than an umpire for disputes."

He challenged the "rate-making provisions" and proposed staff and also contended wholesale jurisdiction be limited to approving generation and transmission construction proposals.

Omaha Public Power District and Consumers Public Power District appeared "generally in favor" of the bill, but proposed several changes.

Consumers proposed any rate-setting power of the board be limited so no lower rate could be set than those classes approved by a district's governing body.

Amendments

It also proposed amendments so a power district could continue to serve its existing customers in another service district.

Omaha objected to seeking board approval for enlargement of distribution lines or capacity within its service district.

Loup River Power District objected to wholesale jurisdiction of the board except as now provided and urged "make this a clear service area bill."

The Nebraska Rural Electric Association and Nebraska Generation and Transmission supported several amendments, including ones to restrict wholesale jurisdiction and rate-making authority of the board.

No one testified in direct opposition to the bill, and Ruhnke quipped to the committee:

"With so many powerful proponents for the bill—but all with amendments—who needs opponents?'

First Of 18

Sen. Cecil Craft of North Platte, committee chairman, noted LB289 is the first of 18 public power bills that will be heard during the coming weeks.

In other action, the committee advanced LB574 that would not restrict automobiles towing camp trailers of 23 feet or less to the 50 mile-per-hour speed limit for trailers.

The committee was told many camping tourists are by-passing Nebraska highways because of the "unrealistic" speed limit on the smaller trailers.

Held for study was LB635 that would permit county treasurers to make distribution of motor vehicle registration fees on the basis of the federal population census rather than a motor vehicle registration count.

Surplus Revenue Measure Advanced, 5-2

The Legislature's Public Works Committee Wednesday advanced 5-2 a bill to permit a first-class city to use surplus revenues from its utilities for general government purposes.

Second-class cities now have this power which LB460 would grant to the larger cities. Some first-class cities are now so using excess utility funds, but an attorney general's opinion has put a "legal cloud" over their actions.

The committee killed 8-0 Sen. Henry F. Pedersen's LB456 proposing that a physician's examination be required before a driver's license is issued or renewed at four-year intervals.

Other committee action on a string of bills previously heard:

—killed 6-2 LB547 proposing all gaseous-fueled power units be included under the state's tractor testing provisions.

—agreed 5-0 to support a committee bill to establish procedures in connection with LB288, requiring joint monthly meetings of the Platte River and Loup River Public Power Districts.

Corrects Error

—amended and advanced LB526 that would repeal the "white skunk stripes" on state-owned vehicles and substitute other identifying lettering for the vehicle.

125 People Held

Dar es Salaam, Tanzania (AP) —Home Minister Job Lusinde reported to parliament 125 people, including 30 foreigners, are held under the preventive detention act with no intention of bringing them to trial. He declined to identify them.

Need Funds To Protect Citizens On Iowa Border

Attorney General Clarence Meyer has requested a $125,000 emergency appropriation from the Legislature to protect Nebraska citizens against expropriation of private property transferred from Nebraska to Iowa under a 1943 boundary compact.

In a letter to Budget Committee Chairman Richard D. Marvel of Hastings, Meyer said $15,000 will be needed as a deficiency appropriation before May 1.

The 1963 Legislature allocated Meyer's office $30,000. But Meyer said this is nearly gone.

Nebraska has filed an original lawsuit in the U.S. Supreme Court to call a halt to legal action taken by Iowa to gain title to land along the Missouri River.

The Supreme Court last January agreed to accept the case, and appointed a special master to gather evidence.

$349,275 Salt-Wahoo Budget Okayed

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Salt-Wahoo Watershed District directors approved a $349,275 budget for fiscal 1966 at their Wednesday board meeting here. Budgeted disbursements totaled about $40,000 over 1965 allotments, according to Hal Schroeder, general manager.

Land and construction expenses jumped nearly $45,000 while operating costs dropped slightly from the previous year's total.

The district receives about $200,000 from the special .75 mill levy in the six counties within its confines.

Acquisition of right-of-way of all structures in the Upper Salt Project, rising land costs, and increased size of structures pushed the fiscal year 1966 cost of land and easements to be acquired up $5,000 over the 1965 figure to $75,000. Schroeder noted that easements in the Oak-Middle Project will average $3,000 per structure.

The roads, bridges and waterways construction expenses were placed at $75,000. It is anticipated that $23,000 will be required to contribute to the county project for a new bridge on Beals Slough at 27th St., with the watershed district share being channel improvements, and that $43,000 will be contributed to three city of Lincoln drainage projects north of Cornhusker Highway.

Although no expenditures were made in 1965 for utility structures, the same amount of $5,000 was again budgeted, said Schroeder, since increased activity in the small watershed program requiring movement of power lines, gas mains, etc. is planned.

Drainage and flood control maintenance allotment was raised by $10,000 for 1966 to a total of $50,000. The general manager said that the district may undertake responsibility for major drainage channels, all of which have deferred maintenance items.

Maintenance of the channel improvement project through Lincoln upon completion, expected this fall, will also become the district's responsibility, he added.

Required local contribution to the project represented the possibility that the Salt-Wahoo district would contribute to the Branched Oak project an amount equivalent to the contribution that would have been made to the channel improvement of Salt Creek through Lincoln. Maximum possible contribution, over a three-year period, would be $300,000, Schroeder pointed out.

In other action the board approved a $21,000 expenditure to Consumers Public Power District for relocation of its lines in the way of an Army Corps of Engineers project; approved two easements with the Union Pacific Railroad and with the city of Ashland for a sewage treatment facility; and agreed to pay the expenses of the manager and directors attending the 12th National Watershed Congress at Sioux City, Iowa, beginning April 26.

Corps of Engineers representative Joe Slizeski also presented an illustrated report of the flood plain information studies on Lincoln.

Chester B. Dobbs Resigns From Planning Commission

Chester B. Dobbs, 1231 No. 37th, resigned from the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday.

Dobbs, whose current appointive term will expire in August, requested that his resignation take effect immediately so that his successor could benefit from the information and discussion resulting from the recently published Army Corps of Engineers flood plains study.

"The ten years of association with the Planning Commission have been enlightening and interesting and I consider it a privilege and an honor to have served," he said.

Mayor Dean Petersen said Dobbs would continue to serve until his successor is appointed.

Briggs' Return Ultimatum Relaxed

Troy, N.Y. (AP)—Dist. Atty. M. Andrew Dwyer has relaxed his ultimatum for the return of Norman H. Briggs to Troy from Newcastle, Wyo.

Dwyer threatened Monday to seek court action if Briggs had not returned by Wednesday to talk about his disappearance.

But Dwyer said Tuesday he was convinced the Briggs family "was doing everything possible" to get Briggs to return, and he would not take action so long as a voluntary return was possible.

Dwyer said he would continue investigating the disappearance and the $120,000 life insurance paid to Briggs' former wife, now Mrs. Erl Koening of nearby Wynantskill.

Mrs. Koenig divorced Briggs last September. She has promised to return the money.

How did Briggs get a job at a missile site in Nebraska under the name of Clayton Hollister and apparently gain possession of keys to its control panel?

These were questions raised by the district attorney.

A spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Albany said the FBI was checking Dwyer's information.

Dwyer told reporters he was concerned about what "may be a serious breach of national security."

Dwyer said Briggs brother, Rold, had described a visit to Briggs last fall during which Briggs took him on a tour of the missile site near Kimball and "showed his brother the launch and control panels." The brother said Briggs was a construction foreman at the site, Dwyer said.

Brilliant Economic Future Forecast

Speaking at the Peru Kiwanis Club's annual farmer banquet, the governor said that total domestic and foreign markets would increase by 100 per cent by 1975 in light of current population trends.

He said that in the next 10 years substantial increases would be realized in the consumption of beef, pork, milk, poultry and eggs.

Morrison said the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture is playing and will continue to play a vital role in developing agriculture.

The Kaaba is a cube-shape, basalt structure that stands in the open courtyard of Mecca's Great Mosque. According to tradition, the shrine was built by Abraham at the command of God.

Workings Of Voting Rights Proposal Charted

The bill would forbid the denial of voting rights in states or counties where literacy or other tests were used as of Nov. 1, 1964, and where the number of registered voters that day, or the number of voters who took part in the Nov. 4 election, was below 50% of the persons of voting age in that area.

It would permit a state or county to avoid compliance with the bill if it could prove, on application to a three-judge court in Washington, that there had been no voter discrimination in the past 10 years.

Any court decision that a couny had practiced discrimination, for instance, would bar the county and state from seeking to escape the effects of the new law for 10 years.

The attorney general could ask the Civil Service Commission to appoint federal registrars—called "examiners" in the bill—for a certain electoral district if he received complaints from 20 persons in that district that they had been illegally denied their voting rights, or if he thought such action were otherwise necessary.

Any person who registered with a federal examiner up to 45 days before election day could vote, regardless of state laws imposing an earlier registration deadline.

Complain

Any registered voter refused the right to cast his ballot could complain to a federal official; then the local U.S. District Court could withhold all certificates of election until these persons voted.

The states would be prohibited from passing new voter-qualification laws to avoid the effect of this law. A three-judge federal court in Washington would have to approve any such law, after a finding it was not intended to interfere with voting rights.

Anyone who interfered with the right to vote—whether a local official or a private citizen, or who intimidated a voter who had exercised that right, could on conviction be sentenced to five years in prison, a $5,000 fine, or both.

Margaret Close To Congo-Uganda Border Shooting

Congolese planes attacked several villages inside the Uganda border only 30 miles from where Margaret's plane was on a sightseeing flight in the scenic Murchison Falls area on the lower Victoria Nile River. Billowing smoke could be seen in the distance from the royal plane.

Authorities said there were several casualties in the machine gun and rocket attacks by planes believed flown by Cuban exile pilots.

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Salt-Wahoo Watershed District directors approved a $349,275 budget for fiscal 1966 at their Wednesday board meeting here. Budgeted disbursements totaled about $40,000 over 1965 allotments, according to Hal Schroeder, general manager.

Land and construction expenses jumped nearly $45,000 while operating costs dropped slightly from the previous year's total.

The district receives about $200,000 from the special .75 mill levy in the six counties within its confines.

Acquisition of right-of-way of all structures in the Upper Salt Project, rising land costs, and increased size of structures pushed the fiscal year 1966 cost of land and easements to be acquired up $5,000 over the 1965 figure to $75,000. Schroeder noted that easements in the Oak-Middle Project will average $3,000 per structure.

The roads, bridges and waterways construction expenses were placed at $75,000. It is anticipated that $23,000 will be required to contribute to the county project for a new bridge on Beals Slough at 27th St., with the watershed district share being channel improvements, and that $43,000 will be contributed to three city of Lincoln drainage projects north of Cornhusker Highway.

Although no expenditures were made in 1965 for utility structures, the same amount of $5,000 was again budgeted, said Schroeder, since increased activity in the small watershed program requiring movement of power lines, gas mains, etc. is planned.

Drainage and flood control maintenance allotment was raised by $10,000 for 1966 to a total of $50,000. The general manager said that the district may undertake responsibility for major drainage channels, all of which have deferred maintenance items.

Maintenance of the channel improvement project through Lincoln upon completion, expected this fall, will also become the district's responsibility, he added.

Required local contribution to the project represented the possibility that the Salt-Wahoo district would contribute to the Branched Oak project an amount equivalent to the contribution that would have been made to the channel improvement of Salt Creek through Lincoln. Maximum possible contribution, over a three-year period, would be $300,000, Schroeder pointed out.

In other action the board approved a $21,000 expenditure to Consumers Public Power District for relocation of its lines in the way of an Army Corps of Engineers project; approved two easements with the Union Pacific Railroad and with the city of Ashland for a sewage treatment facility; and agreed to pay the expenses of the manager and directors attending the 12th National Watershed Congress at Sioux City, Iowa, beginning April 26.

Corps of Engineers representative Joe Slizeski also presented an illustrated report of the flood plain information studies on Lincoln.

Chester B. Dobbs, 1231 No. 37th, resigned from the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday.

Dobbs, whose current appointive term will expire in August, requested that his resignation take effect immediately so that his successor could benefit from the information and discussion resulting from the recently published Army Corps of Engineers flood plains study.

"The ten years of association with the Planning Commission have been enlightening and interesting and I consider it a privilege and an honor to have served," he said.

Mayor Dean Petersen said Dobbs would continue to serve until his successor is appointed.

'Education Is A Sound Investment'

"Money spent on education is a sound investment" is the conclusion drawn from a study of results of the 1962 Manpower Development and Training Act (MDTA).

Leroy A. Cornelsen, a vocational education specialist in the MDTA Office of Education, conducted the study on a sample group of about 13,000 who have received occupational training since the act was initiated.

He estimated that these previously unemployed persons were costing the public around $3.5 million annually in unemployment compensation and public assistance payments, while contributing little or nothing to the cost of government through income taxes or to the economy through spending.

Costs of training, including instructors' salaries, supplies, training allowances and subsistence payments to students, totaled $13.3 million for the 13,000, Cornelsen estimated.

In 24 weeks, he pointed out in the School Life magazine article, the 70% who obtained work immediately, at an average hourly wage of $2.01, earned $13.7 million, slightly more than the cost of training the entire group. Most of the other 30%, he noted, received employment later.

Projected figures indicate that a trainee will repay the cost of his training to the government through federal income taxes in five years.

"Every dollar spent in training," Cornelsen said, "should return $2.24 a year in gross earnings."

Workings Of Voting Rights Proposal Charted

Washington (AP)—Here is a brief rundown of the key contents of President Johnson's proposed voting legislation, transmitted to Congress Wednesday.

The bill would forbid the denial of voting rights in states or counties where literacy or other tests were used as of Nov. 1, 1964, and where the number of registered voters that day, or the number of voters who took part in the Nov. 4 election, was below 50% of the persons of voting age in that area.

It would permit a state or county to avoid compliance with the bill if it could prove, on application to a three-judge court in Washington, that there had been no voter discrimination in the past 10 years.

Any court decision that a couny had practiced discrimination, for instance, would bar the county and state from seeking to escape the effects of the new law for 10 years.

The attorney general could ask the Civil Service Commission to appoint federal registrars—called "examiners" in the bill—for a certain electoral district if he received complaints from 20 persons in that district that they had been illegally denied their voting rights, or if he thought such action were otherwise necessary.

Any person who registered with a federal examiner up to 45 days before election day could vote, regardless of state laws imposing an earlier registration deadline.

Complain

Any registered voter refused the right to cast his ballot could complain to a federal official; then the local U.S. District Court could withhold all certificates of election until these persons voted.

The states would be prohibited from passing new voter-qualification laws to avoid the effect of this law. A three-judge federal court in Washington would have to approve any such law, after a finding it was not intended to interfere with voting rights.

Anyone who interfered with the right to vote—whether a local official or a private citizen, or who intimidated a voter who had exercised that right, could on conviction be sentenced to five years in prison, a $5,000 fine, or both.

Margaret Close To Congo-Uganda Border Shooting

Congolese planes attacked several villages inside the Uganda border only 30 miles from where Margaret's plane was on a sightseeing flight in the scenic Murchison Falls area on the lower Victoria Nile River. Billowing smoke could be seen in the distance from the royal plane.

Authorities said there were several casualties in the machine-gun and rocket attacks by planes believed flown by Cuban exile pilots.

Newsmen Say Official Censors Hurt Coverage

By The Associated Press

Foreign correspondents in South Viet Nam report that official restrictions by U.S. military authorities are making the war there more difficult to cover than at any time since major U.S. involvement began in 1961.

In Washington, Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, acknowledged some changes in announcements of air strikes against Communist North Viet Nam but said the department's policy was one of "complete candor with newsmen." However, military sources in Saigon have made it clear the Pentagon directs press policy.

Despite Sylvester's statement, made in response to a newsman's questions, dispatches from Saigon report:

(1) Five newsmen were taken into custody inside the U.S. Marines compound at Da Nang, a key installation near the frontier dividing North and South Viet Nam. They were released after what a spokesman termed "a misunderstanding."

7th Fleet Pool

(2) A pool of correspondents to join the 7th Fleet to report at first hand the activities of American fliers — a pool the Pentagon said six weeks ago was in prospect—was confined to a brief one day visit. When newsmen were permitted aboard the aircraft carrier Ranger on Tuesday, a staff of 23 carefully briefed "escort officers" was on hand to stay with them during their visit.

(3) Correspondents are no longer admitted to Da Nang Air Base without an assigned escort officer.

(4) Interviews with fliers must be arranged on an individual basis with the escort officer present, a policy also in effect in the Pentagon.

(5) Newsmen have been barred from the US.. military clubs and restaurants both at the Da Nang Air Base and in the city of Da Nang.

(6) Pilots flying outside Viet Nam are instructed not to talk to anyone.

No Free Talking

One newsman told an American military spokesman in Viet Nam:

"This is the first war in American history in which newsmen are being barred from the battle area — in this case air strikes, air bases and the fleet — to talk freely to the men involved."

In New York, Wes Gallagher, general manager of the Associated Press, said, "News restrictions imposed by the Pentagon raise serious questions as to whether the American people will be able to get a true picture of the war in Viet Nam."

"Correspondents should be free to see and cover all aspects of the war as was done in World War II.

The military spokesman in Saigon was asked whether he could cite any instance in recent weeks where military security had been violated. He replied:

"No, I cannot. But do you lock the door after the horse is gone?"

QUENTIN REYNOLDS

Journalist Quentin Reynolds Dies

Travis Air Force Base, Calif. (UPI)—Globe-trotting author-journalist Quentin Reynolds, who began his career as a New York sports writer and earned fame as a European war correspondent, died Wednesday of cancer. He was 62.

Reynolds, whose books covered such widely diversified subjects as St. Patrick and Adolph Eichmann, died in his sleep 12 hours after an Air Force jet brought him to this northern California base on an emergency flight from Manila.

He had been hospitalized in the Philippines March 9 for treatment of pneumonia. He was transferred four days later to Clark AFB, Manila.

Talked To Brother

Col. Oliver Hood, director of hospital services at Travis, said the cause of death was cancer, primarily in the abdominal region.

Reynolds was conscious Tuesday night and talked to his brother, Assistant Labor Secretary James Reynolds, who had flown here from Washington.

The famed writer had gone to Manila Feb. 23 to work on a biography of Philippines President Diosdado Macapagal.

Reynolds, a large and active man, was born in the Bronx and had been living in New York City. A graduate of Public School 85 in Brooklyn, he attended Manual Training high school and Brown University.

News Background

He was a part-time correspondent for the Brooklyn Eagle while working for his law degree at the Brooklyn Law School and then joined the staff of the old New York World as a sports writer.

Reynolds went to Berlin as a wire service correspondent for International News Service in 1932 and the following year he became an associate editor of Collier's Magazine. He reported from Europe on the events building up to World War II and churned out about 400 articles during the conflict.

He was a prolific magazine writer and made frequent appearances on radio and television.

In 1942, Reynolds married actress Virginia Paine. They were later divorced.

Reynolds' career was often as stormy as his adventures. In a long, legal fight with columnist Westbrook Pegler and the Hearst Corporation, he won a $175,000 libel judgment with the contention that a Pegler article had reduced his ability to sell magazine articles and make broadcast appearances. Pegler has called Reynolds an "absentee war correspondent" and accused him of being "yellow."

On another occasion, Reynolds became involved in a headline-making hoax. He had written a book called "The Man Who Wouldn't Talk," a story about a Canadian hero of the British espionage system. It was later discovered that the hero of the book, George Du Pre, had been an imposter.

FAROUK, 45, DIES IN ROME EXILE

Rome (AP)— Ex-King Farouk of Egypt collapsed over his table in a swank restaurant where he was supping with a woman companion early Wednesday and died before he reached San Camillo Hospital.

Farouk

The roly-poly, 285-pound royal playboy was 45 years old. There was no immediate word of the cause of death.

Farouk, dethroned and exiled by revolutionary officer's coup in July of 1952, roared through the casinos, night clubs, and swank resorts of France and Italy scattering wads of money in recent years as a hapless exile. Lately he had settled down to relative quiet in a villa outside Rome.

His son and three daughters have been living in Lausanne, Switzerland. His two divorced queens—Farida and Narriman —still live in Egypt.

Although there were many reports that he had squandered the estimated $50 million he allegedly brought into exile, a friend said a few years ago he still had about $2 million left and an income of about $3,500 a month.

Farouk kept the thick mustache and dark glasses he sported during his latter years on the throne of Egypt. Around the Mediterranean they became a symbol of the Roman Dolce Vita life he led.

He had ruled since 1936 when, as a handsome boy of 16, he mounted the throne in Cairo to carry on the Mohammed Ali dynasty that had been set up in the 19th Century under the Ottoman Turks.

The 1952 revolution, headed by Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib as the front man and masterminded by Lt. Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, permitted him to name his only son, the infant Fouad, as his successor. But the monarchy soon was ended and Egypt became a republic—now called the United Arab Republic with Nasser as President.

Scandals arising from the Arab defeat by the Israelis in the 1948 Palestine war led to Farouk's downfall.

Farouk and his high-living henchmen in Cairo acquired properties and amassed great wealth. Farouk maintained four palaces—Abdin and Kubbeh in Cairo and Ras El Tin and Montaza in Alexandria—and as was disclosed after his exile he had great collections of erotica and pornography.

'Education Is A Sound Investment'

"Money spent on education is a sound investment" is the conclusion drawn from a study of results of the 1962 Manpower Development and Training Act (MDTA).

Leroy A. Cornelsen, a vocational education specialist in the MDTA Office of Education, conducted the study on a sample group of about 13,000 who have received occupational training since the act was initiated.

He estimated that these previously unemployed persons were costing the public around $3.5 million annually in unemployment compensation and public assistance payments, while contributing little or nothing to the cost of government through income taxes or to the economy through spending.

Costs of training, including instructors' salaries, supplies, training allowances and subsistence payments to students, totaled $13.3 million for the 13,000, Cornelsen estimated.

In 24 weeks, he pointed out in the School Life magazine article, the 70% who obtained work immediately, at an average hourly wage of $2.01, earned $13.7 million, slightly more than the cost of training the entire group. Most of the other 30%, he noted, received employment later.

Projected figures indicate that a trainee will repay the cost of his training to the government through federal income taxes in five years.

"Every dollar spent in training," Cornelsen said, "should return $2.24 a year in gross earnings."

Palm Springs, the millionaire playground of the California desert, claims 18,500 full-time residents.

Plus 50,000 part-timers — (they own houses but can't take it and move out in the 100-degree summer, the softies).

There are 3,350 swimming pools brimming with 97 million gallons of water.

And 105 of the richest Indians in America. Owning 30,000 acres of sand and cactus so valuable that million-dollar hotel chains would give their scalps to lease it.

The first settler in the area was the Honorable Judge John Guthrie McCallum of San Francisco.

The Judge came in 1884. He bought his land from the Southern Pacific railroad — it as a custom in those days to give railroads every other square mile along the right-of-way.

The alternate squares on the checkerboard were given to the Indians. An interesting piece of philanthropy on the part of the government, since the Indians had been here all along.

The Judge built up an adequate water supply. Sold some of his land to Dr. Welwood Murray. Dr. Murray built the 26-room Palm Springs Hotel —though heaven knows who stayed there.

In 1934, the movie star Charles Farrell built The Racquet Club—still the posh tennis club of Southern California.

Palm Springs became fashionable. The astonished Indians quit weaving baskets. They hired lawyers and became richer than the millionaires who were moving in.

Today, Palm Springs draws a half million visitors a year. It has luxury hotels. Deluxe-to-modest motels line Indian avenue.

The desert holds 18 golf courses. (Kept green by pouring on a million gallons of water each day in the four summer months.)

Movie stars wouldn't be caught dead without a palm-fringed home and swimming pool for status sake.

And the local drug store honors all credit cards: Diner's Club, American Express and Carte Blanche.

The desert is connected to Los Angeles by triple-tracked, divided freeway — two easy hours and two stoplights. (It used to be four hours at best. And the route through towns now bypassed, hit 226 stoplights.)

Western Air runs a daily round trip from Los Angeles. Two on the weekends and two daily to San Francisco.

A new aerial tramway lifts the sightseer from the desert floor to 8,000 feet high on Mount San Jacinto.

There are no telephone or or light poles—the wiring is cleverly concealed in street rows of palm trees which light up when night falls.

There is a small but alert police force.

Four newspapers, all with an eye to civic improvement and adequate coverage of the 101 movie name home owners listed by the Chamber of Commerce—Arnaz, Desi to Zanuck, Darryl.

The newest development is the $2 million Palm Springs Spa. Built on mineral water land that gave Palm Springs its name. Leased for 99 years from the Agua Caliente Indians.

The original Desert Inn, built by Mrs. Nellie Coffman in 1908 with a down payment of $2,000, was sold in 1960 for $2.5 million. (It was sold again in 1963. But the buyers aren't saying how much they paid.)

There are French restaurants. Mexican restaurants. A Don-the-Beachcomber's.

"Did you ever have a date with a belly dancer?"

She then hands the blushing ringsider a couple of foil-wrapped dates from the local date palms.

Thus everything comes to Palm Springs. Even the jokes.

In New York, Wes Gallagher, general manager of the Associated Press, said, "News restrictions imposed by the Pentagon raise serious questions as to whether the American people will be able to get a true picture of the war in Viet Nam."

"Correspondents should be free to see and cover all aspects of the war as was done in World War II.

The military spokesman in Saigon was asked whether he could cite any instance in recent weeks where military security had been violated. He replied:

"No, I cannot. But do you lock the door after the horse is gone?"

QUENTIN REYNOLDS

Journalist Quentin Reynolds Dies

Travis Air Force Base, Calif. (UPI)—Globe-trotting author-journalist Quentin Reynolds, who began his career as a New York sports writer and earned fame as a European war correspondent, died Wednesday of cancer. He was 62.

Reynolds, whose books covered such widely diversified subjects as St. Patrick and Adolph Eichmann, died in his sleep 12 hours after an Air Force jet brought him to this northern California base on an emergency flight from Manila.

He had been hospitalized in the Philippines March 9 for treatment of pneumonia. He was transferred four days later to Clark AFB, Manila.

Talked To Brother

Col. Oliver Hood, director of hospital services at Travis, said the cause of death was cancer, primarily in the abdominal region.

Reynolds was conscious Tuesday night and talked to his brother, Assistant Labor Secretary James Reynolds, who had flown here from Washington.

The famed writer had gone to Manila Feb. 23 to work on a biography of Philippines President Diosdado Macapagal.

Reynolds, a large and active man, was born in the Bronx and had been living in New York City. A graduate of Public School 85 in Brooklyn, he attended Manual Training high school and Brown University.

News Background

He was a part-time correspondent for the Brooklyn Eagle while working for his law degree at the Brooklyn Law School and then joined the staff of the old New York World as a sports writer.

Reynolds went to Berlin as a wire service correspondent for International News Service in 1932 and the following year he became an associate editor of Collier's Magazine. He reported from Europe on the events building up to World War II and churned out about 400 articles during the conflict.

He was a prolific magazine writer and made frequent appearances on radio and television.

In 1942, Reynolds married actress Virginia Paine. They were later divorced.

Reynolds' career was often as stormy as his adventures. In a long, legal fight with columnist Westbrook Pegler and the Hearst Corporation, he won a $175,000 libel judgment with the contention that a Pegler article had reduced his ability to sell magazine articles and make broadcast appearances. Pegler has called Reynolds an "absentee war correspondent" and accused him of being "yellow."

On another occasion, Reynolds became involved in a headline-making hoax. He had written a book called "The Man Who Wouldn't Talk," a story about a Canadian hero of the British espionage system. It was later discovered that the hero of the book, George Du Pre, had been an imposter.

FAROUK, 45, DIES IN ROME EXILE

Rome (AP)— Ex-King Farouk of Egypt collapsed over his table in a swank restaurant where he was supping with a woman companion early Wednesday and died before he reached San Camillo Hospital.

Farouk

The roly-poly, 285-pound royal playboy was 45 years old. There was no immediate word of the cause of death.

Farouk, dethroned and exiled by revolutionary officer's coup in July of 1952, roared through the casinos, night clubs, and swank resorts of France and Italy scattering wads of money in recent years as a hapless exile. Lately he had settled down to relative quiet in a villa outside Rome.

His son and three daughters have been living in Lausanne, Switzerland. His two divorced queens—Farida and Narriman —still live in Egypt.

Although there were many reports that he had squandered the estimated $50 million he allegedly brought into exile, a friend said a few years ago he still had about $2 million left and an income of about $3,500 a month.

Farouk kept the thick mustache and dark glasses he sported during his latter years on the throne of Egypt. Around the Mediterranean they became a symbol of the Roman Dolce Vita life he led.

He had ruled since 1936 when, as a handsome boy of 16, he mounted the throne in Cairo to carry on the Mohammed Ali dynasty that had been set up in the 19th Century under the Ottoman Turks.

The 1952 revolution, headed by Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib as the front man and masterminded by Lt. Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, permitted him to name his only son, the infant Fouad, as his successor. But the monarchy soon was ended and Egypt became a republic—now called the United Arab Republic with Nasser as President.

Scandals arising from the Arab defeat by the Israelis in the 1948 Palestine war led to Farouk's downfall.

Farouk and his high-living henchmen in Cairo acquired properties and amassed great wealth. Farouk maintained four palaces—Abdin and Kubbeh in Cairo and Ras El Tin and Montaza in Alexandria—and as was disclosed after his exile he had great collections of erotica and pornography.

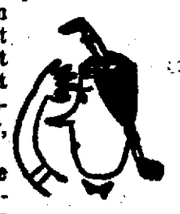
POSTCARD

Palm Springs, the millionaire playground of the California desert, claims 18,500 full-time residents.

Plus 50,000 part-timers — (they own houses but can't take it and move out in the 100-degree summer, the softies).



There are 3,350 swimming pools brimming with 97 million gallons of water.

And 185 of the richest Indians in America. Owning 30,000 acres of sand and cactus so valuable that million-dollar hotel chains would give their scalps to lease it.

The first settler in the area was the Honorable Judge John Guthrie McCallum of San Francisco.

The Judge came in 1884. He bought his land from the Southern Pacific railroad — it as a custom in those days to give railroads every other square mile along the right-of-way.

The alternate squares on the checkerboard were given to the Indians. An interesting piece of philanthropy on the part of the government, since the Indians had been here all along.

The Judge built up an adequate water supply. Sold some of his land to Dr. Welwood Murray. Dr. Murray built the 26-room Palm Springs Hotel —though heaven knows who stayed there.

In 1934, the movie star Charles Farrell built The Racquet Club—still the posh tennis club of Southern California.

Palm Springs became fashionable. The astonished Indians quit weaving baskets. They hired lawyers and became richer than the millionaires who were moving in.

Today, Palm Springs draws a half million visitors a year. It has luxury hotels, Deluxe-to-modest motels line Indian avenue.

The desert holds 18 golf courses. (Kept green by pouring on a million gallons of water each day in the four summer months.)

Movie stars wouldn't be caught dead without a palm-fringed home and swimming pool for status sake.

And the local drug store honors all credit cards: Diner's Club, American Express and Carte Blanche.

The desert is connected to Los Angeles by triple-tracked, divided freeway — two easy hours and two stoplights. (It used to be four hours at best. And the route through towns now bypassed, hit 226 stoplights.)

Western Air runs a daily round trip from Los Angeles. Two on the weekends and two daily to San Francisco.

A new aerial tramway lifts the sightseer from the desert floor to 8,000 feet high on Mount San Jacinto.

There are no telephone or or light poles—the wiring is cleverly concealed in street rows of palm trees which light up when night falls.

There is a small but alert police force.

Four newspapers, all with an eye to civic improvement and adequate coverage of the 101 movie name home owners listed by the Chamber of Commerce—Arnaz, Desi to Zanuck, Darryl.

The newest development is the $2 million Palm Springs Spa. Built on mineral water land that gave Palm Springs its name. Leased for 99 years from the Agua Caliente Indians.

The original Desert Inn, built by Mrs. Nellie Coffman in 1908 with a down payment of $2,000, was sold in 1960 for $2.5 million. (It was sold again in 1963. But the buyers aren't saying how much they paid.)

There are French restaurants. Mexican restaurants. A Don-the-Beachcomber's.

"Did you ever have a date with a belly dancer?"

She then hands the blushing ringsider a couple of foil-wrapped dates from the local date palms.

Union, Management Clash Over Repeal Of 'Full Crew'

The Labor Committee adjourned without action Wednesday on a controversial measure that would repeal the freight train provision in Nebraska's "full crew" train law.

The committee heard conflicting testimony on the necessity of a fireman in a diesel locomotive cab for safety purposes.

56-Year-Old Law

The 56-year-old law requires that freight trains, operating outside yard limits, be manned by an engineer, fireman, conductor and two brakemen.

E. R. Miller of Omaha, representing the Nebraska Railroads Association, told the committee that none of the states surrounding Nebraska has similar laws.

He pointed out that passenger trains operate with only two men in the cab, adding that "it doesn't make sense" to require both an engineer and fireman in a freight locomotive cab since there is a brakeman there during runs between towns.

James Wilcox, another railroad spokesman, said a national arbitration board ruled in 1963 that firemen are not essential for freights except in "very rare" cases.

Following the board decision, Nebraska railroads in most cases began operating freight trains without firemen since May of last year, Wilcox noted.

Test Case

At present, a test case involving a diesel freight operated without a fireman is awaiting hearing before the Nebraska Supreme Court. It is an appeal from an earlier Jefferson County District Court ruling in which Judge Ernest Hubka ruled that freights could be operated without firemen.

Wilcox said advances in railroad technology have made the firemans' job obsolete, and that eliminating the position would not be a safety factor.

This testimony was countered by A. W. Westphal, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and other union spokesmen.

Freight trains are larger and faster now, Westphal said, and the danger is even greater. He contended that other employe reductions by railroads have reduced the number of safety checks of cars and equipment.

He also stated that LB336 would affect all crew members on freights. "They want to get rid of both trainmen, too," Westphal said.

Not Safer

"Implications that modern equipment is safer are not true," Lincoln attorney Donn E. Davis said, adding that the railroad accident rate is higher now than it was when steam engines were used.

After Nebraska railroads began operating without firemen, he added, the accident rate went up.

The committee also heard and held LB768, increasing the penalties for safety violations by employers. The bill was not opposed.

Race Commission Employes Eligible In Retirement Act

Employes and officials of the State Racing Commission are eligible for benefits under the State Employes Retirement Act, the Nebraska Justice Department held Wednesday.

The department opinion was written by Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard Williams at the request of Frank J. Barrett, state insurance director.

$50,000 BONUS FOR BILLBOARD CONTROL

Francis C. Turner, right, chief engineer for the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, Wednesday handed over a $50,000 check to Gov. Frank Morrison and State Engineer John Hossack, left. The money was the first payment to Nebraska for controlling advertising along the Interstate Highway. The money may be used for any purpose by the State Department of Roads. The bonus was for controlling billboards along Interstate 80 for a 40-mile stretch between Kearney and Grand Island. It is anticipated that some $1.25 million in bonus payments will be received by the state by the time the Interstate system is complete. (Star Photo.)

Bill Adding 6% Interest To Judgments Killed

A bill which its introducer said was intended to speed adjudication of personal injury cases was killed by the Legislature's Judiciary Committee on a 5-2 vote Wednesday.

The bill, LB734, sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Hal Bauer, would have provided for 6% interest on judgments of damages for personal injuries.

He said the interest provision would prevent defendants in personal injury cases from stalling and causing more financial hardships for the plaintiffs. The Nebraska Association of Trial Attorneys also supported the bill.

Representatives of several casualty insurance companies opposed the measure. They contended such a law would result in higher insurance premiums and possibly unfair judgments.

The committee advanced:

LB723, increasing the penalty for abandoning leased or rented motor vehicles.

LB698, providing for a five-year prison sentence for inmates at the state penitentiary or reformatories who unlawfully assault other inmates.

FBI Not Told Of Bank's Illegal Fee 'Custom' Until After Failure

Washington (UPI) — The FBI was not told until a month after the San Francisco National Bank failed that the bank president and an associate had a "fixed custom" of splitting fees from borrowers, a bank examiner testified Wednesday.

Examiner Victor Del Tredici, who discovered the fee-splitting practice in May, 1964 said he considered the practice illegal. He said he drafted a letter about it to U.S. Atty. Cecil Poole in San Francisco but the letter never was sent.

Del Tredici said A. E. Larsen, the west coast regional comptroller of the currency, sent the letter instead to the office of U.S. Currency Comptroller James J. Saxon in Washington. The Justice Department was not informed of it until Feb. 26 of this year—more than a month after Saxon had ordered the floundering bank closed down.

'Non-Cooperation'

This testimony before Sen. John L. McClellan's Senate rackets subcommittee—which is investigating recent bank failures — followed previous statements that jealousy between federal banking agencies was responsible for "non-cooperation" in policing the banks.

J. L. Robertson, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, said in a speech in San Francisco Wednesday that the entire system of regulating state and national banks is a "tangle of overlapping responsibilities, conflicting philosophies and procedural cross-purposes."

Robertson called for creation of a single federal agency to do the job of the Federal Reserve, comptroller of the currency, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC).

Diverse Policing

Under the present system, Saxon's office charters and regulates national banks. Individual states charter state banks, but the Federal Reserve and the FDIC help the states regulate them. The FDIC also helps control operation of the 7,262 state banks which are not members of the Federal Reserve System but which protect their depositors with federal insurance.

Robertson said the system has produced "disorder, if not chaos."

Operations of the San Francisco National Bank, which failed Jan. 22, and its free-spending president, Don D. Silverthorne, have occupied the attention of the Senate investigators.

Bradford H. McNutt, a Sausalito, Calif., real estate man, testified that he and his partner paid a fee of $100,000 to get loans totaling $550,000 from Silverthorne's bank through Bennett.

Shocked McClellan

The statement shocked Sen. McClellan who repeated the figure and then asked: "Do you know where this money went?"

"He (Bennett) told me some time later that $70,000 was paid to Mr. Silverthorne," McNutt replied.

McNutt said he and his partner, Bruce Bernhard, had borrowed much smaller amounts previously from San Francisco National without paying a fee. But he said they paid a $7,500 fee in October, 1963, to get a $150,000 loan with the verbal understanding that their 90-day demand note would be renewed for a year.

He said Silverthorne told them the fee was part of the bank's profit for lending money in addition to the interest.

Wednesday Larsen described his efforts to keep the bank from going broke.

He said that on the morning of the day the bank folded, he tried unsuccessfully to get the Litton Savings and Loan Co. not to demand payment of a $1.5 million certificate of deposit. He said the Federal Reserve Bank pumped $1.3 million into the bank on its last day.

"We kept hoping until the last moment but new funds from promised sources never materialized," Larsen said.

Paul M. Rooney, an examiner for the FDIC, testified that $264,063 was paid to "money brokers" to lure certificates of deposit to the floundering bank. He said this was an unusual amount and an unusual practice.

If Economy Slows, Tax Cuts Asked

. . . IN CONGRESS

Washington (UPI) — Congress should cut excise taxes more than the $1.7 billion President Johnson has requested, if the economy starts slowing down, the Joint Congressional Economic Committee said Wednesday.

The committee also warned that the government should be ready to take "decisive action" if the rise in Social Security taxes due to take effect next Jan. 1 threatens to choke off the current expansion.

Current forecasts for the economy in 1965 are "not good enough" to put everyone to work and get the country's factories operating at full capacity, the committee said.

GOP Separate Section

These views were contained in the committee's own report on the economic report Johnson sent Congress in January. In a separate section, Republican members of the House-Senate panel cautioned against deficit spending, more national debt, a possible steel strike and a letdown from the current steel stockpiling in anticipation of a steel strike.

According to the Democratic views, a larger cut in excise taxes is needed now to allow a "thorough overhaul" of the excise tax structure. Should the economy turn down, a larger cut would be justified on two grounds, the committee said.

Administration officials have been saying privately that they will recommend a bigger reduction than $1.7 billion, if the economy looks as though it needs more of a shot in the arm.

Social Security

The Administration is counting on additional stimulus from an increase in Social Security benefits that would take effect this summer. But taxpayers wouldn't have to start paying for this until next Jan. 1.

The committee voiced concern over possible harm to the economy when paychecks are suddenly reduced by increased Social Security taxes.

With the economy still short of full employment, threre is "no reason" why inflation should break out in 1965, the committee said.

Some officials have urged higher interest rates in order to prevent dollars from going abroad in search of a higher rate of return. President Johnson has rejected this approach to the balance of payments and has turned instead to voluntary restraint by businessmen and bankers.

The committee applauded Johnson's emphasis but warned that if voluntary restraint fails to halt the dollar drain, then there will be "no alternative to legislation and mandatory controls."

Union, Management Clash Over Repeal Of 'Full Crew'

The Labor Committee adjourned without action Wednesday on a controversial measure that would repeal the freight train provision in Nebraska's "full crew" train law.

The committee heard conflicting testimony on the necessity of a fireman in a diesel locomotive cab for safety purposes.

56-Year-Old Law

The 56-year-old law requires that freight trains, operating outside yard limits, be manned by an engineer, fireman, conductor and two brakemen.

E. R. Miller of Omaha, representing the Nebraska Railroads Association, told the committee that none of the states surrounding Nebraska has similar laws.

He pointed out that passenger trains operate with only two men in the cab, adding that "it doesn't make sense" to require both an engineer and fireman in a freight locomotive cab since there is a brakeman there during runs between towns.

James Wilcox, another railroad spokesman, said a national arbitration board ruled in 1963 that firemen are not essential for freights except in "very rare" cases.

Following the board decision, Nebraska railroads in most cases began operating freight trains without firemen since May of last year, Wilcox noted.

Test Case

At present, a test case involving a diesel freight operated without a fireman is awaiting hearing before the Nebraska Supreme Court. It is an appeal from an earlier Jefferson County District Court ruling in which Judge Ernest Hubka ruled that freights could be operated without firemen.

Wilcox said advances in railroad technology have made the firemans' job obsolete, and that eliminating the position would not be a safety factor.

This testimony was countered by A. W. Westphal, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and other union spokesmen.

Freight trains are larger and faster now, Westphal said, and the danger is even greater. He contended that other employe reductions by railroads have reduced the number of safety checks of cars and equipment.

He also stated that LB336 would affect all crew members on freights. "They want to get rid of both trainmen, too," Westphal said.

Not Safer

"Implications that modern equipment is safer are not true," Lincoln attorney Donn E. Davis said, adding that the railroad accident rate is higher now than it was when steam engines were used.

After Nebraska railroads began operating without firemen, he added, the accident rate went up.

The committee also heard and held LB768, increasing the penalties for safety violations by employers. The bill was not opposed.

Race Commission Employes Eligible In Retirement Act

Employes and officials of the State Racing Commission are eligible for benefits under the State Employes Retirement Act, the Nebraska Justice Department held Wednesday.

The department opinion was written by Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard Williams at the request of Frank J. Barrett, state insurance director.

$50,000 BONUS FOR BILLBOARD CONTROL

Francis C. Turner, right, chief engineer for the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, Wednesday handed over a $50,000 check to Gov. Frank Morrison and State Engineer John Hossack, left. The money was the first payment to Nebraska for controlling advertising along the Interstate Highway. The money may be used for any purpose by the State Department of Roads. The bonus was for controlling billboards along Interstate 80 for a 40-mile stretch between Kearney and Grand Island. It is anticipated that some $1.25 million in bonus payments will be received by the state by the time the Interstate system is complete. (Star Photo.)

Bill Adding 6% Interest To Judgments Killed

A bill which its introducer said was intended to speed adjudication of personal injury cases was killed by the Legislature's Judiciary Committee on a 5-2 vote Wednesday.

The bill, LB734, sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Hal Bauer, would have provided for 6% interest on judgments of damages for personal injuries.

He said the interest provision would prevent defendants in personal injury cases from stalling and causing more financial hardships for the plaintiffs. The Nebraska Association of Trial Attorneys also supported the bill.

Representatives of several casualty insurance companies opposed the measure. They contended such a law would result in higher insurance premiums and possibly unfair judgments.

The committee advanced:

LB723, increasing the penalty for abandoning leased or rented motor vehicles.

LB698, providing for a five-year prison sentence for inmates at the state penitentiary or reformatories who unlawfully assault other inmates.

FBI Not Told Of Bank's Illegal Fee 'Custom' Until After Failure

Water Priority Change Suggested

. . . LB376 WOULD AFFECT WELLS

By MARY REIFSCHNEIDER
Star Staff Writer

A change in Nebraska's water priority system was suggested Wednesday night at an informal discussion relating to LB376.

The bill, introduced by Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance, would extend eminent domain powers of first and second class cities and villages to include water wells.

Gerdes added an amendment that the wells must provide water "for domestic use." Nebraska's present policy regarding water usage gives domestic use first priority, then agriculture and, last, industry.

All Three

Eugene Reed, University of Nebraska director of conservation and state geologist, said a city's use of water almost always encompasses all three types of usage.

Reed and several of the state senators agreed that Nebraska ought to reconsider its present priority system for the future.

Sen. Gerdes said he will withdraw his amendment to the bill.

The amendment was opposed by Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice because his community has contracted to sell water to a part of multi-million dollar fertilizer plants outside the city limits.

A representative from the Phillips Petroleum Co., who plans to build the plants outside Beatrice, said the plants will require 75 to 80 million gallons of water per month.

High Mineral Content

There will be about 11 to 20 million gallons of discharge water per month from the plant. The water won't be contaminated, but will have lost most of its vapor thus having a high mineral content.

Reed said he didn't know if the water could be returned to the ground.

Warren Fairchild, executive secretary of the state water and soil conservation commission said, "We should be interested in the ultimate development and use of reservoirs for the future." He noted that the federal government favors conservation programs with multi-uses.

Reed said there has been no evidence that the wells for the Phillips plants would lower the level of ground water in the area.

"If we would tie industrial use in with municipal use, we'd have better control over water," Reed said.

'See Red'

Sen. Stan Matzke of Milford said pump irrigators "see red when anything but agriculture use is mentioned and resent any controls. "The day will come when we'll have to unify domestic, and industrial use in municipal use," he said.

Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa said, "It's a matter of placing industry where water is."

State Doesn't Have Song, Solon Decides

Despite some thought to the contrary, State Sen. Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont is convinced Nebraska has never had a state song.

A recent article in the "Nebraska Oil Jobber" magazine stated that the 1901 Legislature adopted "Nebraska," by William O'Shea, as the official state song.

Rasmussen was understandably concerned. He is chairman of the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee which has been delegated the task of selecting a state song candidate.

Rasmussen asked the Legislative Council, the research arm of the Unicameral, to check on the "Nebraska" tune. The council drew a blank. So did the State Historical Society.

A check with the Library of Congress in Washington showed the O'Shea song was copyrighted in 1901 with the designation, "a new state song."

Rasmussen, after further investigation, finally concluded that neither house of the 1901 Legislature — it was bicameral then — took any state song action.

The committee's public hearing on the seven state song bills will be held as scheduled, April 1.

Syas Would Have Cast 7th Vote To OK Brown

Sen. George Syas of Omaha said Wednesday that Richard Brown of Holdrege would have been recommended for confirmation by the Legislature as a member of the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds if he had been present at Brown's confirmation hearing.

The committee's vote was 6-1 to recommend confirmation. Seven members of the 13-member committee must recommend confirmation.

Syas, a member of the committee, was absent from the meeting and would have cast the seventh vote.

Rickard Elected

Morrison To Attend Talks In Washington

Gov. Frank Morrison will fly Sunday to Washington, D.C., for three days of meetings and conferences there.

Gene Budig, the governor's administrative assistant, said Morrison will confer Monday with Interior Secretary Stewart Udall regarding Fort Robinson.

On Tuesday, he will attend a White House dinner and briefing after conferences with other federal officials during the day.

On Wednesday, the governor will testify before a Congressoinal committee on behalf of efforts to retain Lincoln's Veterans Administration Hospital.

He is also scheduled to confer with the Department of Agriculture to explore further the possibility of a national beef export council.

Fairbury Bond Vote Attempt Rejected, 5-2

Fairbury—Opponents of a $325,000 four-lane improvement of U.S. 136 have failed in an attempt to bring the embattled issue to ballot.

By a 5-2 vote, the City Council in effect threw out a referendum petition Wednesday night on grounds it had been altered after some of its 494 signatures were obtained. The action came despite a lawsuit which Councilman Luke Slater said he believed will be forthcoming.

Slater, who had opposed the project through three ordinance readings, was joined by Don Mitchell in upholding the document's intent.

'Solid Ground'

City Atty. Arthur J. Denney said that the petition was "questionable," its legality hinging on "whether you can prove something was added after it was signed." Mayor Ted Scherbarts said he was convinced that "we're on solid ground in believing it is null and void."

The mayor explained that some of the petition's 24 pages were originally filed March 9th, then taken back by sponsors for checking with the city attorney. New headings were allegedly pasted above the signatures before refiling a week later.

The city attorney pointed out, however, that in his opinion the council's Feb. 16th ordinance itself is of questionable status. Although a bond attorney has indicated approval, Denney said he knows of "no statute in Nebraska that gives the authority to create a district in this manner."

General Obligation

Rather than assess the improvement against abutting property, the council had ordered funding of the project as a general city obligation.

Fairbury's share thus would be $81,250 to be matched by the same amount in state money and $162,500 from federal funds.

Water Priority Change Suggested

By MARY REIFSCHNEIDER
Star Staff Writer

A change in Nebraska's water priority system was suggested Wednesday night at an informal discussion relating to LB376.

The bill, introduced by Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance, would extend eminent domain powers of first and second class cities and villages to include water wells.

Gerdes added an amendment that the wells must provide water "for domestic use." Nebraska's present policy regarding water usage gives domestic use first priority, then agriculture and, last, industry.

All Three

Eugene Reed, University of Nebraska director of conservation and state geologist, said a city's use of water almost always encompasses all three types of usage.

Reed and several of the state senators agreed that Nebraska ought to reconsider its present priority system for the future.

Sen. Gerdes said he will withdraw his amendment to the bill.

The amendment was opposed by Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice because his community has contracted to sell water to a part of multi-million dollar fertilizer plants outside the city limits.

A representative from the Phillips Petroleum Co., who plans to build the plants outside Beatrice, said the plants will require 75 to 80 million gallons of water per month.

High Mineral Content

There will be about 11 to 20 million gallons of discharge water per month from the plant. The water won't be contaminated, but will have lost most of its vapor thus having a high mineral content.

Reed said he didn't know if the water could be returned to the ground.

Warren Fairchild, executive secretary of the state water and soil conservation commission said, "We should be interested in the ultimate development and use of reservoirs for the future." He noted that the federal government favors conservation programs with multi-uses.

Reed said there has been no evidence that the wells for the Phillips plants would lower the level of ground water in the area.

"If we would tie industrial use in with municipal use, we'd have better control over water," Reed said.

'See Red'

Sen. Stan Matzke of Milford said pump irrigators "see red when anything but agriculture use is mentioned and resent any controls. "The day will come when we'll have to unify domestic, and industrial use in municipal use," he said.

Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa said, "It's a matter of placing industry where water is."

State Doesn't Have Song, Solon Decides

The committee's public hearing on the seven state song bills will be held as scheduled, April 1.

Syas Would Have Cast 7th Vote To OK Brown

Sen. George Syas of Omaha said Wednesday that Richard Brown of Holdrege would have been recommended for confirmation by the Legislature as a member of the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds if he had been present at Brown's confirmation hearing.

The Committee on Committees failed to recommend confirmation, and Brown subsequently withdrew as a gubernatorial nominee for the post.

The committee's vote was 6-1 to recommend confirmation. Seven members of the 13-member committee must recommend confirmation.

Syas, a member of the committee, was absent from the meeting and would have cast the seventh vote.

Rickard Elected

Des Moines (AP) — The Iowa Lumbermen's Association elected E. Owen Rickard of Richardson Lumber Supply of Grinnell as president.

Gov. Frank Morrison will fly Sunday to Washington, D.C., for three days of meetings and conferences there.

On Tuesday, he will attend a White House dinner and briefing after conferences with other federal officials during the day.

On Wednesday, the governor will testify before a Congressoinal committee on behalf of efforts to retain Lincoln's Veterans Administration Hospital.

He is also scheduled to confer with the Department of Agriculture to explore further the possibility of a national beef export council.

Fairbury Bond Vote Attempt Rejected, 5-2

Fairbury—Opponents of a $325,000 four-lane improvement of U.S. 136 have failed in an attempt to bring the embattled issue to ballot.

By a 5-2 vote, the City Council in effect threw out a referendum petition Wednesday night on grounds it had been altered after some of its 494 signatures were obtained. The action came despite a lawsuit which Councilman Luke Slater said he believed will be forthcoming.

Slater, who had opposed the project through three ordinance readings, was joined by Don Mitchell in upholding the document's intent.

Rather than assess the improvement against abutting property, the council had ordered funding of the project as a general city obligation.

City Officials Study NU Expansion Problems

City officials met for two hours Wednesday morning to work out policy regarding the University of Nebraska's request to vacate 14th St. in the campus area.

The mayor, City Council members and city department heads agreed that city and University expansion plans must be correlated and should be worked out together.

How quickly the campus section of 14th is closed hinges on finding the best possible way to re-route the approximately 5,000 vehicles using 14th as a throughway each day, and accommodating the city's interest in protecting its residents who live north of the campus area.

By-Passes Needed

The city engineering and traffic engineering departments have said that by-passes should be built before 14th is vacated and have indicated that the best and most economical route is the proposed Holdrege St. by-pass, for which funds have been allocated this coming fiscal year.

Ultimate plans call for construction of the Northeast Radial and vacation of the twin one-ways, 16th and 17th, on the east side of the campus.

Other points discussed Wednesday:

—The city will want the University to plan its access points to city streets, and plan its parking areas and interior streets.

—The city proposes that the University not move any utilities if 14th is vacated. The city wants to retain easements for water, gas and sewer mains and storm sewers located on 14th.

Access

—Fire Chief Roscoe Benton wants assurance that adequate access to the campus for fire-fighting equipment is planned for.

—Douglas Brogden, city planning director, said that the City-County Planning Commission had recommended vacation of 14th, after by-passes have been constructed, because it would provide for more efficient land use and would aid the downtown business district by excluding large volumes of through traffic.

A meeting between city and NU officials to coordinate planning is being scheduled.

The February report also shows that the number of lobbyists registered with the secretary of state has increased from 150 to 172.

GUESTS

It's a lively town at the moment—Perhaps not today, or even tomorrow, but the weekend certainly will dawn with a rosy hue.

Our rosy dawn will come a bit early on Saturday morning—when Miss Ann Baumgart arrives from Danville, Ill., and her fiance, Robert Lordner Van Dervoort, Jr., arrives from Chicago at a very early hour.

And the fun begins on Saturday evening when Miss Baumgart and Mr. VanDervoort,, Jr., whose marriage will take place on March 27, will share honors at a party. The hosts and hostesses for the canape party and supper will be Mr. and Mrs. Elwood N. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Burnham Yates who will entertain at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Yates.

The Sunday calendar also includes courtesies for Miss Baumgart and Mr. Van Dervoort. The first of these is a 12 o'clock brunch on Sunday morning when Mr. and Mrs. David Makepeace compliment the soon-to-be weds at their home.

On Sunday evening Miss Baumgart and Mr. VanDervoort will again be complimented when Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Barber, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henrion are hosts and hostesses at a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henrion. The guest list will include members of the families.

This is a week of homecoming for some of the fortunates who chose the month of March as holiday time.

Just home on Tuesday evening, for instance, were Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sidles who returned from a week spent at Caneel Bay, the Virgin Islands.

Also back in town are Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. DeBrown, who left Lincoln in one snow storm, and returned just in time for another taste of winter.

Mr. and Mrs. DeBrown left a month ago for Mesa, Ariz., where they spent two weeks before going on to Desert Springs, Calif. En route home they stopped at Las Vegas, Nev., where they had a brief visit with their son, J. Wallace deBrown, who was just leaving for home following the golf tournament.

Last Sunday brought Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Joyce home from—Las Vegas and the golf tournament—and Scottsdale, Ariz. Mr. and Mrs. Joyce were away for two weeks.

What has 400 wheels goes 90 miles an hour and when put in "drive", heads south? An automobile filled with residents of suburbia who are tired of Nebraska's weather.

The shiny automobile which was given the works and was clean as a whistle on one of those warm days earlier in the week, carried several Park Manor residents to other, and we hope warmer states for short vacations or for business reasons.

Here at home, the social calendars are not so glowing. This must be the weekend for relaxation or preparation for the parties ahead.

PARK MANOR

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Goshen returned Monday from St. Louis, Mo. Mr. Goshen had business to attend to while in the city, so Mrs. Goshen drove on to Bloomfield, Mo. to spend her time visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Doerschlen.

Leaving today for their home in Decatur, Ga. are Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Markey. The Markeys have been visiting this past week with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roby Dollar.

Just to let you know that bridge parties have not become extinct in Park Manor, we will mention one that was held last night at the Thomas Whitcomb residence.

Mrs. Robert Markel served as co-hostess when the Skyline Drive neighborhood ladies met for their monthly bridge party. Guests present for the evening affair were Mrs. Howard Miller, Mrs. Earl Anderson, Mrs. Val Vitek, Mrs. Don Yates, Mrs. Bob Dunn and Mrs. Marc Anthony who substituted for one of the regulars. Dessert followed the bridge games.

Laura Gruhn observed her fourth birthday last Saturday with a party planned by her mother, Mrs. Gerald Gruhn. The guest list included neighborhood friends of all ages. But, Laura did have three special guests and they were Nancy Whitcomb, Jeff Adams and Tom Patitz. Ice cream and cake was served after an afternoon of games and prizes.

BETHANY PARK HEIGHTS

Mrs. Glenford Sliter changed the direction of our suburban automobile from south to east last Tuesday when she left for Middletown, N.Y. Mrs. Sliter is traveling to Middletown for no other reason than to attend the Golden wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Nutt.

Mrs. Sliter, one of seven children and the farthest away from her parents home, will return to Lincoln within a week.

A new resident has arrived in Bethany Park Heights. She is very young Lorna Louise Peterson, who was born March 4th at Bryan Memorial Hospital. Lorna's parents, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson and she has two brothers, Doug and Duane.

FIENE HEIGHTS

On the guest list were Dale's two grandmothers, Mrs. Florence Pierce and Mrs. Mary Agnew of Agnew and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCarthy and their daughter, Roxanne. Also present was Dale's sister, Diane.

What They're Reading

The best seller list reveals that a cold war exists between the fiction and non-fiction lists. If you'll remember from last week, "My Shadow Ran Fast' by Sands stepped into the listings at the number six position under non-fiction, while "Hotel" by Hailey walked in on the fiction list only to be placed 10th. "Hotel" now ranks seventh and is preceded by a newcomer to the roll, "Up the Down Staircase" by Kaufman.

Referring back to "My Shadow Ran Fast," you will note that it has been halted at the number six spot for its second week of reign. Number 10 on the non-fiction list this week is "Catherine the Great" by Oldenbourg, replacing a long time ranker, "My Autobiography' by Chaplin.

It will be interesting to see if the non-fiction come on. "Catherine the Great" will progress up the list as quickly as "Hotel" did during one week of its reign. Then again you'll want to check on "Up the Down Staircase" and see if it will be halted at its debut position as happened with "My Shadow Ran Fast."

All in all, the best seller list has an interesting outlook, but let's take a glance at the situation as it now stands.

Fiction

1. "Herzog,' Bellow
2. "The Man," Wallace
3. "Funeral in Berlin," Deighton
4. "Hurry Sundown," Gilden
5. "Rector of Justin," Auchincloss
6. "Up the Down Staircase," Kaufman
7. "Hotel,' Hailey
8. "Covenant with Death," Becker
9. "This Rough Magic," Stewart.
10. "Legend of the Seventh Virgin," Holt

Non-Fiction

1. "Markings," Hammarskjold
2. "Founding Fathers," Whalen
3. "Queen Victoria: Born to Succeed,' Longford
4. "Reminiscences," MacArthur.
5. "The Italians," Barzini
6. "My Shadow Ran Fast," Sands
7. "Sixpence in Her Shoe," McGinley
8. "Life of Picasso," Lake
9. "The Words,' Sartre
10. "Catherine the Great," Oldenburg

PEO Elects

Also named to office were Mrs. R. V. Adolphson, vice president; Mrs. G. A. McCall, recording secretary; Mrs. R. E. Stoller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. Hart, treasurer; Mrs. J. L. Jay, chaplain; and Mrs. H. E. Wolfmann, guard.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and male, and my problem is this: How can I graciously answer the questions, "Why are you limping?" and, "Why don't you dance?"

Most people are not aware of my limp unless they've known me for a long time. It is not very noticeable except when I am tired. Some people think I have recently hurt my leg. The reason I limp, Abby, is because I had polio, and surgery as a result of it. But I'm afraid if I were to tell people this it would create an awkward silence. An offhand wisecrack doesn't go over well now that I'm older. Can you tell me how to answer these two questions so there will be no further discussion of a subject I find rather unpleasant?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: The best reply to both questions is the simple truth: I've had surgery as a result of polio." If questions persist after that, answer them graciously enough so the inquirer will not be embarrassed, and briefly enough so he will realize that you don't wish to dwell on the subject.

DEAR ABBY: We have a handsome, intelligent boss who has one fault. He opens everybody's mail. It doesn't matter if it's marked PERSONAL, or not. He opens it anyway. Even bills! And I know he reads everything because he's made remarks about bills being overdue and other information he could only have picked up from personal letters. I once tried to tell him in a nice way that he shouldn't open other people's mail, but he said he opens all the letters from the back and he doesn't pay any attention to whom it is addressed. I can't get used to this. I wait for the mail and try to get mine first, but some days he beats me to it. He owns this business and he's the boss, and I have to eat. So what do I do?

"J" IN PORTLAND

DEAR "J": Don't tell me that's the only job in Portland! It is obvious that your handsome, intelligent boss has nose trouble. If you want the privacy to which every employee is entitled, clear out of there and find another job. But if you remain, knowing your privacy is being violated, don't complain.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is usually pretty good, but you sure missed your answer to the woman who complained because her husband "lost all interest" in her. You advised her to get him to a doctor. Doctor, my eye! She should take herself to a lawyer. I was married to a man who, after only nine years of marriage, lost all interest in me, too. I checked into his outside activities and found out that he had girl friends all over town. No wonder he lost interest in me. He was always dead tired. He only came home to rest up.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	Dble.	1 ♠	Pass
4 ♥	5 ♣	Dble.

Opening lead — four of hearts.

It is not especially difficult to make five clubs if you see all four hands. All you have to do is time your plays right and let nature take care of the rest.

However, to make the contract without seeing the adverse hands is much more of a chore, since it requires visualizing the East-West cards accurately, and then taking advantage of this knowledge.

Actually, this is not a difficult task. The bidding speaks for itself and the missing cards are likely to be where the bidding indicates they are.

East practically has to have a seven-card suit for his jump to four hearts, and West, who doubled five clubs, is fairly well marked with a spade suit headed by the A-J. Assuming these conclusions to be correct, the play of the hand becomes merely an exercise in good technique.

East wins the heart lead with the jack and continues with a heart which you ruff with the ten. Taking a long-distance view, you now cash the A-K of diamonds before leading a club to the eight.

You then ruff a diamond high, followed by a club to the nine so that you can ruff dummy's last diamond and at the same time run West out of diamonds.

Having taken care of these preliminaries, you draw West's last trump, reducing his hand to only spades. Your cards by this time consist of the Q-10-5 of spades and a trump, while dummy has the K-4-2 of spades and a heart.

You now lead the queen of spades and West becomes a victim of your earlier preparations.

If he takes the queen with the ace, that will be his side's last trick because he is forced to return a spade and your ten and queen both become tricks. If he does not take the queen of spades, you make the contract by continuing with a spade towards the king.

NFWC To Convene

The theme, "Faith To Do Our Duty," has been chosen for the 69th annual convention of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs, which will be held in Lincoln April 6 to 8.

Mrs. W. R. Kirchhefer of Sutton, state president, has announced that a special convention guest will be Mrs. William H. Hasebroock of West Point, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who will address the members at the Wednesday evening convention banquet.

The convention will open Tuesday afternoon with a reception at the Governor's Mansion honoring former state presidents, and the Tuesday evening banquet will feature as speakers Gov. Frank Morrison and Mrs. Walter Magee of Lakewood, Ohio, second vice president of the federation.

GOOD

food for Lenten season

Economical meals without meat, but with fine flavor, put a feather in any cook's cap. By using cheese, it's an accomplishment within the reach of all. As a mainstay of meatless menus, cheese, teamed with hard-cooked eggs and tempting tuna, contributes much in taste and nutrients.

SCALLOPED CHEESE 'N TUNA
(Makes 5 to 6 servings)

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon dehydrated minched onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup flour
2-3 cup nonfat dry milk
1¾ cups water
2 cups processed American Cheese, shredded (¼ of 2 pound loaf)
3 (7-oz.) cans flaked tuna fish
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

In a medium-size saucepan, over medium heat, melt butter. Add green pepper, onion and salt; saute until tender. Blend in flour. Sprinkle nonfat dry milk over water; stir to blend. Gradually stir milk into vegetable-flour mixture. Stir constantly and cook until thickened and smooth. Add cheese; stir until melted. In a 12x7½x2-inch baking dish, make a layer of tuna fish, hard-cooked egg slices and cheese sauce; repeat to make second layer. Bake in a moderate (350 degree F.) oven for 20 minutes, or until light golden brown. If desired, one or two egg yolks may be reserved and used to seive over top of finished casserole as a garnish.

GUESTS

It's a lively town at the moment—Perhaps not today, or even tomorrow, but the weekend certainly will dawn with a rosy hue.

Our rosy dawn will come a bit early on Saturday morning—when Miss Ann Baumgart arrives from Danville, Ill., and her fiance, Robert Lordner Van Dervoort, Jr., arrives from Chicago at a very early hour.

And the fun begins on Saturday evening when Miss Baumgart and Mr. VanDervoort,, Jr., whose marriage will take place on March 27, will share honors at a party. The hosts and hostesses for the canape party and supper will be Mr. and Mrs. Elwood N. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Burnham Yates who will entertain at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Yates.

The Sunday calendar also includes courtesies for Miss Baumgart and Mr. Van Dervoort. The first of these is a 12 o'clock brunch on Sunday morning when Mr. and Mrs. David Makepeace compliment the soon-to-be weds at their home.

On Sunday evening Miss Baumgart and Mr. VanDervoort will again be complimented when Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Barber, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henrion are hosts and hostesses at a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henrion. The guest list will include members of the families.

This is a week of homecoming for some of the fortunates who chose the month of March as holiday time.

Just home on Tuesday evening, for instance, were Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sidles who returned from a week spent at Caneel Bay, the Virgin Islands.

Also back in town are Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. DeBrown, who left Lincoln in one snow storm, and returned just in time for another taste of winter.

Mr. and Mrs. DeBrown left a month ago for Mesa, Ariz., where they spent two weeks before going on to Desert Springs, Calif. En route home they stopped at Las Vegas, Nev., where they had a brief visit with their son, J. Wallace deBrown, who was just leaving for home following the golf tournament.

Last Sunday brought Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Joyce home from—Las Vegas and the golf tournament—and Scottsdale, Ariz. Mr. and Mrs. Joyce were away for two weeks.

is another name for suburbia

What has 400 wheels goes 90 miles an hour and when put in "drive", heads south? An automobile filled with residents of suburbia who are tired of Nebraska's weather.

The shiny automobile which was given the works and was clean as a whistle on one of those warm days earlier in the week, carried several Park Manor residents to other, and we hope warmer states for short vacations or for business reasons.

Here at home, the social calendars are not so glowing. This must be the weekend for relaxation or preparation for the parties ahead.

PARK MANOR

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Goshen returned Monday from St. Louis, Mo. Mr. Goshen had business to attend to while in the city, so Mrs. Goshen drove on to Bloomfield, Mo. to spend her time visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Doerschlen.

Leaving today for their home in Decatur, Ga. are Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Markey. The Markeys have been visiting this past week with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roby Dollar.

Just to let you know that bridge parties have not become extinct in Park Manor, we will mention one that was held last night at the Thomas Whitcomb residence.

Mrs. Robert Markel served as co-hostess when the Skyline Drive neighborhood ladies met for their monthly bridge party. Guests present for the evening affair were Mrs. Howard Miller, Mrs. Earl Anderson, Mrs. Val Vitek, Mrs. Don Yates, Mrs. Bob Dunn and Mrs. Marc Anthony who substituted for one of the regulars. Dessert followed the bridge games.

Laura Gruhn observed her fourth birthday last Saturday with a party planned by her mother, Mrs. Gerald Gruhn. The guest list included neighborhood friends of all ages. But, Laura did have three special guests and they were Nancy Whitcomb, Jeff Adams and Tom Patitz. Ice cream and cake was served after an afternoon of games and prizes.

BETHANY PARK HEIGHTS

Mrs. Glenford Sliter changed the direction of our suburban automobile from south to east last Tuesday when she left for Middletown, N.Y. Mrs. Sliter is traveling to Middletown for no other reason than to attend the Golden wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Nutt.

Mrs. Sliter, one of seven children and the farthest away from her parents home, will return to Lincoln within a week.

A new resident has arrived in Bethany Park Heights. She is very young Lorna Louise Peterson, who was born March 4th at Bryan Memorial Hospital. Lorna's parents, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson and she has two brothers, Doug and Duane.

FIENE HEIGHTS

On the guest list were Dale's two grandmothers, Mrs. Florence Pierce and Mrs. Mary Agnew of Agnew and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCarthy and their daughter, Roxanne. Also present was Dale's sister, Diane.

What They're Reading

The best seller list reveals that a cold war exists between the fiction and non-fiction lists. If you'll remember from last week, "My Shadow Ran Fast' by Sands stepped into the listings at the number six position under non-fiction, while "Hotel" by Hailey walked in on the fiction list only to be placed 10th. "Hotel" now ranks seventh and is preceded by a newcomer to the roll, "Up the Down Staircase" by Kaufman.

Referring back to "My Shadow Ran Fast," you will note that it has been halted at the number six spot for its second week of reign. Number 10 on the non-fiction list this week is "Catherine the Great" by Oldenbourg, replacing a long time ranker, "My Autobiography' by Chaplin.

It will be interesting to see if the non-fiction come on, "Catherine the Great" will progress up the list as quickly as "Hotel" did during one week of its reign. Then again you'll want to check on "Up the Down Staircase" and see if it will be halted at its debut position as happened with "My Shadow Ran Fast."

All in all, the best seller list has an interesting outlook, but let's take a glance at the situation as it now stands.

Fiction

1. "Herzog,' Bellow
2. "The Man," Wallace
3. "Funeral in Berlin," Deighton
4. "Hurry Sundown," Gilden
5. "Rector of Justin," Auchincloss
6. "Up the Down Staircase," Kaufman
7. "Hotel,' Hailey
8. "Covenant with Death," Becker
9. "This Rough Magic," Stewart.
10. "Legend of the Seventh Virgin," Holt

Non-Fiction

1. "Markings," Hammarskjold
2. "Founding Fathers," Whalen
3. "Queen Victoria: Born to Succeed,' Longford
4. "Reminiscences," MacArthur.
5. "The Italians," Barzini
6. "My Shadow Ran Fast," Sands
7. "Sixpence in Her Shoe," McGinley
8. "Life of Picasso," Lake
9. "The Words,' Sartre
10. "Catherine the Great," Oldenburg

PEO Elects

Also named to office were Mrs. R. V. Adolphson, vice president; Mrs. G. A. McCall, recording secretary; Mrs. R. E. Stoller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. Hart, treasurer; Mrs. J. L. Jay, chaplain; and Mrs. H. E. Wolfmann, guard.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and male, and my problem is this: How can I graciously answer the questions, "Why are you limping?" and, "Why don't you dance?"

Most people are not aware of my limp unless they've known me for a long time. It is not very noticeable except when I am tired. Some people think I have recently hurt my leg. The reason I limp, Abby, is because I had polio, and surgery as a result of it. But I'm afraid if I were to tell people this it would create an awkward silence. An offhand wisecrack doesn't go over well now that I'm older. Can you tell me how to answer these two questions so there will be no further discussion of a subject I find rather unpleasant?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: The best reply to both questions is the simple truth: I've had surgery as a result of polio." If questions persist after that, answer them graciously enough so the inquirer will not be embarrassed, and briefly enough so he will realize that you don't wish to dwell on the subject.

DEAR ABBY: We have a handsome, intelligent boss who has one fault. He opens everybody's mail. It doesn't matter if it's marked PERSONAL, or not. He opens it anyway. Even bills! And I know he reads everything because he's made remarks about bills being overdue and other information he could only have picked up from personal letters. I once tried to tell him in a nice way that he shouldn't open other people's mail, but he said he opens all the letters from the back and he doesn't pay any attention to whom it is addressed. I can't get used to this. I wait for the mail and try to get mine first, but some days he beats me to it. He owns this business and he's the boss, and I have to eat. So what do I do?

"J" IN PORTLAND

DEAR "J": Don't tell me that's the only job in Portland! It is obvious that your handsome, intelligent boss has nose trouble. If you want the privacy to which every employee is entitled, clear out of there and find another job. But if you remain, knowing your privacy is being violated, don't complain.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is usually pretty good, but you sure missed your answer to the woman who complained because her husband "lost all interest" in her. You advised her to get him to a doctor. Doctor, my eye! She should take herself to a lawyer. I was married to a man who, after only nine years of marriage, lost all interest in me, too. Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you. The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♥	Dble.	1♠	Pass
4♥	5♣	Dble.

Opening lead — four of hearts.

It is not especially difficult to make five clubs if you see all four hands. All you have to do is time your plays right and let nature take care of the rest.

However, to make the contract without seeing the adverse hands is much more of a chore, since it requires visualizing the East-West cards accurately, and then taking advantage of this knowledge.

Actually, this is not a difficult task. The bidding speaks for itself and the missing cards are likely to be where the bidding indicates they are.

East practically has to have a seven-card suit for his jump to four hearts, and West, who doubled five clubs, is fairly well marked with a spade suit headed by the A-J. Assuming these conclusions to be correct, the play of the hand becomes merely an exercise in good technique.

East wins the heart lead with the jack and continues with a heart which you ruff with the ten. Taking a long-distance view, you now cash the A-K of diamonds before leading a club to the eight.

You then ruff a diamond high, followed by a club to the nine so that you can ruff dummy's last diamond and at the same time run West out of diamonds.

Having taken care of these preliminaries, you draw West's last trump, reducing his hand to only spades. Your cards by this time consist of the Q-10-5 of spades and a trump, while dummy has the K-4-2 of spades and a heart.

You now lead the queen of spades and West becomes a victim of your earlier preparations.

If he takes the queen with the ace, that will be his side's last trick because he is forced to return a spade and your ten and queen both become tricks. If he does not take the queen of spades, you make the contract by continuing with a spade towards the king.

NFWC To Convene

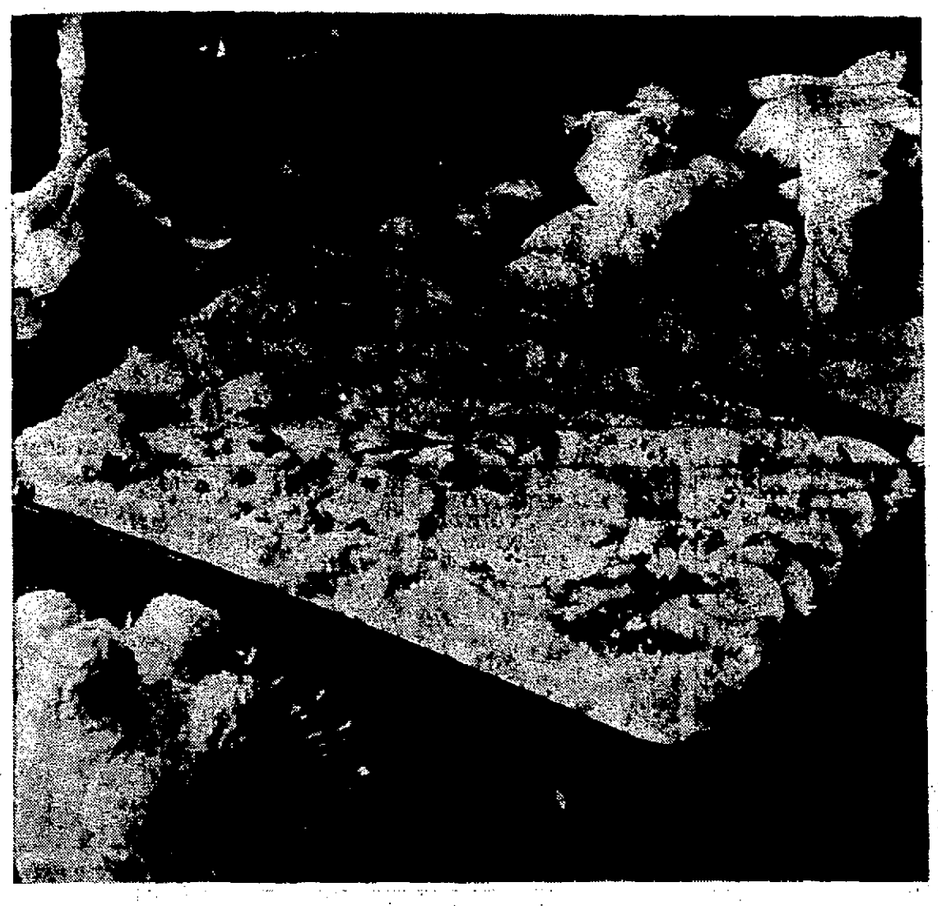
Mrs. W. R. Kirchhefer of Sutton, state president, has announced that a special convention guest will be Mrs. William H. Hasebroock of West Point, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who will address the members at the Wednesday evening convention banquet.

The convention will open Tuesday afternoon with a reception at the Governor's Mansion honoring former state presidents, and the Tuesday evening banquet will feature as speakers Gov. Frank Morrison and Mrs. Walter Magee of Lakewood, Ohio, second vice president of the federation.

GOOD

food for Lenten season



Economical meals without meat, but with fine flavor, put a feather in any cook's cap. By using cheese, it's an accomplishment within the reach of all. As a mainstay of meatless menus, cheese, teamed with hard-cooked eggs and tempting tuna, contributes much in taste and nutrients.

SCALLOPED CHEESE 'N TUNA
(Makes 5 to 6 servings)

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon dehydrated minched onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup flour
2-3 cup nonfat dry milk
1¾ cups water
2 cups processed American Cheese, shredded (¾ of 2 pound loaf)
3 (7-oz.) cans flaked tuna fish
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

In a medium-size saucepan, over medium heat, melt butter. Add green pepper, onion and salt; saute until tender. Blend in flour. Sprinkle nonfat dry milk over water; stir to blend. Gradually stir milk into vegetable-flour mixture. Stir constantly and cook until thickened and smooth. Add cheese; stir until melted. In a 12x7½x2-inch baking dish, make a layer of tuna fish, hard-cooked egg slices and cheese sauce; repeat to make second layer. Bake in a moderate (350 degree F.) oven for 20 minutes, or until light golden brown. If desired, one or two egg yolks may be reserved and used to selve over top of finished casserole as a garnish.

MEETING OF THE IRISH

Mrs. Maxine Morrison, wife of Nebraska Governor Frank Morrison, presents a St. Patrick's Day gift to Husker football coach Bob Devaney. The Governor and Devaney recently appeared on a television broadcast on which the state's top executive wore a green tie with small shamrocks on it. Devaney was so overwhelmed by the tie that Mrs. Morrison gave the NU mentor an identical one for St. Patrick's Day with the hope that the luck of the Irish will remain with him in his gridiron endeavors.

Football's Grand Old Man Dies At Age 102

Amos Stagg Expires In Calif. Rest Home

. . . DEATH PEACEFUL

Stockton, Calif. (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, famed as an athlete, coach and leader of men for three-quarters of a century, died Wednesday at 102.

The Grand Old Man of the gridiron — he had coached football for 70 years—had been in fragile health and confined to a rest home several years. Tuesday night he developed a fever. Death was attributed to uremic poisoning.

A star collegiate pitcher and an end on Walter Camp's first All America football team, Stagg turned down professional baseball offers in favor of a coaching career which didn't end until failing eyesight forced him out when he was 98 years old.

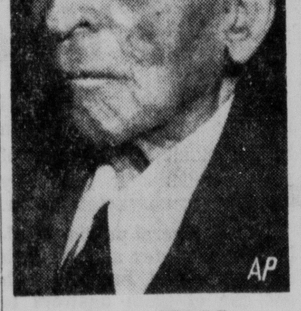
The first football coach at the University of Chicago, Stagg held the job 41 years until reaching 70 and mandatory retirement. He then coached 15 years at College of the Pacific at Stockton; assisted his son, Amos Alonzo Jr. for six years at Susquehanna, Pa., and later was an advisory coach for Stockton College, a two-year school.

Another son, Paul, is athletic director at the University of the Pacific. A daughter, Mrs. Ruth S. Lauren lives at Chicago.

Funeral services will be held in Stockton Sunday.

Born at West Orange, N.J., Aug. 16, 1862, Stagg attended Exeter Academy and Yale.

He studied for the ministry but gave that up when he felt his voice was not suited to preaching.



A. A. STAGG

"I felt specially called to preach," he recalled a few weeks before his 100th birthday, "but I decided to do it on the athletic fields."

Thousands of young men benefitted from that decision.

Stagg began coaching in 1890 at Springfield, Mass., College. Two years later, Dr. William Rainey Harper, president of the new University of Chicago, offered him the job of organizing athletics there.

A rugged, though relatively small gentleman with deep set eyes, Stagg had a hand in the development of football through most of its important early stages.

In 1905, when foes charged the game was too brutal, Stagg took an important stand in a conference called by President Theodore Roosevelt. The sport survived.

He was instrumental in bringing about the T formation, wingback formations, forward pass, huddle, man-in-motion and the numbering of football jerseys.

When he reached the retirement age at Chicago, he was offered an honorary post but refused, saying "I could not and would not accept a job without work. I am fit, able and willing and refuse to be idle."

He coached at Pacific from 1933 until 1947. In 1936 he took his team to Stagg Field in Chicago and beat the University of Chicago Maroons 32-0.

In 1943, Stagg's team lost only to the University of Southern California and the Football Coaches Association named him coach of the Year at 81. He also is a member of Football's Hall of Fame.

During 57 years as a head coach, his football teams compiled 309 victories, 200 defeats and 35 ties.

He helped form the Big Ten Conference and in 1905 coached Chicago's conference championship teams in football, track, baseball and basketball.

It was that year Mark Catlin and Art Badenoch tackled Danny Clark of Michigan for a safety and a 2-0 victory. It ended the 12-game victory string of Fielding Yost's point-a-minute squad.

An All America that year for the Maroons was Walter Eckersall, a quarterback weighing only 150 pounds. Stagg himself weighed only 160 and felt the superiority of the "big" man was exaggerated.

After retiring from Pacific, Stagg helped Amos Alonzo Jr., at Susquehanna until 1953 and then returned permanently to Stockton, where he was an advisory coach at Stockton College until 1960.

On Sept. 16 that year he wrote Coach Larry Kentera:

"It is with a deep feeling of regret that I write you that I will not be able to accept your invitation to come out for football practice this year. For the past 70 years I have been coach. At 98 years of age, it seems a good time to stop."

His 100th birthday celebration drew sports figures and admirers from throughout the nation to a civic dinner. Against the advice of physicians, Stagg made an appearance.

In deference to Stagg's long-standing rules for spartan living, no liquor was served.

His last birthday was observed quietly.

Nurses said "Mr. Stagg couldn't see a thing." He was unable to walk and needed assistance to reach his chair.

Although he wasn't told when his wife died, many thought he sensed it. Shortly after he started his coaching career, he and his bride, Stella Robertson, spent their honeymoon accompanying his Chicago football team to a game at Stanford.

Paul Stagg said the funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday at Stockton's Central Methodist Church with the Rev. Myron Herrell officiating. Interment will be in Stockton near Mrs. Stagg.

The family requested that any tributes to Stagg be expressed through contributions to the Amos Alonzo and Stella Stagg Memorial Fund at the University of the Pacific.

Vlasin Heads 'D' 5

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

An all-senior lineup, boasting size and scoring punch, comprises the 1965 Sunday Journal and Star Class D all-state basketball team.

The quintet ranges in size from Madrid's Larry Vlasin (5-10) to Orchard's Dale Von Seggern (6-6). Joining them on the team are Herman's Steve Lane, Guide Rock's Bill Thayer and Odell's Dave Zumbahlen.

Vlasin, who has earned two all-state awards in eight-man football, topped the balloting.

LARRY VLASIN
MADRID

The versatile Madrid performer had a 26.9 scoring average for the season, hitting 55 points on one occasion. An unselfish player, he averaged 12 assists per game.

His shooting and playmaking led a short team to within one game of a state tourney appearance. In addition to his scoring, he was the Pirates' second-best rebounder.

Lane was the top hand on Herman's 20-2 outfit. Coach Glen Blakeman regards the 6 1½ senior as the top all-around performer he's had at Herman.

Steve was held under 20 points only five times during the campaign and hit 40 against Winnebago. His rebounding was just as important for the Cardinals as he averaged over 19 retrieves per game.

BILL THAYER
GUIDE ROCK

Thayer, a rugged 6-3, 190-pounder, led Guide Rock to the state tourney and a 25-2 season record.

Bill averaged 25 points and 16 rebounds a game for the Warriors. Dangerous from short range, he had a good hook shot with either hand.

Zumbahlen represents the state runnerup Odell team.

He was an excellent all-around performer for the Tigers. A deadly shooter, he was also a fine rebounder and a good defender.

DAVE ZUMBAHLEN
ODELL

Von Seggern was hampered by lack of support, but sparked the Orioles to a district title and a fine season.

The agile 6-6 senior is regarded as a fine college prospect because of his fine shooting and strong rebounding.

Foundation Head Hopes 'Spirit Lives'

By Associated Press

"I hope we keep his spirit alive," said Chester J. LaRoche, chairman of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, upon hearing of the death of Amos Alonzo Stagg in Stockton, Calif., Wednesday.

Stagg was the only man ever elected to the Football Hall of Fame both as a player and as a coach. He was awarded the foundation's Gold Medal, its highest honor, for his contributions to football in 1960.

"I thing there have been few men in the history of our country — and that includes presidents, ministers and college educators—who put into people's minds and hearts the same sense of decency and integrity that are the heart of real amateur sport," LaRoche said.

Mets Hit Combination Again; Whip Reds, 7-4

By Associated Press

The New York Mets, who had the Cincinnati Reds' number for the first five months of the 1964 baseball season, apparently know the combination again.

The Mets held a one-game edge on the Reds in season's play until Cincinnati swept a five-game series the last week in September in the midst of the National League stretch drive. Now the Mets are getting even.

The New Yorkers had dropped three straight Grapefruit League exhibitions before knocking off Cincinnati B squad for their first victory Tuesday. Casey Stengel's club made it two straight Wednesday ripping the Reds' varsity 7-4.

Stengel's youth movement did most of the damage as the National League tailenders whacked 13 hits off three pitchers. First baseman Ed Kranepool, outfielder Johnny Lewis and catcher John Stephenson had three apiece and another outfielder, Ron Swoboda, crashed a bases-loaded double.

Elsewhere, Tommy Davis and Don Drysdale drove in two runs apiece as the Los Angeles Dodgers topped Minnesota 6-4 and Jerry Lumpe had three hits against his old teammates as Detroit whipped Kansas City 7-3.

The Houston Astros combed three Washington pitchers for 13 hits and whipped the Senators 10-4 and Pittsburgh topped St. Louis 6-4.

Jim Beauchamp and Bob Aspromonte each homered and drove in three runs apiece in Houston's victory. Gene Freese had a two-run homer for the Pirates and Bob Skinner poked one with a man on for the Cardinals.

Dean Chance went six innings allowing two runs but Chicago rallied in the last innings and edged the Los Angeles Angels 5-4.

San Francisco whacked five Boston pitchers for 18 hits and routed the Red Sox 17-2. Tony Conigliaro homered for the losers.

Mound Corps Needed If Tigers Hope To Improve

. . . SEARCH CONTINUES

Fourth of a Series

Lakeland, Fla. (AP)—Before he was sidelined by a heart attack, Manager Charlie Dressen said all his Detroit Tigers needed "to show the rest of the league something in 1965" was a little extra pitching.

Interim manager Bob Swift admits that his biggest job is to continue the search Dressen started for an improved mound corps.

Dave Wickersham, a 19-game winner in 1964, and left-hander Mickey Lolich (18-9), were the only pitchers assured of starting assignments when spring training began.

Twenty-one other hurlers lined up for the remaining two or three starting roles and a job with the bullpen corps.

Dressen had been thinking of using Larry Sherry, who won seven and saved 11 before being injured last season, as a starter.

Hank Aguirre and Phil Regan are expected to rebound from identical 5-10 marks last year. Aguirre could win back a starting assignment, but Regan seems headed for relief work.

Denny McLain and Joe Sparma will fight it out for one of the other starting jobs.

If there is anything that will make the Tigers better this year—other than a strong pitching staff—it is the keen competition for most of the other positions.

Only right-fielder Al Kaline and catcher Bill Freehan are sure of keeping their jobs. Kaline has shaken off his aches and pains. Freehan, a .300 hitter his first full year as the No. 1 receiver, has lived up to every expectation.

The Tigers did not make any major trade in the off-season, feeling the number of younger players from the Syracuse farm team would provide the needed replacements.

Bill Roman, a slick-fielding, hard hitting first baseman, could win a job as a pinch-hitter if he doesn't replace Norm Cash at first.

Nebraskans Win In KC

. . . MOVE TO SEMIS

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Kansas City, Mo.—A state rivalry between Nebraska and Minnesota that has been carried on through the years on the football field will switch to the boxing ring here Friday night in the semifinals of the National Golden Gloves Tournament.

The Minnesota-Nebraska clash was set up Wednesday night when Lance Kress of Omaha and Tony Drake of Sioux City, Iowa, both representing the Nebraska Golden Gloves team that qualified in Omaha won quarterfinal decisions.

Drake, a lightweight from Sioux City, Iowa, Central High School, won a decision over Benny Garrett of St. Louis in a slow-moving bout.

"Tony has trouble getting loose in the ring," coach Jack Fickler explained. "He wants to wrestle too much. I told him after the second round to just forget who he was fighting and that there was a crowd.

"I told him to just imagine he was working out against someone in the gym and he then started to fight."

Drake suffered a slight scratch on his right eyeball in the win over Garrett.

Kress will meet Boom Boom Miller of Minneapolis in the semifinals and Drake will face Ron Lyke of Minneapolis. Winners will move into the finals later Friday night.

Miller decisioned Richard Wootson of Toledo Wednesday night and Lyke won a decision over Ray Garay of Fort Worth.

With Kress and Drake in the semifinals, the Nebraska team has now sent two fighters that far in each of the last two years. A year ago heavyweight John Gatus was eliminated in the semifinals and light-heavyweight Harley Cooper won the 175-pound title in leading the Nebraska team to a second place finish in the team standings.

Jesse Valdez, the Fort Worth, Tex., youngster who decisioned Colin Moon a year ago and later represented the United States in the Olympics was stopped Wednesday night by defending national Golden Gloves champion Donald Cobbs of St. Louis.

Cobbs knocked Valdez down with a right hand in the second round, then had him down twice in the third before the referee stopped the fight with 21 seconds left.

Valdez did not appear to be hurt and protested the decision to stop the bout.

Lynn Farr, the 6-6 Texan from Fort Worth who decisioned Lincoln's Jim Blake Tuesday night, moved into the semifinals with a decision over Phil Smith of Huntington, W. Va., in Wednesday night's quarterfinals.

Farr now must meet Jerry Quarry, the Los Angeles heavyweight who has scored three straight knockouts in the tourney.

Omaha now stands in 11th place in the team standings with seven points and two fighters remaining. Los Angeles with 17 points and five fighters remaining is the leader going into the semifinals.

Fort Worth trails with 15, followed by Kansas City with 14, Detroit 12, Minneapolis 10, Roswell 9, Huntington 9 and Billings, Mont. 9.

Teams below Omaha are:

AFL Brass Says Ex Tulsa Guard Must Honor Pact

New York (AP) — The American Football League isn't about to give Bob Breitenstein, Tulsa University guard, a release from the contract he signed with the Denver Broncos.

Milt Woodard, assistant commissioner of the AFL, said Wednesday "he has a legitimate contract. To waive it would be ridiculous."

Breitenstein was the fifth round draft choice of the Broncos and the first round choice of the Washington Redskins in the National Football League. Coach Bill McPeak of the Redskins said that Breitenstein signed with Denver 10 days before the Bluebonnet Bowl game in which Tulsa participated.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical cipher designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the numerals and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then spell the message the letters under the checked figures form you. Player-Owner Meet Date Set

. . . TENTATIVELY APRIL 9

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Wednesday that the spring session will start Monday, April 5, and the owners expect to complete the business left unfinished at their February meeting in Palm Springs, Calif., by Thursday. The meeting with the players probably will be held April 9.

The owners agreed in February to invite the player representatives of each club and Ordell Braase, head of the NFL Players Association, to this conference to discuss a number of requests and suggestions the players have made.

These include a request that two active players be represented on the league's pension fund committee and a proposal for increased contributions to the player benefit fund from radio-television receipts from the championship game and from the College All-Star game.

Ordell Braase, president of the players Association, said last Saturday his group had rejected an invitation to meet the owners because the players representatives had been invited individually and the other officers and legal counsel of the association had not been included.

Jim Kensil, NFL publicity director, said Wednesday that the player representatives of all 14 clubs had accepted invitations prior to Braase's statement and there had been no word that they would not attend the Florida meeting.

'Old Man's' Plays Still Being Used

Some years ago Stagg recalled that after the Notre Dame-Army game in Chicago in 1924, which the Four Horsemen won 13-7, Knute Rockne brought some of his players to the University of Chicago trainer for treatment.

During the visit, Rockne remarked, "Mr. Stagg, we used your old pass yesterday against Army and it worked beautifully."

The play was one that Stagg devised in the first year in which the forward pass was legal. Quarterback Walter Eckersall would fake sending both halfbacks into the line then run back and to one side-roll out in modern football terminology—to throw a forward pass.

Jacksonville Golf Favors Arnie, Doug

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer shares the role of favorite with Doug Sanders when the $50,500 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament begins Thursday.

Sanders is the hottest man on the tour. He has scored consecutive victories in the Pensacola Open and the Doral in Miami and is the leading money winner of the year.

He will have many followers who know him from his years as a University of Florida student and golfer eight years ago.

Jack Nicklaus, PGA champion Bobby Nichols and Billy Casper are other strong contenders. National Open champion Ken Venturi is hoping to get his game going. After a layoff because of a circulatory ailment, he failed to finish at Pensacola and Miami.

Dan Sikes is the touring professional most familiar with the 6,906-yard, par 72 Felva Marina course. He comes from Jacksonville and holds the course record of 66.

"I think the course is favorable to power hitters, like Nicklaus and Palmer," Sikes said. "But a northwest wind could mess up things."

Palmer said he likes the course, "but it could be tough if the weather turns windy or cold. There are some long par fours."

It was sunny and temperatures were in the 80s for a pro-am preliminary Wednesday. The forcast was for cooler and windy weather Thursday.

Ankle Operation Sidelines Aaron For One Month

Milwaukee (AP) — A tiny bone chip was removed from the ankle of Milwaukee Braves slugger Henry Aaron Wednesday at Milwaukee Hospital, and Dr. Bruce Brewer reported that X-rays showed ankle function now is normal.

Dr. Brewer said Aaron would remain at the hospital for a week and be in a cast for about three weeks, but would be running "in about a month."

Nickname 'Old Man' Received While Young

Chicago (AP) — Old Man Stagg received that nickname while he still was a young man, although he lived more than 102 years.

Stagg's University of Chicago players, recognizing the maturity and judgment of their coach, adopted the nickname "Old Man" for Alonzo Stagg in the 1890s, when he still was under 40.

Former Teammates Should Bolster Cub's Pitching Staff

"Broglio? Broglio?" he murmured, searching through the pages. "How do you spell that? Oh, here it is. B-r-o-g-l-i-o. Hmmm, won only seven games. Terrible."

And in the Cubs' camp, that's the way it seems. Broglio, who won seven games last season, is getting more attention than Jackson, who won 24. But the two pitchers, former teammates with St. Louis who were reunited at Chicago last year, both understand.

Broglio, acquired in a trade with St. Louis for outfielder Lou Brock, suffered through most of the 1964 season with a right arm that would lock in place when he tried to pitch.

"It really scared me," Broglio said. "I had arm trouble off and on for four years before but nothing like that ever happened.

"In the operaion, they removed bone chips and did some nerve-resetting and they told me I would be able to throw free again without any pain."

A Broglio throwing free again could be a big boon to a staff that also includes Jackson, Dick Ellsworth and veterans Bob Buhl and Lou Burdette. Broglio was a 21-game winner with the Cardinals in 1960 and won 18 in 1963.

Did the Cubs know they were getting a pitcher with arm trouble when they acquired Broglio?

"I dont' know if they were aware of the exact problems I was having," said Broglio, "but it was common knowledge that I had been having some trouble.

"And I don't think I was upset about the trade—the Cubs were ahead of the Cardinals at the time and as it turned out Brock got a hot bat and I was glad that I didn't wind up in the minors."

Did that mean that Broglio thought the Cardinals made the better deal?

"No, sir," he replied quickly.

—PRINCETON CAGE TEAM—

'Forgotten Five' Not Rock-'N-Roll Singers

Princeton, N.J., (AP)—"Bill Bradley and the Forgotten Five" sounds like a group of rock-'n'-rollers. It is really the Princeton basketball team.

To the general public, Bradley's teammates are a bunch of guys called Joe, although not one of them answers to that name. They have remained in the background while Bradley monopolized the headlines as befits a two-time All-America, player of the year, Olympic hero and Rhodes scholar.

The five players are 6-foot-2 Bob Haarlow, 6-2 Don Rodenbach, 6-9 Robinson Brown, 6-0 Gary Walters and 6-6 Ed Hummer. Haarlow and Rodenbach are juniors. The others are sophomores, so they can expect their share of the limelight next season. And they conceivably could get it this weekend in the NCAA basketball finals at Portland, Ore.

They shook off their lethargy in mid-season and have a 13-game winning streak and 22-5 record to take against top-ranked Michigan Friday night. They won the eastern regionals handily last weekend by swamping North Carolina State and Providence.

Hummer, who does not start is second only to Bradley in native talent. Coach Bill van Breda Kolff usually sends him in to spell Brown but on occasion using his two big men together. He did just that in the second half against Providence and they swept the boards clean.

Those six carry most of the load. Rounding out the squad are four seniors-5-10 Bill Kingston, 6-6 Don Niemann, 6-1 Don Roth and 6-6 Ken Shank and Sophomores 6-3 Al Adler and 6-3 Bill Koch.

"A little before mid-season the sophs hadn't progressed as far as they should have because they were playing with Bradley," Van Breda Kolff said. "They didn't dare do the things they could do. Pretty soon all we did was get the ball to Bill and stand around like a bunch of jerks watching him."

The turning point came against Yale in early February. Bradley suffered a thigh injury and became a playmaker.

"I think the boys realized they'd have to do certain things themselves," Van Breda Koliff said. "It finally showed in the Harvard game two weeks later when Haarlow Rodenbach and Brown broke it open."

Football's Grand Old Man Dies At Age 102

Amos Stagg Expires In Calif. Rest Home

. . . DEATH PEACEFUL

Stockton, Calif. (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, famed as an athlete, coach and leader of men for three-quarters of a century, died Wednesday at 102.

The Grand Old Man of the gridiron — he had coached football for 70 years—had been in fragile health and confined to a rest home several years. Tuesday night he developed a fever. Death was attributed to uremic poisoning.

A star collegiate pitcher and an end on Walter Camp's first All America football team, Stagg turned down professional baseball offers in favor of a coaching career which didn't end until failing eyesight forced him out when he was 98 years old.

The first football coach at the University of Chicago, Stagg held the job 41 years until reaching 70 and mandatory retirement. He then coached 15 years at College of the Pacific at Stockton; assisted his son, Amos Alonzo Jr. for six years at Susquehanna, Pa., and later was an advisory coach for Stockton College, a two-year school.

Another son, Paul, is athletic director at the University of the Pacific. A daughter, Mrs. Ruth S. Lauren lives at Chicago.

Funeral services will be held in Stockton Sunday.

Born at West Orange, N.J., Aug. 16, 1862, Stagg attended Exeter Academy and Yale.

He studied for the ministry

A. A. STAGG

but gave that up when he felt his voice was not suited to preaching.

"I felt specially called to preach," he recalled a few weeks before his 100th birthday, "but I decided to do it on the athletic fields."

Thousands of young men benefitted from that decision.

Stagg began coaching in 1890 at Springfield, Mass., College. Two years later, Dr. William Rainey Harper, president of the new University of Chicago, offered him the job of organizing athletics there.

A rugged, though relatively small gentleman with deep set eyes, Stagg had a hand in the development of football through most of its important early stages.

In 1905, when foes charged the game was too brutal, Stagg took an important stand in a conference called by President Theodore Roosevelt. The sport survived.

He was instrumental in bringing about the T formation, wingback formations, forward pass, huddle, man-in-motion and the numbering of football jerseys.

When he reached the retirement age at Chicago, he was offered an honorary post but refused, saying "I could not and would not accept a job without work. I am fit, able and willing and refuse to be idle."

He coached at Pacific from 1933 until 1947. In 1936 he took his team to Stagg Field in Chicago and beat the University of Chicago Maroons 32-0.

In 1943, Stagg's team lost only to the University of Southern California and the Football Coaches Association named him coach of the Year at 81. He also is a member of Football's Hall of Fame.

He helped form the Big Ten Conference and in 1905 coached Chicago's conference championship teams in football, track, baseball and basketball.

It was that year Mark Catlin and Art Badenoch tackled Danny Clark of Michigan for a safety and a 2-0 victory. It ended the 12-game victory string of Fielding Yost's point-a-minute squad.

An All America that year for the Maroons was Walter Eckersall, a quarterback weighing only 150 pounds. Stagg himself weighed only 160 and felt the superiority of the "big" man was exaggerated.

After retiring from Pacific, Stagg helped Amos Alonzo Jr., at Susquehanna until 1953 and then returned permanently to Stockton, where he was an advisory coach at Stockton College until 1960.

On Sept. 16 that year he wrote Coach Larry Kentera:

"It is with a deep feeling of regret that I write you that I will not be able to accept your invitation to come out for football practice this year. For the past 70 years I have been coach. At 98 years of age, it seems a good time to stop."

His 100th birthday celebration drew sports figures and admirers from throughout the nation to a civic dinner. Against the advice of physicians, Stagg made an appearance.

In deference to Stagg's long-standing rules for spartan living, no liquor was served.

His last birthday was observed quietly.

Nurses said "Mr. Stagg couldn't see a thing." He was unable to walk and needed assistance to reach his chair.

Although he wasn't told when his wife died, many thought he sensed it. Shortly after he started his coaching career, he and his bride, Stella Robertson, spent their honeymoon accompanying his Chicago football team to a game at Stanford.

Paul Stagg said the funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday at Stockton's Central Methodist Church with the Rev. Myron Herrell officiating. Interment will be in Stockton near Mrs. Stagg.

The family requested that any tributes to Stagg be expressed through contributions to the Amos Alonzo and Stella Stagg Memorial Fund at the University of the Pacific.

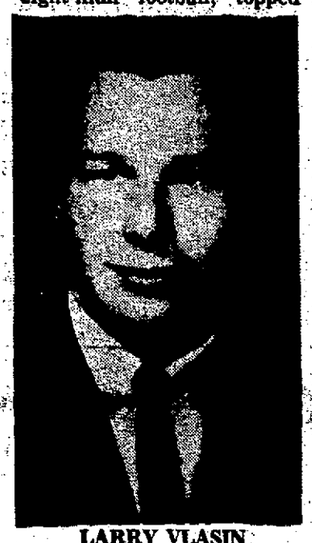
Vlasin Heads 'D' 5

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

An all-senior lineup, boasting size and scoring punch, comprises the 1965 Sunday Journal and Star Class D all-state basketball team.

The quintet ranges in size from Madrid's Larry Vlasin (5-10) to Orchard's Dale Von Seggern (6-6). Joining them on the team are Herman's Steve Lane, Guide Rock's Bill Thayer and Odell's Dave Zumbahlen.

Vlasin, who has earned two all-state awards in eight-man football, topped the balloting.



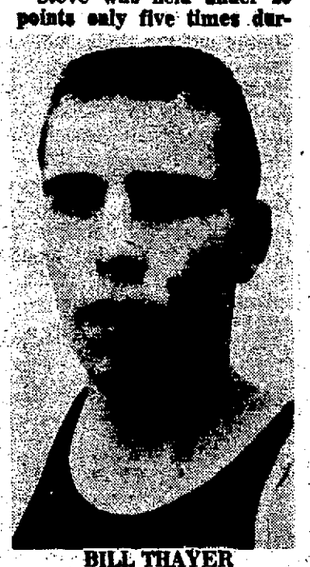
LARRY VLASIN
MADRID

The versatile Madrid performer had a 26.9 scoring average for the season, hitting 55 points on one occasion. An unselfish player, he averaged 12 assists per game.

His shooting and playmaking led a short team to within one game of a state tourney appearance. In addition to his scoring, he was the Pirates' second-best rebounder.

Lane was the top hand on Herman's 20-2 outfit. Coach Glen Blakeman regards the 6 1½ senior as the top all-around performer he's had at Herman.

Steve was held under 20 points only five times during the campaign and hit 40 against Winnebago. His rebounding was just as important for the Cardinals as he averaged over 19 retrieves per game.



BILL THAYER
GUIDE ROCK

Thayer, a rugged 6-3, 190-pounder, led Guide Rock to the state tourney and a 25-2 season record.

Bill averaged 25 points and 16 rebounds a game for the Warriors. Dangerous from short range, he had a good hook shot with either hand.

Zumbahlen represents the state runnerup Odell team.

He was an excellent all-around performer for the Tigers. A deadly shooter, he was also a fine rebounder and a good defender.

ODELL

Von Seggern was hampered by lack of support, but sparked the Orioles to a district title and a fine season.

The agile 6-6 senior is regarded as a fine college prospect because of his fine shooting and strong rebounding.

By Associated Press

"I hope we keep his spirit alive," said Chester J. LaRoche, chairman of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, upon hearing of the death of Amos Alonzo Stagg in Stockton, Calif., Wednesday.

Stagg was the only man ever elected to the Football Hall of Fame both as a player and as a coach. He was awarded the foundation's Gold Medal, its highest honor, for his contributions to football in 1960.

"I thing there have been few men in the history of our country — and that includes presidents, ministers and college educators—who put into people's minds and hearts the same sense of decency and integrity that are the heart of real amateur sport," LaRoche said.

Nebraskans Win In KC

. . . MOVE TO SEMIS

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Kansas City, Mo.—A state rivalry between Nebraska and Minnesota that has been carried on through the years on the football field will switch to the boxing ring here Friday night in the semifinals of the National Golden Gloves Tournament.

The Minnesota-Nebraska clash was set up Wednesday night when Lance Kress of Omaha and Tony Drake of Sioux City, Iowa, both representing the Nebraska Golden Gloves team that qualified in Omaha won quarterfinal decisions.

Drake, a lightweight from Sioux City, Iowa, Central High School, won a decision over Benny Garrett of St. Louis in a slow-moving bout.

"Tony has trouble getting loose in the ring," coach Jack Fickler explained. "He wants to wrestle too much. I told him after the second round to just forget who he was fighting and that there was a crowd.

"I told him to just imagine he was working out against someone in the gym and he then started to fight."

Drake suffered a slight scratch on his right eyeball in the win over Garrett.

Kress will meet Boom Boom Miller of Minneapolis in the semifinals and Drake will face Ron Lyke of Minneapolis. Winners will move into the finals later Friday night.

Miller decisioned Richard Wootson of Toledo Wednesday night and Lyke won a decision over Ray Garay of Fort Worth.

With Kress and Drake in the semifinals, the Nebraska team has now sent two fighters that far in each of the last two years. A year ago heavyweight John Gatus was eliminated in the semifinals and light-heavyweight Harley Cooper won the 175-pound title in leading the Nebraska team to a second place finish in the team standings.

Jesse Valdez, the Fort Worth, Tex., youngster who decisioned Colin Moon a year ago and later represented the United States in the Olympics was stopped Wednesday night by defending national Golden Gloves champion Donald Cobbs of St. Louis.

Cobbs knocked Valdez down with a right hand in the second round, then had him down twice in the third before the referee stopped the fight with 21 seconds left.

Valdez did not appear to be hurt and protested the decision to stop the bout.

Lynn Farr, the 6-6 Texan from Fort Worth who decisioned Lincoln's Jim Blake Tuesday night, moved into the semifinals with a decision over Phil Smith of Huntington, W. Va., in Wednesday night's quarterfinals.

Farr now must meet Jerry Quarry, the Los Angeles heavyweight who has scored three straight knockouts in the tourney.

Omaha now stands in 11th place in the team standings with seven points and two fighters remaining. Los Angeles with 17 points and five fighters remaining is the leader going into the semifinals.

Fort Worth trails with 15, followed by Kansas City with 14, Detroit 12, Minneapolis 10, Roswell 9, Huntington 9 and Billings, Mont. 9.

Teams below Omaha are: Springfield, Ill., 6; Grand Rapids, Mich., 5; Kenosha, Wis., 5; Cleveland 4; Denver 4; Louisville 4; Knoxville 4; Toledo 4; Indianapolis 3; Lafayette, La., 3; Wichita, Kan. 3; Streator, Ill., 2; Lowell, Mass. 2; Charleston, N.C., 1; Chicago 1; Des Moines 1; Jackson, Tenn 1; Muncie, Ind. 1...

Mound Corps Needed If Tigers Hope To Improve

. . . SEARCH CONTINUES

Fourth of a Series

Lakeland, Fla. (AP)—Before he was sidelined by a heart attack, Manager Charlie Dressen said all his Detroit Tigers needed "to show the rest of the league something in 1965" was a little extra pitching.

Interim manager Bob Swift admits that his biggest job is to continue the search Dressen started for an improved mound corps.

Dave Wickersham, a 19-game winner in 1964, and left-hander Mickey Lolich (18-9), were the only pitchers assured of starting assignments when spring training began.

Twenty-one other hurlers lined up for the remaining two or three starting roles and a job with the bullpen corps.

Dressen had been thinking of using Larry Sherry, who won seven and saved 11 before being injured last season, as a starter.

Hank Aguirre and Phil Regan are expected to rebound from identical 5-10 marks last year. Aguirre could win back a starting assignment, but Regan seems headed for relief work.

Denny McLain and Joe Sparma will fight it out for one of the other starting jobs.

If there is anything that will make the Tigers better this year—other than a strong pitching staff—it is the keen competition for most of the other positions.

Only right-fielder Al Kaline and catcher Bill Freehan are sure of keeping their jobs. Kaline has shaken off his aches and pains. Freehan, a .300 hitter his first full year as the No. 1 receiver, has lived up to every expectation.

The Tigers did not make any major trade in the off-season, feeling the number of younger players from the Syracuse farm team would provide the needed replacements.

Bill Roman, a slick-fielding, hard hitting first baseman, could win a job as a pinch-hitter if he doesn't replace Norm Cash at first.

Mets Hit Combination Again; Whip Reds, 7-4

By Associated Press

The New York Mets, who had the Cincinnati Reds' number for the first five months of the 1964 baseball season, apparently know the combination again.

The Mets held a one-game edge on the Reds in season's play until Cincinnati swept a five-game series the last week in September in the midst of the National League stretch drive. Now the Mets are getting even.

The New Yorkers had dropped three straight Grapefruit League exhibitions before knocking off Cincinnati B squad for their first victory Tuesday. Casey Stengel's club made it two straight Wednesday ripping the Reds' varsity 7-4.

Stengel's youth movement did most of the damage as the National League tailenders whacked 13 hits off three pitchers. First baseman Ed Kranepool, outfielder Johnny Lewis and catcher John Stephenson had three apiece and another outfielder, Ron Swoboda, crashed a bases-loaded double.

Elsewhere, Tommy Davis and Don Drysdale drove in two runs apiece as the Los Angeles Dodgers topped Minnesota 6-4 and Jerry Lumpe had three hits against his old teammates as Detroit whipped Kansas City 7-3.

The Houston Astros combed three Washington pitchers for 13 hits and whipped the Senators 10-4 and Pittsburgh topped St. Louis 6-4.

Jim Beauchamp and Bob Aspromonte each homered and drove in three runs apiece in Houston's victory. Gene Freese had a two-run homer for the Pirates and Bob Skinner poked one with a man on for the Cardinals.

Dean Chance went six innings allowing two runs but Chicago rallied in the last innings and edged the Los Angeles Angels 5-4.

AFL Brass Says Ex Tulsa Guard Must Honor Pact

New York (AP) — The American Football League isn't about to give Bob Breitenstein, Tulsa University guard, a release from the contract he signed with the Denver Broncos.

Milt Woodard, assistant commissioner of the AFL, said Wednesday "he has a legitimate contract. To waive it would be ridiculous."

Breitenstein was the fifth round draft choice of the Broncos and the first round choice of the Washington Redskins in the National Football League. Coach Bill McPeak of the Redskins said that Breitenstein signed with Denver 10 days before the Hula Bonnet Bowl game in which Tulsa participated.

Player-Owner Meet Date Set

. . . TENTATIVELY APRIL 9

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Wednesday that the spring session will start Monday, April 5, and the owners expect to complete the business left unfinished at their February meeting in Palm Springs, Calif., by Thursday. The meeting with the players probably will be held April 9.

The owners agreed in February to invite the player representatives of each club and Ordell Braase, head of the NFL Players Association, to this conference to discuss a number of requests and suggestions the players have made.

These include a request that two active players be represented on the league's pension fund committee and a proposal for increased contributions to the player benefit fund from radio-television receipts from the championship game and from the College All-Star game.

Ordell Braase, president of the players Association, said last Saturday his group had rejected an invitation to meet the owners because the players representatives had been invited individually and the other officers and legal counsel of the association had not been included.

Jim Kensil, NFL publicity director, said Wednesday that the player representatives of all 14 clubs had accepted invitations prior to Braase's statement and there had been no word that they would not attend the Florida meeting.

'Old Man's' Plays Still Being Used

Some years ago Stagg recalled that after the Notre Dame-Army game in Chicago in 1924, which the Four Horsemen won 13-7, Knute Rockne brought some of his players to the University of Chicago trainer for treatment.

During the visit, Rockne remarked, "Mr. Stagg, we used your old pass yesterday against Army and it worked beautifully."

The play was one that Stagg devised in the first year in which the forward pass was legal. Quarterback Walter Eckersall would fake sending both halfbacks into the line then run back and to one side-roll out in modern football terminology—to throw a forward pass.

3 Teams Capture Big 10 Conference Leading Positions

McCook, Scottsbluff and Fremont each landed two spots on the all-division Big Ten Conference basketball teams selected by coaches.

The West team: Roger Leitner and Ed Thomas, McCook; Rod Ehler and Doug Hollinger, Scottsbluff; Tom Fuller, Alliance; Dale Chase, North Platte.

Lexington, Ky. (AP) — In a logical St. Patrick's Day move, officials of the East-West college All-Star basketball game Wednesday named Ron Reed of Notre Dame as a player.

Named Tuesday to play in the March 27 game were Jim King of Oklahoma State and John Fairchild of Brigham

Jacksonville Golf Favors Arnie, Doug

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer shares the role of favorite with Doug Sanders when the $50,500 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament begins Thursday.

Sanders is the hottest man on the tour. He has scored consecutive victories in the Pensacola Open and the Deral in Miami and is the leading money winner of the year.

He will have many followers who know him from his years as a University of Florida student and golfer eight years ago.

Dan Sikes is the touring professional most familiar with the 6,906-yard, par 72 Felva Marina course. He comes from Jacksonville and holds the course record of 66.

"I think the course is favorable to power hitters, like Nicklaus and Palmer," Sikes said. "But a northwest wind could mess up things."

Palmer said he likes the course, "but it could be tough if the weather turns windy or cold. There are some long par fours."

It was sunny and temperatures were in the 80s for a pro-am preliminary Wednesday. The forcast was for cooler and windy weather Thursday.

Ankle Operation Sidelines Aaron For One Month

Milwaukee (AP) — A tiny bone chip was removed from the ankle of Milwaukee Braves slugger Henry Aaron Wednesday at Milwaukee Hospital, and Dr. Bruce Brewer reported that X-rays showed ankle function now is normal.

Dr. Brewer said Aaron would remain at the hospital for a week and be in a cast for about three weeks, but would be running "in about a month."

Nickname 'Old Man' Received While Young

Chicago (AP) — Old Man Stagg received that nickname while he still was a young man, although he lived more than 102 years.

Stagg's University of Chicago players, recognizing the maturity and judgment of their coach, adopted the nickname "Old Man" for Alonzo Stagg in the 1890s, when he still was under 40.

Former Teammates Should Bolster Cub's Pitching Staff

"Broglio? Broglio?" he murmured, searching through the pages. "How do you spell that? Oh, here it is. B-r-o-g-l-i-o. Hmmm, won only seven games. Terrible."

And in the Cubs' camp, that's the way it seems. Broglio, who won seven games last season, is getting more attention than Jackson, who won 24. But the two pitchers, former teammates with St. Louis who were reunited at Chicago last year, both understand.

Broglio, acquired in a trade with St. Louis for outfielder Lou Brock, suffered through most of the 1964 season with a right arm that would lock in place when he tried to pitch.

"It really scared me," Broglio said. "I had arm trouble off and on for four years before but nothing like that ever happened.

"In the operation, they removed bone chips and did some nerve-resetting and they told me I would be able to throw free again without any pain."

A Broglio throwing free again could be a big boon to a staff that also includes Jackson, Dick Ellsworth and veterans Bob Buhl and Lou Burdette. Broglio was a 21-game winner with the Cardinals in 1960 and won 18 in 1963.

Did the Cubs know they were getting a pitcher with arm trouble when they acquired Broglio?

"I dont' know if they were aware of the exact problems I was having," said Broglio, "but it was common knowledge that I had been having some trouble.

"And I don't think I was upset about the trade—the Cubs were ahead of the Cardinals at the time and as it turned out Brock got a hot bat and I was glad that I didn't wind up in the minors."

Did that mean that Broglio thought the Cardinals made the better deal?

"No, sir," he replied quickly.

'Forgotten Five' Not Rock-'N-Roll Singers

Princeton, N.J., (AP)—"Bill Bradley and the Forgotten Five" sounds like a group of rock-'n'-rollers. It is really the Princeton basketball team.

To the general public, Bradley's teammates are a bunch of guys called Joe, although not one of them answers to that name. They have remained in the background while Bradley monopolized the headlines as befits a two-time All-America, player of the year, Olympic hero and Rhodes scholar.

The five players are 6-foot-2 Bob Haarlow, 6-2 Don Rodenbach, 6-9 Robinson Brown, 6-0 Gary Walters and 6-6 Ed Hummer. Haarlow and Rodenbach are juniors. The others are sophomores, so they can expect their share of the limelight next season. And they conceivably could get it this weekend in the NCAA basketball finals at Portland, Ore.

They shook off their lethargy in mid-season and have a 13-game winning streak and 22-5 record to take against top-ranked Michigan Friday night. They won the eastern regionals handily last weekend by swamping North Carolina State and Providence.

Hummer, who does not start is second only to Bradley in native talent. Coach Bill van Breda Kolff usually sends him in to spell Brown but on occasion using his two big men together. He did just that in the second half against Providence and they swept the boards clean.

Those six carry most of the load. Rounding out the squad are four seniors-5-10 Bill Kingston, 6-6 Don Niemann, 6-1 Don Roth and 6-6 Ken Shank and Sophomores 6-3 Al Adler and 6-3 Bill Koch.

"A little before mid-season the sophs hadn't progressed as far as they should have because they were playing with Bradley," Van Breda Kolff said. "They didn't dare do the things they could do. Pretty soon all we did was get the ball to Bill and stand around like a bunch of jerks watching him."

The turning point came against Yale in early February. Bradley suffered a thigh injury and became a playmaker.

"I think the boys realized they'd have to do certain things themselves," Van Breda Koliff said. "It finally showed in the Harvard game two weeks later when Haarlow Rodenbach and Brown broke it open."

Oanh: Peace Advocates Exiled Without Chutes

Sydney, Australia (UPI)—Former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Xuan Oahn said Wednesday that three Vietnamese intellectuals who sought a cease-fire in the war were dropped without parachutes into Communist North Viet Nam.

The South Vietnamese government had said the men would be parachuted into Communist territory.

"They were thrown out of a plane all right," Oanh said. "But they did not have parachutes."

Oanh said the incident happened Monday. "These things happen in wartime," he added.

Oanh, now governor of the National Bank of South Viet Nam, made his remarks during a Sydney stopover on his way to a U.N. conference in New Zealand.

He said the men, Prof. Ton That Duong, Dr. Pahm Van Huen, and Cao Minh Chiem, a newspaperman, were arrested last month for collecting 358 signatures on a petition calling for a cease-fire with the Viet Cong.

He said they were flown from the U.S. air base at Da Nang after a "farewell ceremony" attended by three government ministers.

U.S. Withdrawal, No Raids Demanded By Russian Note

Moscow (UPI)—The Soviet Union demanded officially Wednesday night that the United States stop bombing North Viet Nam and pull its troops and arms out of South Viet Nam.

The damand came in a message from the Soviet Union to Britain. The two nations are co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva Conference which ended the Indochina war and established North and South Viet Nam.

The note, released Wednesday night by the Soviet news agency Tass, replied to Britain's note of Feb. 20 asking Russia if it was ready to cooperate in seeking a cease-fire in Viet Nam. Russia sent the answer Sunday night but its release was delayed until Wednesday night.

Release of the note coincided with the London visit of Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. London sources said Gromyko had rejected all suggestions of cooperation towards peace moves in Viet Nam.

Stock Market Session Dull

New York (AP)— The stock market went through a dull session Wednesday as trading slackened.

In another vote for a slightly lower market, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .4 to 334.9 with industrials off .3, rails off .3 and utilities off .4.

Volume was 5.13 million shares compared with 5.5 million Tuesday.

The economic background seemed encouraging on balance but the stock market rendered little heed to this. On the plus side was such news that industrial production registered another substantial gain in February and that personal income also advanced. On the minus side was a February decline in housing starts.

Among the 15 most active stocks' gainers and losers were even at seven each while Polaroid closed unchanged.

Some of the lower-priced issues again were prominent among these trading favorites but this time they seemed to be affected chiefly by profit taking.

Among them was the most active stock, Erie-Lackawanna, which backed away from recent gains and declined ¼ at 8⅝ on 106,200 shares.

State Religion

Colombo, Ceylon (AP) — The government's cabinet has approved a proposal that Buddhism be made the state religion in Ceylon.

Parliamentary legislation to this effect would require amending the country's constitution which bars any "privilege or advantage" to anyone because of religion.

Mo Pac Seeking Eagle Run Halt

Falls City (AP)—Mayor Ralph Steinbrink has been notified that the Missouri Pacific Railroad plans to make application to discontinue its Eagle passenger trains between Kansas City and Omaha.

Steinbrink said he was notified of the plans by E. E. Spencer, general passenger traffic manager of the railroad. Missouri Pacific officials will come here March 29 to discuss the proposal.

The Interstate Commerce Commission about two years ago turned down a similar railroad bid.

Oanh: Peace Advocates Exiled Without Chutes

Sydney, Australia (UPI)—Former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Xuan Oahn said Wednesday that three Vietnamese intellectuals who sought a cease-fire in the war were dropped without parachutes into Communist North Viet Nam.

The South Vietnamese government had said the men would be parachuted into Communist territory.

"They were thrown out of a plane all right," Oanh said. "But they did not have parachutes."

Oanh said the incident happened Monday. "These things happen in wartime," he added.

Oanh, now governor of the National Bank of South Viet Nam, made his remarks during a Sydney stopover on his way to a U.N. conference in New Zealand.

He said the men, Prof. Ton That Duong, Dr. Pahm Van Huen, and Cao Minh Chiem, a newspaperman, were arrested last month for collecting 358 signatures on a petition calling for a cease-fire with the Viet Cong.

He said they were flown from the U.S. air base at Da Nang after a "farewell ceremony" attended by three government ministers.

U.S. Withdrawal, No Raids Demanded By Russian Note

Moscow (UPI)—The Soviet Union demanded officially Wednesday night that the United States stop bombing North Viet Nam and pull its troops and arms out of South Viet Nam.

The damand came in a message from the Soviet Union to Britain. The two nations are co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva Conference which ended the Indochina war and established North and South Viet Nam.

The note, released Wednesday night by the Soviet news agency Tass, replied to Britain's note of Feb. 20 asking Russia if it was ready to cooperate in seeking a cease-fire in Viet Nam. Russia sent the answer Sunday night but its release was delayed until Wednesday night.

Release of the note coincided with the London visit of Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. London sources said Gromyko had rejected all suggestions of cooperation towards peace moves in Viet Nam.

Stock Market Session Dull

New York (AP)— The stock market went through a dull session Wednesday as trading slackened.

The Dow Jones industrial average squeezed out a gain of .47 at 868.37 but the 500-stock Standard & Poor's index was off .11 at 87.02.

In another vote for a slightly lower market, The Associated Press' average of 60 stocks dipped .4 to 334.9 with industrials off .3, rails off .5 and utilities off .4.

The market was mixed from the start, seemed to show a little strength in late afternoon, but developed no following for a rally.

Volume was 5.13 million shares compared with 5.5 million Tuesday.

The economic background seemed encouraging on balance but the stock market rendered little heed to this. On the plus side was such news that industrial production registered another substantial gain in February and that personal income also advanced. On the minus side was a February decline in housing starts.

Among the 15 most active stocks' gainers and losers were even at seven each while Polaroid closed unchanged.

Some of the lower-priced issues again were prominent among these trading favorites but this time they seemed to be affected chiefly by profit taking.

Among them was the most active stock, Erie-Lackawanna, which backed away from recent gains and declined ¼ at 8⅝ on 186,200 shares.

Prices worked irregularly lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.09 million shares compared with 1.68 million Tuesday.

State Religion

Colombo, Ceylon (AP) — The government's cabinet has approved a proposal that Buddhism be made the state religion in Ceylon.

Parliamentary legislation to this effect would require amending the country's constitution which bars any "privilege or advantage" to anyone because of religion.

Mo Pac Seeking Eagle Run Halt

Falls City (AP)—Mayor Ralph Steinbrink has been notified that the Missouri Pacific Railroad plans to make application to discontinue its Eagle passenger trains between Kansas City and Omaha.

Steinbrink said he was notified of the plans by E. E. Spencer, general passenger traffic manager of the railroad. Missouri Pacific officials will come here March 29 to discuss the proposal.

The Interstate Commerce Commission about two years ago turned down a similar railroad bid.

Cancer, Smoking Chemically Linked By Toronto Scientists

Toronto (UPI)—Cancer and cigarette smoking have been linked chemically for the first time by Toronto scientists whose discovery has been greeted as a major medical breakthrough.

The discovery, significant since all previous links between the dread disase and the cigarette habit have been purely statistical, shows smoking can cause cancer of the bladder.

The chemical connection was disclosed by Dr. William K. Kerr, head of a six-man research team which has been working on the cancer project at the Banting Institute at the University of Toronto.

In Bladders

Dr. Kerr told the Toronto Academy of Medicine his researchers found cancer-causing agents tend to build up dangerously in the bladders of smokers. These potentially dangerous chemicals are known as carcinogenic substances or orthoaminophenols.

The researchers, who are in the third year of a five-year project. made extensive urine tests on six subjects, some of whom were smokers and some non-smokers.

When smoking was stopped there was a decline in the concentration of potentially dangerous orthoaminophenols, but when smoking resumed, the concentration went up again.

Harmless Chemicals

Kerr said scientists believed smoking adversely affected the normal breakdown of certain hamrless food chemicals, creating an "enzyme block." This disruption leads to an accumulation of chemicals that can cause cancer in appropriate conditions.

Dr. Clifford L. Ash, director of the Ontario Cancer Institute, said the discovery was "very significant" and opened up "a whole new field of cancer research."

Kerr said specifically it may be that researchers have been on the wrong track in searching for cancer-causing agents by seeking sources outside the human body.

"I think it means we should study the effects of smoking on the enzyme systems in the body to see if this may throw light on other forms of lung cancer," he said.

Kerr said the full significance of the discovery would not be known until further tests were taken on a broader sample of subjects, including cancer-bearing individuals.

Winter Cold, Wind, Snow, Rain Return

Rain, light snow, strong March winds and freezing temperatures combined to give Nebraska another taste of winter Wednesday.

The winds, gusting up to 50 miles an hour, and the rains preceding the snow helped dislodge ice jams on the Elkhorn River, easing flood threats.

The river level at Waterloo was about eight feet below the flood stage, according to Army Corps of Engineers.

High winds were reorted across the state. The Scottsbluff area reported winds up to 35 m.p.h., Norfolk up to 47 m.p.h., North Platte and Imperial up to 34 m.p.h. and Lincoln up to 45 m.p.h.

The State Department of Roads reported new snow accumulated to five inches in Wayne, Hartington, and Crofton areas.

Blowing and drifting snow cut visibility on Nebraska highways and roads, but no roads were closed. Highways in eastern and central parts of the state were also icy.

Precipitation amounted to .48 for Lincoln. Doniphan reported 2.25 inches, Upland, 2.20 inches; Aurora, 1.92 inches; Hastings, 1.84 inches, and David City, 1.80 inches.

David City reported four inches of new snow. Most other places had one to two inches of snow. Lincoln had a trace.

Prejudiced Advertisers Banned At KU

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — The University of Kansas all-student council forbade university publications Tuesday night to accept advertisements from anyone whose offer is not open to all students regardless of race or nationality.

The action was recommended by the university human relations committee.

The ruling would give the human relations group authority to determine if complaints of discrimination on advertised products, housing, employment or services are legitimate. If so, it may revoke the advertising rights of offending firms or individuals.

The action resulted from negotiations between the university committee and the KU civil rights council following two days of demonstrations by the civil rights group last week.

Still to be settled are issues of fraternity and sorority segregation.

West Germans Will Investigate More War Crimes

Lueneberg, Germany (AP) — Investigation of 200 to 300 new cases involving war crimes will be undertaken soon by West German authorities, chief prosecutor Heinz Artz said Wednesday night.

He did not say how many suspects were involved in the new cases. Prosecution cases are pending against more than 13,000 Germans and they will continue no matter how the Bonn parliament votes next week on proposals to extend the statute of limitations on murder which expires in May.

Arzt said one major case in which no investigations had been conducted thus far involved the mass slaughter of 35,000 people in the Polish town of Kielce in January 1941. Information on this massacre by an SS unit reached the central war crimes investigating office "via Austria," he added.

Zambia To Honor Men Hanged By British

Luzaka, Zambia (AP)—Two Africans hanged four years ago under British law for killing a white woman—Edward Ngebe and Robin Kamina—may be honored by having streets named after them in Zambia's second city.

Mayor Jonathan Mubanga told the Kitwe Town Council: "We feel they contributed to the struggle for freedom and should not be forgotten." Zambia formerly was British-ruled Northern Rhodesia.

Chief Yields To Fine

Circleville, Ohio (AP)—Circleville Police Chief Robert Temple was fined $25 and costs after he was arrested, on his own insistence, for failure to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian.

Standard Protest Given By Moscow Teachers

Moscow (AP) — Five teachers from Moscow's Bauman Technical School delivered a protest to the American Embassy Wednesday against U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam.

An embassy spokesman said the protest, adopted at a meeting at the school, was given to Philip H. Valdes, a political officer. It followed standard Soviet lines of denunciation voiced in the press and numerous meetings.

Britain Plans Minting Of Churchill Shilling

London (AP)— A five-shilling coin—the seldom seen crown, worth 70 cents—will be minted in commemoration of Sir Winston Churchill.

Announcing it to Parliament, Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan said design and details will be disclosed later. Crowns usually are minted for a special occasion such as a coronation and become collectors' items.

USO CENTER TO OPERATE FROM YMCA

The Lincoln USO hospitality center is to be transferred to the downtown YMCA March 28, and other USO program activities such as the Junior Volunteer Program, are to be maintained and operated by the YMCA, according to the Lincoln USO Council, headed by Miss Norma Carpenter.

April termination of the USO's lease on present facilities at 14th and P and "the fluid situation of the Lincoln AFB phase-out," making advisability of signing another long-term lease questionable, prompted the move, Miss Carpenter declared.

USO funds from the Lincoln Community Chest will continue to support USO activities for military personnel. Drop-in facilities now existing at the YMCA building will be available to servicemen at no cost to the user, as will the Y's physical fitness, educational and recreational facilities.

Functions not requiring use of a hospitality center, such as co-ed parties, dances and roller skating, will be coordinated by the YWCA which will provide necessary staff and office facilities.

Justices Kicked; Pay Not Hiked

The roll call vote was 177 to 203. Voting with the majority were Reps. Clair Callan, D-Neb., Glenn Cunningham, R-Neb., and Dave Martin, R-Neb.

The proposed increase was the sum by which the lawmakers last year had shortchanged the justices in voting $7,500 increases for themselves, cabinet officers, and all lesser federal judges.

'Kick-The-Court Day'

As Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., remarked, this was not only St. Patrick's Day in the House but "Kick-the-Court-in-the-Pants Day" as well.

Rep. Paul Jones, D-Mo., said the justices were taking over the functions of Congress and "should be paid the same as we are."

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, voted that Justice William O. Douglas only recently came to public attention when stranded in snow in the mountains, and he asked whether Chief Justice Earl Warren was working when he turned up "on the French Riviera."

Wife Pension

Rep. John Bell Williams, D-Miss., noted that fringe benefits for the justices include $5,000 pensions for their wives. He asked how many of Douglas' wives the taxpayers would be expected to support in this fashion.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Emmanuel Celler, D-N.Y., called this an outrageous remark and said he hoped Williams, on further reflection, would strike from the record this reference to the fact Douglas has been married three times.

Gross demanded to know the court's exact vacation schedule.

Blames Rulings

Celler tried in vain to stem the tide of protests, which he attributed to unpopular court rulings on integration, school prayers, and reapportionment of state legislatures.

But he said the high court had made its mark in history and would continue to flourish, no matter what the House did.

"It will stand at the grave of its tormentors, and thank God it will," he concluded.

QueenJuliana Injures Ankle On Ski Trip

The owner of the hotel where the 55-year-old queen is staying said the injury is minor and that Juliana will not be able to walk for three days. He said she would then get a more permanent cast to walk with.

A skiing accident recently broke the ankle of Pieter Van Vollehoven Jr., 25, whose engagement was announced last week to Princess Margiet, third daughter of Juliana and Bernhard.

Welfare Group Backs Pardons, ADC Measures

Passage of bills which would reconstitute the Board of Pardons and Parole and would remove the present statutory maximums on aid to dependent children and make unemployment of the parent an additional reason for eligibility for ADC payments has been urged by the Nebraska Welfare Association Chapter V which serves Lancaster and Seward Counties.

Other bills that the chapter supports are those which: give authority to superintendents of the Boys and Girls Training Schools to transfer children to the Home for Children; require persons in charge of institutions caring for new-born infants to give each infant a test for errors of metabolism; seek to improve procedures for commitment of the mentally ill; repeal compulsory sterilization provisions for the mentally retarded; provide for voluntary admission to Beatrice State Home; and provide for the establishment of courts of conciliation to help preserve family life.

The chapter also urged that mental illness be included in provisions for hospital and medical care for the aged in national legislation.

Cancer, Smoking Chemically Linked By Toronto Scientists

Toronto (UPI)—Cancer and cigarette smoking have been linked chemically for the first time by Toronto scientists whose discovery has been greeted as a major medical breakthrough.

The discovery, significant since all previous links between the dread disase and the cigarette habit have been purely statistical, shows smoking can cause cancer of the bladder.

The chemical connection was disclosed by Dr. William K. Kerr, head of a six-man research team which has been working on the cancer project at the Banting Institute at the University of Toronto.

In Bladders

Dr. Kerr told the Toronto Academy of Medicine his researchers found cancer-causing agents tend to build up dangerously in the bladders of smokers. These potentially dangerous chemicals are known as carcinogenic substances or orthoaminophenols.

The researchers, who are in the third year of a five-year project, made extensive urine tests on six subjects, some of whom were smokers and some non-smokers.

When smoking was stopped there was a decline in the concentration of potentially dangerous orthoaminophenols, but when smoking resumed, the concentration went up again.

Harmless Chemicals

Kerr said scientists believed smoking adversely affected the normal breakdown of certain hamrless food chemicals, creating an "enzyme block." This disruption leads to an accumulation of chemicals that can cause cancer in appropriate conditions.

Dr. Clifford L. Ash, director of the Ontario Cancer Institute, said the discovery was "very significant" and opened up "a whole new field of cancer research."

Kerr said specifically it may be that researchers have been on the wrong track in searching for cancer-causing agents by seeking sources outside the human body.

"I think it means we should study the effects of smoking on the enzyme systems in the body to see if this may throw light on other forms of lung cancer," he said.

Kerr said the full significance of the discovery would not be known until further tests were taken on a broader sample of subjects, including cancer-bearing individuals.

Zambia To Honor Men Hanged By British

Luzaka, Zambia (AP)—Two Africans hanged four years ago under British law for killing a white woman—Edward Ngebe and Robin Kamina—may be honored by having streets named after them in Zambia's second city.

Mayor Jonathan Mubanga told the Kitwe Town Council: "We feel they contributed to the struggle for freedom and should not be forgotten." Zambia formerly was British-ruled Northern Rhodesia.

Chief Yields To Fine

Winter Cold, Wind, Snow, Rain Return

Rain, light snow, strong March winds and freezing temperatures combined to give Nebraska another taste of winter Wednesday.

The winds, gusting up to 50 miles an hour, and the rains preceding the snow helped dislodge ice jams on the Elkhorn River, easing flood threats.

The river level at Waterloo was about eight feet below the flood stage, according to Army Corps of Engineers.

Water accumulating behind the ice jams produced flooding earlier this month and it was feared that a quick thaw would produce more.

High winds were reorted across the state. The Scottsbluff area reported winds up to 35 m.p.h., Norfolk up to 47 m.p.h., North Platte and Imperial up to 34 m.p.h. and Lincoln up to 45 m.p.h.

The State Department of Roads reported new snow accumulated to five inches in Wayne, Hartington, and Crofton areas.

Blowing and drifting snow cut visibility on Nebraska highways and roads, but no roads were closed. Highways in eastern and central parts of the state were also icy.

Precipitation amounted to .48 for Lincoln. Doniphan reported 2.25 inches, Upland, 2.20 inches; Aurora, 1.92 inches; Hastings, 1.84 inches, and David City, 1.80 inches.

David City reported four inches of new snow. Most other places had one to two inches of snow. Lincoln had a trace.

Prejudiced Advertisers Banned At KU

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — The University of Kansas all-student council forbade university publications Tuesday night to accept advertisements from anyone whose offer is not open to all students regardless of race or nationality.

The action was recommended by the university human relations committee.

The ruling would give the human relations group authority to determine if complaints of discrimination on advertised products, housing, employment or services are legitimate. If so, it may revoke the advertising rights of offending firms or individuals.

The action resulted from negotiations between the university committee and the KU civil rights council following two days of demonstrations by the civil rights group last week.

Still to be settled are issues of fraternity and sorority segregation.

West Germans Will Investigate More War Crimes

Lueneberg, Germany (AP) — Investigation of 200 to 300 new cases involving war crimes will be undertaken soon by West German authorities, chief prosecutor Heinz Artz said Wednesday night.

He did not say how many suspects were involved in the new cases. Prosecution cases are pending against more than 13,000 Germans and they will continue no matter how the Bonn parliament votes next week on proposals to extend the statute of limitations on murder which expires in May.

Arzt said one major case in which no investigations had been conducted thus far involved the mass slaughter of 35,000 people in the Polish town of Kielce in January 1941. Information on this massacre by an SS unit reached the central war crimes investigating office "via Austria," he added.

Britain Plans Minting Of Churchill Shilling

London (AP)— A five-shilling coin—the seldom seen crown, worth 70 cents—will be minted in commemoration of Sir Winston Churchill.

Announcing it to Parliament, Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan said design and details will be disclosed later. Crowns usually are minted for a special occasion such as a coronation and become collectors' items.

USO CENTER TO OPERATE FROM YMCA

The Lincoln USO hospitality center is to be transferred to the downtown YMCA March 28, and other USO program activities such as the Junior Volunteer Program, are to be maintained and operated by the YMCA, according to the Lincoln USO Council, headed by Miss Norma Carpenter.

April termination of the USO's lease on present facilities at 14th and P and "the fluid situation of the Lincoln AFB phase-out," making advisability of signing another long-term lease questionable, prompted the move, Miss Carpenter declared.

USO funds from the Lincoln Community Chest will continue to support USO activities for military personnel. Drop-in facilities now existing at the YMCA building will be available to servicemen at no cost to the user, as will the Y's physical fitness, educational and recreational facilities.

Functions not requiring use of a hospitality center, such as co-ed parties, dances and roller skating, will be coordinated by the YWCA which will provide necessary staff and office facilities.

Justices Kicked; Pay Not Hiked

Washington (UPI) — House members Wednesday criticized Supreme Court justices for everything from their decisions to their marriages and refused to give them a $3,000 yearly pay raise.

The roll call vote was 177 to 203. Voting with the majority were Reps. Clair Callan, D-Neb., Glenn Cunningham, R-Neb., and Dave Martin, R-Neb.

The proposed increase was the sum by which the lawmakers last year had shortchanged the justices in voting $7,500 increases for themselves, cabinet officers, and all lesser federal judges.

'Kick-The-Court Day'

As Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., remarked, this was not only St. Patrick's Day in the House but "Kick-the-Court-in-the-Pants Day" as well.

Rep. Paul Jones, D-Mo., said the justices were taking over the functions of Congress and "should be paid the same as we are."

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, voted that Justice William O. Douglas only recently came to public attention when stranded in snow in the mountains, and he asked whether Chief Justice Earl Warren was working when he turned up "on the French Riviera."

Wife Pension

Rep. John Bell Williams, D-Miss., noted that fringe benefits for the justices include $5,000 pensions for their wives. He asked how many of Douglas' wives the taxpayers would be expected to support in this fashion.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Emmanuel Celler, D-N.Y., called this an outrageous remark and said he hoped Williams, on further reflection, would strike from the record this reference to the fact Douglas has been married three times.

Gross demanded to know the court's exact vacation schedule.

Blames Rulings

Celler tried in vain to stem the tide of protests, which he attributed to unpopular court rulings on integration, school prayers, and reapportionment of state legislatures.

But he said the high court had made its mark in history and would continue to flourish, no matter what the House did.

"It will stand at the grave of its tormenters, and thank God it will," he concluded.

Queen Juliana Injures Ankle On Ski Trip

Lech, Austria (AP) — Queen Juliana of the Netherlands fell and injured her right ankle while skiing on a steep slope near here Wednesday. The ankle had been put in a plaster cast.

The owner of the hotel where the 55-year-old queen is staying said the injury is minor and that Juliana will not be able to walk for three days. He said she would then get a more permanent cast to walk with.

A skiing accident recently broke the ankle of Pieter Van Vollehoven Jr., 25, whose engagement was announced last week to Princess Margiet, third daughter of Juliana and Bernhard.

Welfare Group Backs Pardons, ADC Measures

Passage of bills which would reconstitute the Board of Pardons and Parole and would remove the present statutory maximums on aid to dependent children and make unemployment of the parent an additional reason for eligibility for ADC payments has been urged by the Nebraska Welfare Association Chapter V which serves Lancaster and Seward Counties.

Other bills that the chapter supports are those which: give authority to superintendents of the Boys and Girls Training Schools to transfer children to the Home for Children; require persons in charge of institutions caring for new-born infants to give each infant a test for errors of metabolism; seek to improve procedures for commitment of the mentally ill; repeal compulsory sterilization provisions for the mentally retarded; provide for voluntary admission to Beatrice State Home; and provide for the establishment of courts of conciliation to help preserve family life.

The chapter also urged that mental illness be included in provisions for hospital and medical care for the aged in national legislation.

Bar Destroyed, Laundry Damaged At Valentine

Valentine (AP)—Fire in subfreezing temperatures and blowing snow destroyed the Silver Circle bar and extensively damaged the Valentine Laundry Wednesday.

During the fire, which broke out about 3:45 a.m., the mercury skidded from 11 to 5 degrees and visibility fell to less than one-half mile.

The site of the blaze was one-half block off Main Street.

The cause of the fire, which began in the bar, and an estimate of the damage haven't been determined.

Spud Holdings Show 43% Drop

Nebraska growers and dealers were holding 270,000 hundredweight of fall potatoes in storage as of March 1, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported.

The holdings were 43% below those a year earlier.

Bar Destroyed, Laundry Damaged At Valentine

Valentine (AP)—Fire in subfreezing temperatures and blowing snow destroyed the Silver Circle bar and extensively damaged the Valentine Laundry Wednesday.

An adjoining barbershop, with an unoccupied apartment on the second floor, was saved by firemen.

During the fire, which broke out about 3:45 a.m., the mercury skidded from 11 to 5 degrees and visibility fell to less than one-half mile.

The site of the blaze was one-half block off Main Street.

The cause of the fire, which began in the bar, and an estimate of the damage haven't been determined.

Spud Holdings Show 43% Drop

Nebraska growers and dealers were holding 270,000 hundredweight of fall potatoes in storage as of March 1, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported.

The holdings were 43% below those a year earlier.

The reduction resulted from lower production last year and the relatively heavier disposition earlier in the year.
